Outlook Brightens for Building Interests

Complete Removal of Ban on Construction and an Assured Fuel Supply for Manufacturing Materials Changes Conditions

RECENT action by the War Industries Board in revising its ruling in regard to non-war construction, and making immediately possible the erection of structures without any further restrictions, has created an altogether changed attitude on the part of the building fraternity. Where but a short time ago there was nothing but doubt and gloom, is now hope for the future through materially increased opportunities to do business. Already most beneficent results of the removal of a part of the ban on private and semi-private construction has resulted and much more is sure to follow with all restrictions removed.

Reports not only from the local territory but from practically all sections of the United States indicate that only a limited period will be required for the building industry to take advantage of the possibilities now offered. Architects and engineers are at work upon the plans for new construction that will total hundreds of millions, and there is every likelihood that contracts for a large proportion of this contemplated work will be awarded soon.

Recent restrictions on the production of building materials, including common and face brick, cement, lime, hollow tile and lumber have been removed and the materials so produced may now be sold and delivered for use in connection with any building project for which no permit or license is required under the revised priority circular, or to any project authorized by permits or licenses issued in pursuance with the said circular.

A relieved fuel situation was the prime factor responsible for the removal of a part of the restrictions upon the production of building materials. United States Fuel Administrator Garfield issued an order recently modifying the fuel restrictions placed upon the manufacture of different clay products by the order issued April 13, and also the restrictions on the resumption of fuel in the manufacture of cement, by an order dated August 8. The text of the modifying order of November 13 is as follows:

Washington, D. C., November 13, 1918.—The United States Fuel Administrator having heretofore, after consultation with the chairman of the War Industries Board, by orders dated April 13, 1918, relating to manufacturers of the different clay-products hereinafter specified, and by order dated August 8, 1918, relating to manufacturers of cement, placed certain restrictions on the consumption of fuel during the calendar year 1918 by such manufacturers, and it appearing to said Administrator that in view of the increased supply of bituminous coal at present available such restrictions may be relaxed without prejudice to the maintenance of an adequate supply of fuel and the equitable distribution and apportionment thereof, and it further appearing to said Administrator from representations made by the chairman of said War Industries Board, that such restrictions should in part be maintained, the United States Fuel Administrator, acting under authority of an executive order of the President of the United States, dated August 23, 1917, appointing said Administrator, and of subsequent executive orders, and in furtherance of the purpose of said orders and of the Act of Congress therein referred to and approved August 10, 1917, hereby orders and directs (1) that every manufacturer of common building brick, paving brick or block, face brick, sanitary ware, enameled sanitary ware, roofing tile, floor and wall tile, or terra cotta, as such terms are defined in the orders of said Administrator dated April 13, 1918, restricting the consumption of fuel in connection with the manufacture of such products, may at any of his plants engaged in the manufacture of any such product, use and consume, during the calendar year 1918, fuel or power derived from fuel for and in connection with the manufacture of such product to an amount not exceeding 75 per cent. of the average annual amount of fuel or power derived from fuel consumed at such plant for or in connection with the manufacture of such product during the period from January 31, 1917.

(2) That every manufacturer of hollow tile or drain tile and sewer pipe may, at any of his plants engaged in the manufacture of either of said products, use and consume, during the calendar year 1918, for and in connection with the manufacture of such product, fuel or power derived from fuel to an amount not to exceed 87½ per cent. of the average annual amount of fuel consumed at such plant for or in connection with the manufacture of such product during the period from January 1, 1915, to December 31, 1917.

(3) That every manufacturer of stone-ware, as the same is defined in the order of said Administrator dated April 13, 1918, restricting the consumption of fuel in connection with the manufacture of stone-ware may, at any of his plants engaged in the manufacture of such stone ware, use and consume, during the calendar year 1918 for and in connection with the manufacture of such stone-ware, fuel or power derived from fuel, to an amount not exceeding 92½ per cent. of the average annual amount of fuel consumed at such plant for and in connection with the manufacture of such stone-ware during the period from January 1, 1915, to December 31, 1917.

(4) That every manufacturer of cement, as the same is defined in the order of said Administrator, dated August 8, 1918, restricting the consumption of fuel in connection with the manufacture of cement, may, at any of his plants engaged in the manufacture of such cement use and consume, during the calendar year 1918, fuel or power derived from fuel, for and in connection with the manufacture of such cement, to an amount sufficient to manufacture not exceeding 87½ per cent. of the average annual amount of such cement produced at such plant during the period from January 1, 1915, to December 31, 1917, and said Administrator further orders and directs that the orders of said Administrator dated April 13, 1918, establishing regulations relating to the manufacture of the various products above referred to in paragraphs (1), (2) and (3) of this order, and the order of said Administrator dated August 8, 1918 establishing a regulation relating to the manufacture of cement, be and each of said orders hereby is, modified in accordance with the provisions of this order.

This order shall be effective at 7 a. m. November 14, 1918.

(Signed) H. A. GARFIELD,

United States Fuel Administrator.

As an indication of the manner in which the news of the armistice was received by structural interests, a prominent New York dealer in building stone stated that upon the day of the announcement a well-known builder entered his office and made inquiry about prices and delivery for more than 4,000 cubic feet of stone for a contemplated structure. This was the first bona-fide inquiry that this dealer had received for more than four months, and it has been followed during the past two weeks by a number of others. This same dealer made the statement that during a conversation with a leading architect of the city he remarked that he had in his office at the present time the plans for new construction work of a private character that would total in cost approximately $30,000,000, and that there were excellent prospects of starting work just as soon as the labor and material conditions would warrant. This large amount of work to proceed without calling upon the large loaning institutions for building loans. The money involved has already been procured from private interests and the progress of the buildings is assured just as soon as the plans are finished and approved.

The Federal Government has taken a decided step in its action ordering the resumption of construction work on post offices and other public buildings. Secretary McAdoo has ordered work again started, thus rescinding the orders of last December suspending all public building on account of war conditions. In the statement of Secretary McAdoo he said:

"The changed conditions brought about by the conclusion of the armistice and the manifest inability of Germany to renew the conflict emphasizes the importance of resuming with as little delay as possible the normal industrial activities of peace. The resumption of construction work by the Government will contribute toward facilitating the industrial transition of the country from a war to a peace basis and should serve to encourage others to undertake without delay the fulfilment of the many and varied industrial peace needs of the country."

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

EACH passing day brings with it some new indication of better times ahead for the building interests of the country and a steadily improving mental attitude on the part of the trades affiliated with the industry. For more than two years the building trades have suffered through a lack of outlet brought on by the war conditions and now that the horizon has brightened the building fraternity is ready for what is in store.

Already new activity has been commenced in certain directions and as far as the limits of the revised ruling of the War Industries Board permitted, and plans are rapidly being developed for the new projects that will be started very soon as the restrictions are now wholly lifted and structural activity is able to proceed as in normal times.

The situation as applied to the markets for building materials and supplies varies according to the line. Some have already responded to the general feeling of optimism as witnessed by definite orders for materials, and inquiries for commodities to be required in projected work. Other lines have not as yet experienced the stimulating effect of tangible orders but nevertheless are planning ahead for the materially increased volume of business that is sure to come during next year.

Building material prices are for the most part steady and there are no prospects of great flexibility to the situation at present. One thing seems almost assured and that is that commodity prices will not recede from the existing high levels for some years to come, and a greatly increased volume of building activity would have a marked tendency to stiffen the price situation to a great extent. In a canvass of the various material markets none are in anticipation of a recession in prices, but there are many who predict that as the demand for materials intensifies, prices will advance, and will hold to the new high levels until labor, transportation, and all other items entering into production costs are considerably lowered, and the demand again slacks off to normal.

Common Brick.—Although business in the Hudson River common brick market has been anything but brisk during the past week, with both sales and new arrivals light, there is a feeling of hope and confidence in the future, and both manufacturers and dealers are looking forward to a materially increased volume of activity in the near future. Prices are unchanged and are ranging from $13.50 to $14 a thousand, with recessions from the lower figure for off-grades. There is considerable activity in the up-river yards. Producers have recently been able to obtain a sufficient amount of coal to burn a part of their brick, and although there is no large volume of brick at present for sale in the local wholesale market, there are indications that within the next few weeks brick enough to supply all but extraordinary demands will be shipped to the city and covered against the demands of the winter months.

SUMMARY.—Transactions in the North River Brick market for the week ending Friday, November 22, 1918. Condition of market: Demand light, prices steady. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $13.50 to $14 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 7; sales, 9. Distribution: Manhattan, 5; Brooklyn, 2; New Jersey points, 2.

Face Brick.—Both manufacturers and dealers report that the demand for their product has steadily improved since the signing of the armistice and the removal of the restrictions on building construction work. The outlook is better today than it has been for more than a year and the prospects for a greatly increased business in 1919 are especially bright. The high production costs including the advanced rate of wages being paid to workmen will operate to keep prices high and there is no anticipated recession from the existing schedule of face brick prices.

Portland Cement.—The cement interests are practically marking time with current business sufficient to maintain a strong aspect to the market. Government demand has slacked off considerably during the past month owing to the completion of a number of large projects and the withdrawal of contemplated construction as the result of the armistice. Although there is a bright outlook for next year the feeling is quite general that no marked revival of buying interest will occur until next spring, and the manufacturers are now preparing their plans for the expected activity that will follow the long months of structural activity of a private nature. Cement prices are firm and unchanged and according to the present outlook no revision is expected.

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

Crushed Limestone.—Market conditions are more quiet today than they have been for some months past. There has been a gradual letting down in the demand for material for Government construction and there is no large private or public building operations being started to take the place of Federal projects. There is practically no current demand and inquiries are exceptionally light. Prices are unchanged, but there would be a strong tendency to shade considerably from the present levels on definite orders at this time. Although there is talk of a large volume of projected construction it is too late this year to commence important structural and engineering operations, and the producers of crushed limestone will probably not experience the effects of the improved building situation until next spring.

Trap-Rock.—The Government requirements continue as the dominating factor of the market and there is a considerable volume of current business upon old contracts. New demand is light and from all accounts not much additional business is anticipated until next spring. Prices are unchanged and firm, and instead of a recession from the existing levels, as has been confidently expected, there is likely to be an increase in the near future owing to the advanced production and transportation costs.

Structural Steel.—One of the prime essentials for a rapid renewal of structural activity is a relieved steel situation. Building construction cannot proceed to any material extent unless the required steel is forthcoming. At the present writing there are hopes that the lessening of war needs will operate to release a considerable portion for the requirements of the building interests. Records of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society for the month of October show that forty-three per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country was contracted for. Although local contractors for steel are heavily loaded with Government work they are of the opinion that before long the general building situation will improve and gain in force.

Building Stone.—Prospects for the near future are brighter today than they have been for a year and dealers are in receipt of inquiries for building stone that indicate a marked revival of building activity within the next few months. Plans are now being prepared for a large volume of construction work involving a total expenditure of many millions, and it cannot be long before a considerable percentage of this work is placed under contract and active building commenced. Stone prices are firm and no material reduction is anticipated at the present writing.

Lumber.—The action of the War Industries Board in partially removing the restrictions upon the construction of buildings throughout the country is reflected in the renewed activity of metropolitan lumber market. Conditions in both the wholesale and retail departments of trade are radically improved and the outlook for the coming months is quite different from what it was only a few weeks ago. Already the demand for lumber supplies designed for construction work have picked up notably for material to be used in the erection of moderate priced dwellings in suburban sections. Manufacturing interests have become a more important factor in the market than they have been recently owing to the curtailment of non-war manufacturing. Prices, however, are strong and there is not likely to be a let-down for the existing levels for some time at least. During the next five or six months there are anticipation of an exceptionally heavy demand for lumber products for reconstruction purposes, and while this lasts there cannot be a recession in price levels. As a matter of fact it would not be surprising if there was a marked upward trend to the market for those lines of lumber that have been heavily called upon during the recent cessation of structural activity and a tightening in the price situation as applied generally to the lumber market. Within the past two or three weeks the transportation conditions have materially improved and the embargo order of mid-September has been modified to an extent that it is possible to ship lumber from points other than places of origin.

Window Glass.—The manufacturers of plate and window glass met the Government officials yesterday in Washington and discussed the basis of operations for the coming year. No definite details of this conference are yet available. The National Glass Distributors' Association and the glass producers will hold a joint meeting in Pittsburgh, December 11 and 12.

Zinc in the Building Trades.

Many people associate the word zinc with a cast iron commonly used in electrical batteries. This product is brittle and crystalline and can be readily broken. They do not know that zinc is rolled and that in this shape it is remarkably ductile and tough. It is extremely resistant to atmospheric corrosion and in view of these qualities has found a tremendous application in the building trades in Europe. It displaces the more expensive metals, such as copper and lead, for roofing, flashing, spouting and guttering, with no sacrifice of durability and at considerable saving in first cost. Tin and terneplate and galvanized iron, which we so commonly use for exterior work, are usually cheaper in first cost, but when length of life, cost of painting and replacement are taken into account, they are more expensive for permanent construction.

Rolled zinc is now largely used in this country in the manufacture of so-called "leaded" glass where rolled zinc sections of any desired shape support the glass. This zinc often is given the lead finish desired for architectural effect, and is much stiffer and more durable than the metal it has replaced. It is also made in the shape of shingles or tile, which can be treated to give most artistic effects, possessing the great advantages of permanence and unbreakability. Spouting and guttering of zinc have artistic possibilities, and in addition the owner will not be able to poke his finger through the leaders on his house at the end of three or four years, nor will he have to continually paint them.

Rolled zinc is used largely in this country for weather-strips where permanency and ultimate cost are a consideration. It has, of course, been used for years in fastening glass in wooden frames in the shape of the familiar glaziers' "points."

The use of zinc demands a certain familiarity with the metal which can be had with a little practice, and the selection of the proper quality of material for any given application. Zinc can be hard, medium hard and soft rolled. Hard rolled zinc would not stand bending for seam work, while soft metal can be drawn, bent and spun into the greatest variety of shapes.

Will Renew Labor Wage Scale at Existing Rates

Building Trades Employers' Association Takes Action to Stabilize Labor Market so Construction Work May Proceed

SUFFICIENT time has not elapsed since the armistice was signed for the re-establishment of working conditions in the building industry. So many factors enter into the question of a resumption of building, now that all restrictions have been removed, that no contracts covering construction work have actually been placed in the Metropolitan District. Many projects are in shape to be pushed as soon as the labor and material markets have been stabilized. No great changes are expected in the immediate future in the prices of building materials. There is a tendency to a stiffening of prices in some lines and a softening of the market in others, but generally speaking few changes have been noticed up to the present time.

In labor circles there are several interesting features in the situation. One of the principle ones is the action of the Building Trades Employers' Association in ordering its members to adhere strictly to the rates of wages now being paid to labor employed in the building trades. This move was made for the purpose of bringing about as soon as possible stability in the labor market without which the industry would fail to recover from the depressing conditions of the last year and a half. Unless the contractors can figure on no upsets in wage scales building projects will be put aside until such time as labor adjusts itself to present day instead of war time conditions.

With this principle at issue members of the Building Trades Employers' Association will renew all trade agreements, especially at the end of 1918, for a period not exceeding one year, and trade associations have agreed not to pay wages in excess of those now being paid in any new agreement made for 1919.

The agreements, which expire at the end of 1918, and which may be renewed at the same scale, are as follows:

Schedule of Per Diem Rates of Wages: Carpenters, $5.50, and in shops $5 (in all boroughs); composition roofers and waterproofer, $4.25 (January 1, 1919, $4.75); concrete workers, laborers, 3.60 (January 1, 1919, $4); elevator constructors, $5.52; elevator constructors' helpers, $3.52; house shorers, $4.50; painters, $5.50; plasterers, $6.50; plasterers' laborers, $4.50; stone cutters, $6; woodworkers, $22 per week.

Agreements which continue in force after the end of this year, together with the agreements which provide for increases over the present scale, are as follows:

Schedule of Per Diem Rates of Wages: Asbestos workers, $5.50; asbestos workers' helpers, $4; bricklayers, $7; bricklayers' laborers, $4; cement masons, $5.60; dock builders, $5; electricians, $6; electricians' helpers, $3; engineers, $6.50; housesmiths (structural), $7; housesmiths, finishers, $6.40; marble cutters and setters, $6; marble carvers, $6.50; marble polishers, bed-rubbers and sawyers, $5.30; marble workers' helpers, $4; metallic lathers, $6; mosaic workers, $5.50; mosaic workers' helpers, $4; plumbers, $6; slate and tile roofers, $6.40 (Jan. 1, 1919, $6.50); steamfitters, $6; steamfitters' helpers, $3.40 ($4 when working eight hours or less); roofers and sheet metal workers, $5.60 (July 1, 1919, $5.80); stone setters, $7; tile layers, $6; tile layers' helpers, $3.65.

There is now generally speaking a sufficient supply of labor to meet all demands. The shortage of labor exists only in those trades that are employed on interior work and on the completion of structures. This shortage will no doubt cease to exist long before a structure immediately commenced reaches the condition as to completion which necessitates the employment of those trades.

One of the curious features of the labor situation is that shortage, when it exists, is found in trades that it has been thought suffered most from war conditions. Carpenters can be secured without any difficulty. It was supposed that members of the carpenters trades had been drafted into shipbuilding, and that when building was resumed there would be difficulty in getting sufficient men. On the other hand, marble and stone workers are hard to find, although they have not been in demand for government work. Those who are interested in the question of the causes of this state of affairs have not as yet succeeded in satisfactorily analyzing the reasons for the inequality which exists in the supply of labor in different trades.

Carpenters, steamfitters, cement workers, plumbers and electrical workers on government contracts struck for higher pay, and their demands were refused by the government. At the present time these jobs are about two-thirds normal, the men having drifted back to that extent when their demands were turned down.

The carpenters on the Pennsylvania and Commonwealth Hotels jobs are on strike for an increase of from $5.50 to $6.50 per day, in violation of their agreement at the former figure which does not expire until Dec. 31, 1918.

These are some of the reasons why building has not yet started up and may be indications of a period of restricted construction work until matters are adjusted so that builders know where they stand.

All the building trades are looking forward to times of greater activity and prosperity than have ever been experienced in the past history of the country. The scope of the anticipated movement cannot rightly be estimated at this time as new demands for additional buildings are manifesting themselves daily and new lines opening for progress in both industrial and civil needs. The demand for materials and labor for building purposes will be tremendous and spread over a wide stretch of the country.

Actual Cost of the War to the Building Industry

Statistics Show That $121,987,000 Worth of Projected Construction Was Held in Abeyance—New Work Totals $90,000,000

METROPOLITAN building interests have suffered severe losses during the past eighteen months as a direct result of the war. Resources of previous years have been expended in the maintenance of the organizations of the building industry, while the development of the country has been properly sacrificed to war needs. The almost complete shutdown of civil construction has staggered the industry, notwithstanding the considerable volume of military construction. While the latter represents millions of dollars, it did not offset the value of the contemplated civil building. Because of the lack of time the cost-plus form of contract was necessarily used with the inevitable result of increasing the wages of labor and causing higher prices of materials.

According to statistics compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company for New York State and Northern New Jersey, approximately $121,987,000 worth of civil construction has been held in abeyance by the war conditions, and, according to a recent survey, there is some $90,000,000 worth of new work in contemplation. The sum of these figures indicates that there is a demand for some $200,000,000 worth of construction in this territory, and this figure approximates the amount of building construction in this section in normal times.

The total of $121,987,000 is for operations planned before the entry of the United States in the war. Operations for which plans were completed and in many instances for projects that had already been presented to the building trades for estimates. There were even a substantial number for which contracts were drawn, but all had to be recalled and held in abeyance since the need of the Government was most urgent, and building costs had jumped to a level that would not make construction feasible at that time.

There were 1,629 separate structural projects included in the list of operations withheld as a direct result of the war. They were scattered over a relatively large territory, but the major portion of this proposed work was scheduled for the Metropolitan district or the territory immediately adjacent. In the list were numbered 495 residential projects representing an approximate valuation of $15,981,000. Industrial plants and manufacturing buildings plan numbered 151, and would have cost about $16,886,000. Public buildings and contemplated public works such as sewers, waterworks, bridges and similar, municipal, county and state improvements, meant 282 separate operations withheld, and a loss to the building industry of $42,544,000. The list of halted construction included 92 religious edifices valued at approximately $4,367,000, and business buildings numbering 431 that would have cost in the neighborhood of $43,671,000.

There were 38 amusement enterprises included in the list, theatres, moving picture houses and similar jobs, and this work represented a total of $1,758,000 that was not distributed to builders on account of the war conditions. Miscellaneous projects, not subject to classification in any of the above mentioned groups amounted to a total of 135, and represented a proposed expenditure of $5,780,000.

There is no doubt but that a large percentage of this work will ultimately go ahead just as soon as the conditions warrant, but before contracts can be placed and work actually started it will in a great many instances be necessary to revise the plans and specifications in order to offset the high cost of construction and to meet the conditions of the current demand.

If the normal growth of the country is to continue, then deferred construction must be caught up. It is in fact a deferred charge against the war, a part of the war debt, which must inevitably be paid.

Realty Men's Work for Loan Appreciated

By JOHN PRICE JONES.

Assistant Director of Publicity, Fourth Liberty Loan.

NO business was harder hit by war conditions than was real estate. To be sure there was an occasional sale or lease of a site for a war factory. But there was no considerable profit in this. Uncle Sam had asked in each case for a service, and there was every disposition on the part of real estate men to display the spirit which President Wilson voiced when he observed that small honor would come to the man who grew rich out of the war.

At the beginning of the war there was some activity in farms. This nation and the Entente Allies needed food, so larger and larger acreages were used to produce it. But gradually this condition, too, became stabilized and farm trading ceased. There was comparatively little exchange of residence properties in the city or suburbs or even in the rural districts. Families were disposed to await the fortunes of war in the dwellings they already possessed. The needs of the war prohibited building operations on any considerable scale. Hence the fact that the Committee of Real Estate of the Rainbow Division, Liberty Loan Committee, obtained from real estate men subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan of $9,250,000, is of more than surface significance. Real estate men were not earning their ordinary incomes—far from it—yet they felt that Uncle Sam must have their support and they gave it.

Possibly it was because of a real understanding of how hard real estate was hit by the war that the quota of the real estate men was set at only $5,000,000. And the real estate business subscribed $9,250,000, or 185 per cent. of their quota. In other words, they nearly doubled the amount expected from them.

The testimony of Liberty Loan workers is not needed, though it exists abundantly, to prove that the men and women of the real estate business acted from pure motives of patriotism. Many of their sons were in the service, their country was in danger—the country which had permitted them to build up a useful and valuable calling in freedom and without any restriction of the independence for which the Americans have always fought.

Now that the victory has been won—through their efforts, just as through the efforts of all loyal Americans—they are beginning to realize that as becomes every American in all emergencies they acted capably and efficiently.

For what would American real estate be worth to Americans under Hunnish domination of the world?

There is no rent, no sales income, no commissions from No Man's Land.

Expect Great Activity In Grand Central Zone

Real Estate Around Times Square Will Also Be First to Feel After-the-War Boom

By ALBERT B. ASHFORTH.

WITH more optimism permeating the real estate outlook than at any other time since 1906 and with a slow but steady change in the attitude of the investing public toward real estate, much interest is being concentrated upon those important centers of the city which it is anticipated will be the first to receive the benefits of an improved sales market.

It seems to me both in the light of past growth and present development that the centrally located business sections of New York City, of which 42d street is the heart, will be one of the first to attract the attention of the largest investment interests.

To account for the remarkable development of the 42d street neighborhood, it is only necessary to contemplate the tremendous changes that have taken place there in the last ten years.

Preliminary plans to develop the Grand Central Terminal were formulated many years ago, and as the acquiring of blocks and blocks of property by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, was gradually accomplished, the realization came to property owners and speculators as to what this acquiring of property really meant, and a gradual absorption of those properties that were in the market followed.

The New York Times purchased and developed a large block at Broadway and 42d street. Plans were shown of an express station of the new subway at 42d street and Fourth avenue. Announcement was made that the Pennsylvania Railroad would run through trains to Herald Square—later changed to Seventh avenue and 33d street. It was also at this time contemplated to carry on the development of the Hudson and Manhattan subways and through-service from 33d street and Broadway to the Grand Central Terminal.

Every day brought news of further development that promised to make the ten streets from 33d to 43d the most active business section of Manhattan Island.

Then followed the purchase and erection of the Aeolian Building on 42d street by the Aeolian Company, the erection of numerous twelve-story commercial buildings, a few twenty-story office buildings which readily found responsible tenants, and it was but a very short time before the dry goods interests realized the importance of locating in this section. One after another of the well-known department stores followed the lead set by Macy at Broadway and 34th street and Altman at Fifth avenue and 34th street, and in the short space of a few years practically every representative dry goods concern of importance located in this section.

The development of the comprehensive transit facilities of Greater New York, all lines of which pass through this section was and has continued to be no small factor in the remarkable development of this thriving business center, and primarily the cause for the unprecedented demand by all lines of business for space in this section.

There probably is no other district in any city in the world that will compare in future activity with the 42d street district, where is located not only the largest representative financial institutions, life insurance companies, department stores, sporting goods concerns, fifty or more theatres, ten or twelve of the largest clubs in America with their magnificent buildings, but practically every commercial line as well as a dozen or more of the highest class hotels in the United States. I venture to predict without fear of contradiction that this section of Manhattan Island ranks first in importance in the business world.

What is going to be the result of this intensive development?

Concentration for years to come of the business activities of this great community. Eventually, increasing values to figures that probably we do not contemplate today. Where there is such a congestion of business there are always concerns, both commercial and financial, who are keen to acquire locations close to their competitors, and this is proven by the constant inquiry for space centered in the 42d street neighborhood.

We must not forget that Manhattan Island is the center of the Western World. While Wall Street will always be the financial center, the neighborhood we are discussing will not only be a second Wall Street, but will also be the greatest commercial center of the Western Hemisphere as there is more money spent for merchandise at retail within a certain radius of 42d street than in any other similar radius on the face of the globe.

Its future, therefore, is certainly assured and it would be foolish to prognosticate to what extent land values and rental space will increase.

IN the article on the new commission rates on real estate transactions, adopted by the Real Estate Board, printed in the Record and Guide last week, a typographical error made the commission on the sale or exchange of real estate in the Borough of Manhattan and the Bronx read "and 1% of the selling price about $40,000." The correct reading should be "1% of the selling price above $40,000."

Business Men to Lay Plans for Reconstruction

Convention of 373 War Service Committees Called at Atlantic City
Next Week to Discuss Peace Problems

WASHINGTON, November 27.—In order to obtain the best thought on the problems of industrial readjustment the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has called group meetings for the reconstruction congress of War Service Committees at Atlantic City, next week.

The program for the congress calls for separate meetings on December 3 of three hundred and seventy-three war service committees, representing as many crafts. At these meetings there will be taken up problems, not only of the individual industries but those of common interest to all. These common problems will be discussed again on the following day when the War Service Committees meet in thirty-five related groups and later when the committees meet in 10 major groups. All of the questions of general interest will be headed in a general session of the conference.

The subject of proper stabilization of business conditions during the period of industrial readjustment following the termination of the war will be one of the most important topics taken up at the congress of War Service Committees, to be held at Atlantic City December 3, 4, 5 and 6 under direction of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Officers of the Chamber believe that the conference in itself will serve as a stabilizing influence.

The question of stabilization of prices will be one of the first considered in relation to the following questions:

Inventories on hand; orders placed at war prices but not delivered; labor costs and conditions; increased taxes; increased rates of interest.

An estimated increased demand for non-war materials restricted during the war period. Will an increased production increase the price of material or labor, or will a controlled redistribution of material and labor from war industries prevent an increase?

Discussion of the practice of the sale of commodities at a price less than the cost of production. Its injury and disturbance on the industries and the ultimate consumer. What methods will remedy this evil?

If the Government sees fit to dispose of used materials and products in the open market, what effect will it have on production and the sale of new goods? At home? Abroad?

If it is not advisable for the Government to sell these goods on hand, either home or abroad, what shall it do with them?

In this connection, what point of contact could business interests have with the Government departments in the sale or disposition of these various commodities?

Questions will be discussed under the following heads: food, heat, light and power, steel, other metals, textiles, wool and wool products, chemicals, leather, earthen products, industrial professions.

W. H. Manss, Director of the War Service Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which has called this congress, points out that the program of the convention provides for the most open discussion of all of the questions that today confront business men.

"We are not urging," said he, "that Government bodies be continued in control of industry, but we hope at this meeting to bring about a composite view of business men's ideas and judgment as to what should be done.

"When this conference was called the armistice had not been signed. Now, however, fighting has stopped and we face the fact that the psychology of war and the psychology of peace are entirely different. In time of war men sink their differences and join in mutual sacrifice for the furtherance of their country's interests. What business men must realize is that the importance of close co-operation and mutual sacrifice is just as important during the period that is to come. We face a chaotic conditions in business due to the fact that the situation has changed so suddenly. Everyone is asking what will happen? Will prices go down? Will wages be reduced? What will happen to war industries and to labor employed by them? There are a thousand other questions unanswered.

"This conference is called by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to take up vigorously and wisely, with an appeal to the American public, these questions, which are of as much importance to the nation as a whole as they are to business interests. We waged this war for justice and for humanity and in the readjustment period we must cling to the ideals and make the sacrifices that business accepted during the war period. This attitude of the units of industry toward the Government, toward each other and toward labor must be maintained."

On December 6 and 7 the National Federation of Building Industries will hold its convention at the Hotel Traymore.

This Federation was organized primarily as a War Service Committee. It is the opinion of the Executive Board and a large number of members that it should be continued to take a part in the readjustments required after the war. It is believed that before the conclusion of that work it will have shown the need for its continuance as a national body.

Valuable suggestions have been made by many persons in the building industries in all parts of the country. These led to the conclusion that the future work of the Federation should be divided among committees under a specially qualified chairman all correlated through the president and aided by the executive staff.

The convention will be presided over by the President, Ernest T. Trigg, of Philadelphia.

Endorse Realty Board's Program

THE first meeting of the allied business and real estate organizations to consider the legislative program of the Real Estate Board of New York was held at the Board Rooms, 217 Broadway. Sixteen organizations were invited and nine sent representatives. Written endorsements of the Board's program was also received from three other organizations. The only item on the list of contemplated reforms considered was the one fixing the tax rate on real estate at two per cent. This was unanimously approved, Mr. J. Sherlock Davis, President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, not voting, as his organization had not yet considered the matter.

The following organizations were represented:

1. Greater New York Taxpayers' Association—Represented by Messrs. S. S. Isaacs, Ignaaz Reich and Isidor Berger.
2. Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce—Represented by Mr. J. Sherlock Davis.
3. Real Estate Owners of the 12th and 19th Wards—Represented by Mr. Henry Bloch.
4. West Side Taxpayers' Association—Represented by Mr. John J. Pheelan.
5. Bronx Taxpayers' Alliance—Represented by Max Just.
6. Real Estate Exchange of Long Island—Represented by Messrs. J. W. Doolittle and John W. Paris.
7. Taxpayers' Alliance, North Shore, Richmond Borough—Represented by Mr. Edward P. Doyle.
8. Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens—Represented by Mr. William B. Parsons.
9. Taxpayers' Association of 18th and 21st Wards—Represented by Mr. Charles F. Leining.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, December 5, 1918, at the same place at 3 p. m., when many additional organizations will be represented. It is hoped that the fullest cooperation will be had and the program approved and enacted by the Legislature.

Mr. Stephen H. Tyng, Mr. Robert E. Dowling, Mr. Laurence McGuire, Mr. A. C. MacNulty, and Mr. Edward P. Doyle will address the members of the various organizations at their regular meetings and a full explanation of the program will be sent out.

Limitation of Tax Levy Upon Realty Approved

Question of How to Provide Other Funds Discussed—Tax on Personal Property and a State Income Tax Suggested

A STATEMENT issued by the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests says:

"There are three phases to every discussion of the proposed tax bills: (1) stabilizing the rate on real estate; (2) providing new revenues to supply deficiency; (3) allowing for necessary increases in future budgets.

"The form of the present agitation has been shaped by the suggestions of the Real Estate Board of New York for a fixed tax rate on real property of $1.75. The agitation, however, dates back to the 1915 proposals for the taxation of tangible and intangible personalty at low rates, which was followed by a general swing during the legislative investigation of 1916 to a general income tax upon persons and corporations. The net result to date has been a small net income tax for most corporations, to be paid in lieu of local taxes on personalty, which now includes machinery.

"1. The limitation of the tax levy upon real property has indisputable merit. It will improve the investment and mortgage markets, it will provide better and cheaper housing for the people, it will conserve the city's credit and revenues. Sound taxation and the public welfare alike demand a wide tax base and direct payment of taxes by every citizen according to his ability, rather than the single tax base which now places upon real estate in New York a burden which is heavier than anywhere else in Europe or America or perhaps in the world.

"The constitutional tax limit of 2 per cent. plus debt service requirements, is so high and is being approached so rapidly that further depreciation in values and decrease in mortgage loans are believed to be certain—they can only be avoided by general rise in values and a larger volume of speculative holding than can reasonably be expected.

"The rate usually mentioned as a proper limit for realty is no lower than the rates of two or three years ago. It is the recent increases which are adding confiscation to injury. The rate suggested indicates a general willingness by real property interests to pay about two-thirds of the amount collected annually by the city in taxes. This is generally admitted to be an equitable proportion.

"2. New sources of revenue have been sought for many years. Some have been added from time to time, usually for state government. Under the nefarious but skilful influence of the New York Tax Reform Association and other singletaxers, practically every such new source of revenue has proved to be an exemption law which in the end increased the tax burden upon real estate.

"Taxation of personal property is at first glance an obvious remedy. The present rate on taxable personalty is obviously unjust. The other extreme of a tax at two or three mills savors more of exemption than of taxation. There are two other flaws in the present argument for classified taxation at low rates:

"(a) The amount of taxable personalty is a matter of pure guesswork. There is no basis upon which to make a dependable estimate. Also, practically every such tax carries its corresponding exemption and it was frankly stated last winter by the man who drew the secured debts and other exemption laws that there is now as large amount of taxable personalty which can be reached. Those in favor of this low rate tax should indicate the types and amounts of personalty which would be reached. There is a growing belief that such taxes are a snare and delusion.

"(b) The tax on personalty does not greatly extend the number of taxpayers who contribute directly to the Government. It does not reach persons who obtain benefits from government in this city and State, but who spend their money elsewhere. Taxable personalty is not distributed according to the wealth of taxpayers, but nearly the reverse, and therefore is not a measure of taxable ability.

"Finally, taxes on personal property have been a failure wherever tried and no scheme has been proposed for New York which has not been tried and abandoned elsewhere.

"The trend of informed discussion is to recognize that all taxes are either on persons, on property or on business. Ability to pay, or taxable ability, is deemed the best measure for the personal and the business taxes. The educational effect of the Mills legislative investigation was to crystallize sentiment of the entire state in favor of the income tax principle. New proof as to the value of the principle is found even in the imperfect system for obtaining war revenues.

"Persons, property and business each receive distinct benefits from the government. To recognize this distinction avoids double taxation and results in proper payments whenever the three are distributed among three different states, as is not uncommon. If a person owns property, conducts business and resides in one state it is quite proper that he should pay for his three-fold benefits, whereas he may be taxed in another locality in which he may own property, or have a business, or a domicile.

"The exact application of these principles to New York cannot be determined until the completion of studies by persons who are familiar with the experiences of other cities and states and nations, and who are now estimating the probable yield of the various plans when applied to New York. Furthermore, any new law will affect the revenues being received under existing laws. Finally, to reduce any plan to the form of a bill ready for introduction is no easy task, as an imperfect bill leads to needless and unprofitable if not destructive discussion in the legislature.

"3. Increases in the cost of government must be expected under our present system of pork-barrel politics. New revenues will be needed until a definite movement is established for realizing that principal source which can be realized only by the application of business methods in government, the dropping of outgrown functions and the general avoidance of waste.

"Our new tax law must conserve public finance as well as property values. The cost of government must be paid sooner or later. Merely to reduce the tax yield does not result in reducing the cost of government. This is the bitter experience of Ohio which adopted a tax limit law without a limitation of expenditure law.

"Flexibility in the tax law might be provided by providing that two-thirds of the tax levy should be borne by real property and the balance made up from the other revenues. Such a feature is eminently fair. It would prevent the confiscatory increases with which New York is now suffering. By way of comparison, the percentage raised by the direct tax on property in practically every other city is lower than that now existing in New York. Some percentages are as follows: Birmingham, 41 per cent.; St. Louis 56 per cent.; Chicago, 56 per cent.; Berlin, 36 per cent.

"The problem therefore appears as a question of the community. Every person who works, resides or owns property in New York, is interested in making it possible to provide new port and other facilities, new conveniences for commerce and finance, new accommodations for industry and a great increase in the quantity and quality of housing for its increasing population. The solution must be in the hands of all classes in the population, and based upon the most competent advice obtainable."

ALL storage restrictions on bituminous coal have been removed by the United States Fuel Administration in conformity to the action of the War Industries Board in cancelling its preferential industries list. Anthracite coal is not affected, however.

All industries located farthest from distribution points, particularly those in New England and in the northwest, are found not only to be well stocked, in accordance with Fuel Administration specifications, but in many cases have surpluses above those amounts.

Amendment of Tenement House Law Proposed

Commissioner Mann Outlines Changes to Enable Conversion of One-Family Houses into Three and Four Apartments

TENEMENT House Commissioner Frank Mann presented his proposed amendments to the so-called "Three-Family House Law," on Tuesday afternoon, to representatives of a number of real estate and building organizations. The amendments were prepared by Commissioner Mann in an effort to place on the statute books a law which will permit owners of three and four-story private dwellings to alter them into three and four-family tenements at a cost that will not be prohibitive and in a manner which will yet conform with the law and the spirit of present-day tenement house reform.

After opening the meeting, Commissioner Mann gave an explanation of his reasons for calling the conference, and he declared that the contemplated alterations of these buildings will not only benefit the real estate interests but the city as well, by virtue of increased rentals, increased market values and the resultant increased taxable values.

Commissioner Mann went on to say:

"The amendment for the four-family house is practically the same as for the three-family house, except that it is based, more or less, upon extending the law to take in the four-story and basement house. We demand all of the things that are in the present law, on the theory that you will find, particularly in Manhattan more than in any other borough, these valuable properties upon valuable ground in neighborhoods where high substantial rentals may be charged and that to make these improvements in compliance with the requirements of the law is not of necessity a hardship but, on the contrary, a real substantial benefit."

Commissioner Mann's recommendations refer to Section 2, of chapter 99 of the laws of 1909, entitled "An Act in relation to tenement houses, constituting chapter 61 of the Consolidated Laws," as amended by Chapter 13 and 454 of the laws of 1912 and by chapter 806 of the laws of 1917, which he seeks to further amend. Only those sections of the law are published which are affected by the amendments, the new matter being printed in italics.

13. A "three-family converted dwelling" is any dwelling (of brick or stone erected in a city of 1,000,000 population prior to April 10, 1901, not over three stories and basement in height, and not over forty-seven feet in depth, exclusive of bay windows and existing extensions, provided one side of such extension is separated for its entire length from side line of lot by an outer court of not less than six feet in width at all points, and the rear wall of said extension is separated from the rear lot line by a yard not less than ten feet in depth, and with no other building on the lot, converted or altered under the provisions of this chapter into a tenement house for not more than three families and not more than one family on any floor. Such converted dwellings shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter) in a city of 1,000,000 or more population which conforms to the following requirements:

- a. If made to comply with all the provisions of this chapter applicable thereto.
- b. If erected prior to April 10, 1901.
- c. If not exceeding three stories and basement in height.
- d. If not exceeding fifty feet in depth plus existing bay windows, or an existing extension, the side wall of which is at least six feet distant from the side lot line at all points and the rear wall of which is at least ten feet distant from the rear lot line.
- e. If there be no other building on the same lot.
- f. If not altered or converted for more than three families in all nor more than one family on any floor.

14. A "four-family converted dwelling" is any dwelling in a city of 1,000,000 or more population which conforms to the following requirements:

- a. If made to comply with all the provisions of this chapter applicable thereto.
- b. If erected prior to April 10, 1901.
- c. If of brick or stone and not exceeding four stories and basement in height.

- d. If not exceeding fifty-five feet in depth plus existing bay windows, or an extension, the side wall of which is at least six feet distant from the side lot line at all points and the rear wall of which is at least ten feet distant from the rear lot line.
- e. If there is no other building on the same lot.
- f. If not altered or converted to a tenement house for more than four families in all nor more than one family on any floor.

In Paragraph 17, relating to bulkheads the proposed change reads, and in three-family converted dwellings, no bulkhead nor stairs leading to the same shall be required, provided such tenement houses and three-family converted dwelling are (is) equipped with a suitable ladder and with a scuttle constructed as provided in section 32 so as to be readily opened and in a manner subject to the approval of the department charged with the enforcement of this chapter.

18. Stairs and public halls. In every tenement house hereafter erected all stair halls shall extend from the entrance floor to the roof, and the stairs and public halls therein shall each be at least three feet wide in the clear; except that in four-family converted dwellings and in tenement houses hereafter erected, etc., and except also that in three-family converted dwellings the stairs and the public halls may be not less than two feet six inches wide in the clear.

21. "Stairways and stairs. Each flight of stairs mentioned in the last three sections shall have an entrance on the entrance floor from the street or street court, or from an inner court which connects directly with the street. All stairs shall be constructed with a rise of not more than eight inches and with treads not less than ten inches wide and not less than three feet long in the clear; except that in three-family and four-family converted dwellings in cities of 1,000,000 or more population existing winding stairs may be permitted, etc., and in four-family converted dwellings the stair halls shall either be constructed of iron beams and fireproof filling, or of reinforced concrete as above provided, or shall be filled in between the floor beams with at least five inches of cement deafening."

Relative to Paragraph 23, concerning entrance halls, introductory matter is retained, but the following changes are suggested on the last few sentences. "The foregoing provisions of this section shall not apply to three-family converted dwellings. In every tenement house hereafter erected, access shall be had from the street to the yard, either in a direct line or through a court except that in three-family converted dwellings a gate may be provided in the fence to the adjoining property in lieu of such access."

In subsequent paragraphs relative to first tier of beams, partitions and plastering behind wainscoting, the phrase "four-family converted dwelling" is inserted as being affected under the plan.

In the section affecting the lighting and ventilation of rooms, the following changes are suggested: "In every tenement house hereafter erected every room, including water-closet compartments and bathrooms, shall have at least one window opening directly upon the street or upon a yard or court of the dimensions specified in sections fifty-two to sixty of this chapter, and such window shall be so located as to properly light all portions of such rooms; except that in three-family and four-family converted dwellings one existing interior room may be permitted on each floor above the basement, provided, however, such room is made to conform to the requirements of section seventy-three of this chapter and except also that one interior water-closet compartment or bathroom on the story below the top story may be lighted and ventilated by an unpierced shaft of the dimensions prescribed in section seventy-five of this chapter. In addition to the above requirement, in tenement houses hereafter erected no apartment of three rooms or less shall extend in depth from the street or yard, as the case may be, for a greater distance than eighteen feet without the intervention of

Harlem's Business Centre Has Held Its Own

Store Rentals and Tenancies on 125th Street Improved During War Period—New Transit Benefits

By B. WALTER BARNETT

DURING the entire war period no street in Greater New York has held its own better than 125th street. I am able to substantiate this opinion by the fact that for nearly three years past there has scarcely been a vacancy on West 125th street and the fact that at the present time there is not one store to be had either on the north or south side of the thoroughfare between Lenox and Morningside avenue, a total distance of about two miles.

The real estate strength of the street is reflected in the stability of the store rents, which range from $3,500 to $15,000 a year, and which have held their own to a wonderful degree. Their tendencies comprise well-known and reputable business firms, including branches of large corporations with main offices in the downtown business and financial centers. The thoroughfare's continued popularity as an amusement center is exemplified in the success of the Victoria Theatre, one of the largest playhouses in the city, which was recently opened on the north side of 125th street between 7th and 8th avenues. The Victoria is playing to crowded houses, as are all of the remaining theatres in the immediate vicinity. The management of the Hotel Theresa, the modern thirteen-story structure covering the entire block front on the West Side of 7th avenue from 124th street to 125th street, reports that it is so crowded for space that people are being steadily turned away.

On the east side of the street renting has also improved since the opening of the new Lexington Avenue subway station at 125th street and Lexington avenue and it is generally believed that this end of the thoroughfare will eventually become a firmly established business section of the city. The Jerome Avenue and Pelham Bay subway lines covering what is destined to be the finest and largest residential section of the Borough of the Bronx do not lead to 149th street and Third avenue as did the old subway system, and 125th street is the first business center reached directly by these new rapid transit mediums.

At the present time there are only five or six stores vacant in the eastrly section of 125th street, which also covers about two miles of store space, and under the circumstances we may consider this an exceptionally small percentage of vacancies. In this section there are several theatres which are being excellently patronized, and one also finds additional branches of large downtown concerns.

One hundred and twenty-fifth street has been particularly blessed with transportation facilities, it being one of three points in Greater New York containing main trunk line express stations for the large railroads, the other two being the Grand Central Terminal and the Pennsylvania Station. It is the only street north of 59th street, extending from river to river, which has the benefit of an express station on every subway and elevated line in addition to having the additional facilities of a great number of surface lines and bus services.

All the Bronx trolley lines have transfer connections enabling passengers to reach 125th street for one fare. At the west end by way of Fort Lee Ferry a large number of shoppers is attracted from Englewood, Leonia, Hackensack, Morsemere and other Jersey residential communities; at the east end of the street we find the terminal of the Harlem River branch of New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. and the Boston and Westchester Railroad which is responsible for bringing hundreds of shoppers to 125th street.

As a result Harlem, today, does not entirely depend upon its local population to support 125th street. On the contrary, I believe that this business center, in common with other similar retail centers of the city, is drawing upon the outlying sections and the suburbs for patronage.

The steady growth of Harlem is perhaps best emphasized by the growth of business of the two post office branches on 125th street. It is rumored that the U. S. Post Office Dept. has just leased for a long term a large plot at Lexington avenue and 126th street on which a large new building will be erected to take the place of the present quarters at the corner of 125th street and Lexington avenue which has become inadequate to handle the increased demands. Business of the west side branch has increased to such a large extent within the past year that the Government has been required to take large abutting space on 126th street for the present extension of the building now housing Station J.

Calls Conference on Tax Questions

AS the initial move in its program to obtain relief for real estate owners this fall, the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, Nathan Hirsch, chairman, announced yesterday that an important public hearing would be called at an early date, at which time an opportunity will be afforded to representative real estate interests and city officials to discuss the general real estate and taxation situation. Mayor Hylan, Comptroller Craig, and President Cantor of the Department of Taxes and Assessments have signified their willingness to be present and participate in the discussion. It is expected that other members of the Board of Estimate will also attend.

Mr. Hirsch, discussing the plan said yesterday: "Everyone concedes that the New York City real estate situation has become serious enough, from the standpoint of over-taxation, to warrant effective measures of relief at the hands of the new State Legislature. The only way in which such relief can be obtained is by the presentation of a solid front at Albany through a delegation, which will not alone represent the sentiment of the best minds on the subject, but will also have the solid backing of the city administration, the real estate organizations and citizens at large. One of the great difficulties that has come up in past years in connection with legislative matters has been the lack of co-ordination with respect to the preparation, presentation and support of real estate bills at Albany. Dozens of bills have been presented by various interests, each seeking to offer its own solution. The result has been unsatisfactory, as evidenced by the fact that New York City real estate situation, affording representative and qualified people an opportunity to present their ideas, and once having obtained the best informed opinion possible, to work out a solution in the form of one or more bills which will have the solid backing of the entire city. I do not think that such a program is impossible of fulfillment, and I believe that such a hearing can be productive of satisfactory results, especially since our aim is the analysis of the suggestions at the hearing and their embodiment in a bill or bills that will be prepared by the Corporation Counsel, for introduction to the legislature at the earliest possible time.

"All those who desire to be heard at the hearing will please communicate immediately with J. P. Lohman, secretary, the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, Room 823, Municipal Building, New York City."

INCREASED activity in the transfer of landed property in the Province of Cape of Good Hope marked the year 1917, the number of transfers being the largest since 1913.

Further, while the number of transfers in 1917 (9,776) was less by 746 than in 1913, the value of the properties transferred was greater by $2,635,794, the total value in 1917 being $35,025,052, and $32,389,258 in 1913. Although during the latter year many of the transfers were due to speculative trading, the purchases in 1917 were primarily for permanent investments. In the principal cities there has been a demand for homes.

The Correct Solution of the Harbor Problem

Former Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith has made in an interview a suggestion which merits the earnest consideration of the port authorities when they meet next Wednesday to consider the development of New York harbor.

Former Commissioner Smith, whose views are given weight by his long experience and unquestioned knowledge of the situation, declares that the Port of New York will never attain its full usefulness until the administration of the port is raised to a position which is impossible so long as it continues simply an administrative department appointed by the Mayor. Mr. Smith takes the logical position that the Port of New York should be administrated by some body representing the Federal and State governments as well as the city government. His reason is the excellent one that until some such plan is adopted there can be no continuity in the administration of this great public facility.

"The four years of the war strained the Atlantic ports to the utmost," says Commodore Smith. "The port of New York particularly has been a vast clearing house through which men and supplies were poured to the battlefields of Europe. Of the 2,000,000 and more men and huge army supplies which our army and navy officers have sent abroad with such wonderful skill and success by far the greater part has passed through New York. Under Federal authority our port facilities have been temporarily moulded and smoothed out to make this possible. Government money has been spent here freely, and at many of the ports which, normally, are rivals for the country's import and export business. With the return of peace we have a twofold problem:

"First and foremost, it will be necessary to hold the gains in port efficiency which Federal control has made possible and to build a lasting organization to work for the future;

"Second, we must see to it that the business which properly belongs to the port of New York be not diverted to other ports through lack of popular understanding of the facilities and capacity of the port of New York."

No one can fail to appreciate the force of Mr. Smith's point that it has been impossible in the past to carry out a consistent policy of port administration because the custom is for the Commissioner of Docks to retire with each change in city administration and for port plans to be passed upon by a frequently-changing Sinking Fund Commission.

It is highly desirable, of course, for the present constituted officials to consider earnestly the several important plans for harbor development which has been submitted to them, and the Record and Guide hopes they will make rapid progress toward bettering conditions. But it hardly seems reasonable to hope that the harbor of New York will attain its destined importance until such time as the entire subject is passed over to some such body as Mr. Smith suggests, representing not merely the City of New York but the State and Nation as well. While it is true that New York City is the fortunate possessor of this magnificent harbor, it is equally true that this greatest of American ports also is national.

Laying the Foundation

Construction work to make up the deficiency in buildings of all kinds due to war conditions has not been started yet but it would be too much to expect that within two weeks of the time when all the energies and the total resources of the country were being devoted to the prosecution of the war the financial and business machine could be made over so as to turn out offices and apartments and warehouses and suburban homes instead of munitions.

It takes time and money and new machinery to reconstruct a typewriter or automobile factory into a gun plant or submarine manufactory. It takes just as long and requires as much money and machinery to return an aeroplane factory to its original use of building street cars or office furniture.

With the impatience characteristic of Americans many are fretting and fuming because twenty and thirty story apartment houses and office buildings are not springing skyward on every vacant lot between the Battery and Spuyten Duyvil, or that big loft buildings are not already replacing the rows of old time residences in the sections once fashionable but now gradually becoming invaded by trade.

The kind of pessimism that finds little encouragement in conditions in the building and real estate field today is similar to that which was rampant for months after the United States entered the war. The grumblers then were sure that almost nothing was being done to put the country on a real war basis, and that if anything was being done it was not being done in the right way. Now these faint-hearted people are finding cause for complaint because there is no activity in real estate and if there is it is badly directed. The outcome of America's participation in the war shows that these pessimists were wrong then and now there is ample evidence that everything that can be done to get the country in shape for normal business is being planned and executed with all despatch possible.

Never before in the history of the country has there been such a gathering of its business men as will be held next week at Atlantic City under the auspices of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce to discuss the many problems now pressing as never before for solution. Some of the foremost men in the country, including cabinet officials, will direct the activities of the hundreds of War Service Committees, now converted into Peace Service Committees, meeting for the first time to act together for the common good of every one in the country. Among those participating in this convention will be the National Federation of Building Industries. Many of the plans for the re-establishment of business, now vaguely outlined, can not fail of being practically defined and put into operation as the result of these conventions. The attitude of the Government in regard to many reconstruction problems will probably be made known early in December.

In the building line it is worth while calling attention to the fact that plans are being drawn for hundreds of operations involving many millions of dollars, held in abeyance until peace came. Stabilization of the labor question is being provided for by the action of the Building Trades Employers in agreeing to make no new contracts during 1919 except at existing scales of wages.

These are only a few of the things which are being accomplished before the actual work of construction can be begun. Imperfect and hasty action will not help matters. The boom will only come when basic conditions are such as to inspire confidence. The foundations for a return of confidence are being well laid but because of the tremendous importance of these rock-bottom conditions the work cannot be rushed.

Are We Downhearted? No!

Whether you believe in luck or not there are very few men who will not agree that it pays to keep up a good front even when things are not running so smoothly as surface appearances indicate or underlying conditions warrant. The psychology of success depends largely in believing in success rather than in harboring fear of failure.

As applied to the present state of business in this country and the world generally, Mr. Thomas A. Edison, who is, besides being the greatest electrician of all times, a very successful business man, and unusually well informed on all the great questions of the day, with a mind of remarkable analytical powers, has expressed himself as follows:

"There are those who fear a business depression. The surest way to bring on a depression of business is to nurture fears and act hesitatingly. We now have a national financial system which is capable of meeting practically any situation that can arise, and we do not need to fear difficulties from that quarter.

"Our farmers have harvested an enormous crop, and the assurance of good prices, together with more plentiful labor, make certain a heavy planting next year. The only thing needed to insure a year of great prosperity is a determination on the part of every business man, big and little, to go ahead with absolute confidence in the future.

"The business men of this country must see to it that employment is provided for our war workers and returning soldiers. We have shown our service stars and worn our Liberty Loan buttons with pride. Let us take equal pride in doing our share to make employment for the men who have worked and fought to win the war."

It ought not to be a very hard matter, with so many reassuring things in the real estate and building fields to bank on, to keep very much alive the idea that good times are in prospect for every one who seizes upon the golden opportunity of the moment.

an inner or outer court adjoining said room, constructed as required by this chapter and in three-family and four-family converted dwellings (in cities of 1,000,000 or more population) no room shall extend in depth for a greater distance than twenty-three feet."

Other suggested changes concern sections relating to windows, in rooms and sizes of rooms and public halls.

Paragraph 144, relative to indexing names recommends a fee for searches. Commissioner Mann's suggestion is that "The commissioner shall have power to charge and collect fees for searches and to make rules governing such charges in all cases where application is made to the department for certification of pending violations."

Former Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy, as secretary of the Tenement House Committee of the Charity Organization Society, in a letter to Commissioner Mann stated that he believed the committee would approve section 2 to amend Section 17 of the law (this amendment refers to omission of the bulkheads); Section 3, amending Section 18, of the law (as to width of stairs and public halls); Section 4, amending Section 23 of the law (as to width of entrance halls and egress from street to yard or providing an exit by a gate in the fence of adjoining yard); Section 7, amending Section 67 of the law (reducing the size of the skylight to 15 square feet, or making it identical with the size required in the new law for three-family tenements).

He believes that the amendment proposed to Section 8 of the law to charge a fee for searches would probably not be opposed. Section 6, amending Section 66 of the law (in reference to lighting public halls by omission of the stairwell and glass panels) has not yet been considered by the committee.

Secretary Murphy believes that his committee will probably oppose Sections 1 and 5. Section 1 amends subdivision 13 of Section 2 of the law. The objections will probably be against the omission of the words "of brick or stone" and also against the increase in depth. Objections to Section 5 amending Section 62 of the law are probably based upon the proposal to permit an interior room and the increase in depth of the room from 20 to 23.

AN increase of 50 per cent. to 55 per cent. in the cost of living for the family of the average wage-earner in the United States during the period from the outbreak of the war in July, 1914, up to the middle of June, 1918, is indicated in a report on War-time Changes in the Cost of Living issued by the National Industrial Conference Board. In a small number of communities where there have been exceptional increases in rent and in cost of fuel, this percentage of increase would have to be raised somewhat.

The increases for the different items were as follows:

Food .....	62%
Rent .....	15%
Clothing .....	77%
Fuel and light .....	45%
Sundries .....	50%
Average increase (depending on apportionment of these respective items in the family budget) .....	50% to 55%

RANDOM NOTES IN THE REALTY FIELD

Lewis Phillips Makes a Suggestion for City Sources of Revenue—A New Assessment Ruling

LEWIS PHILLIPS in a letter to the Record and Guide, suggests a new source of income for the City of New York. Mr. Phillips believes that those people who make their living in New York City and carry off their earnings into other cities, counties or towns, should make their home localities pay something to New York City, which is the source of their wealth. His letter follows:

"Every individual who earns a living in this great Metropolis receives the protection of the city government, whether he resides here or not. In order to avoid the objection which may be raised that no government has a moral right to charge any man or woman for the privilege of earning a living, may I make a compromise suggestion, which is this:

"That each city, county, borough, village or hamlet which houses people earning their livelihood in the City of New York be compelled to make through its county treasurer (who is to keep a roster of such residents), a payment to this city because of the local value attaching to its land through an additional demand for residential and store space. In other words, these cities, counties, boroughs and villages are receiving the benefit of the purchasing power derived and earned in New York City. Of course, the amount to be furnished by the commuting zone territory would be predicated upon the prosperity and taxpaying capacity of the class of dwellers, and would be levied only in those cases where the earning power was derived in New York City."

Assessing New Buildings.

Supreme Court Justice Lehman, in a recent decision in the suit by the Orinoco Realty Company against the Tax Department for a reduction of assessment establishes the fact that a new apartment building, still requiring a cleaning-up process and lacking a certificate of occupancy from the Tenement House Department on October 1, is assessable. The realty company brought suit against assessing the building on the ground that it was not complete on October 1, and under Section 889A of the charter should not have been assessed by the Tax Commissioner. The Court said:

"The status does not provide that the construction of a building must be absolutely completed before it can be assessed for taxation. It may be assessed even though it is still in course of construction where the construction has progressed so far that the building is ready for occupancy. No definite rule can, in my opinion, be laid down as to the stage a building must reach before it is ready for occupancy. Obviously, that depends to a great extent upon the purpose for which it is intended."

Urges New Lien Law.

Magistrate Appleton, who has been hearing all the testimony in the tax lien investigation conducted by the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, in an address delivered from the bench in the Municipal Term Court, urged the passage by the Legislature of a law that will regulate the operations of certain classes of suburban land developers and will protect buyers of small means whose knowledge of real estate transactions is limited and whose natures are trusting. Magistrate Appleton, who has just resigned from the bench to become associated with the legal department of the General Electric Department, said in part:

"A provision should be made whereby every person when he files a deed should be required to have his name and address attached to that deed, and the tax assessors in making a transcript should be compelled to take the name and address of the owner of record, and all the records of the tax assessors and tax collectors should show the name and address of the owner.

"The tax collector should be compelled to send a notice to the owner of record, to the address he gave when the deed was filed. In that way we would do away with so many persons having their property sold without knowledge of it on their part.

"The second phase of the John Doe proceedings concerns the activities of those real estate development companies. I do not think there can be any possible question in the mind of anybody but that the system now followed is an absolutely wrong one.

"It seems to me it is the province of the State to enact laws that would protect these poor investors. When I advocate such a law as that it would seem to me a proper province of the Banking Department to take charge of such developments, and that the money paid by investors should be held by the companies, if not the whole, at least a part of it, in trust for the benefit of those persons who pay."

Realty Division Raises $28,235.

The total contribution made by the real estate division to the United War Fund was $28,235. This amount represented contributions from 275 individuals and firms. Donations which should have been credited to the real estate division were made to other collectors, and if it were possible to obtain these figures the real estate division's total would have probably easily passed the $100,000 mark.

Changes in Realty Firm.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, Charles S. Brown, who has been vice-president of the company since its organization, was made chairman of the board of directors. William H. Wheelock was elected president to succeed the late Douglas Robinson, who died last September. Arthur W. Francis, William R. Buchanan and Simon Newman were elected vice-presidents; Charles P. Donnelly, Jr., treasurer and secretary, and Charles S. Carson, assistant treasurer. All of these men have been connected with the company since its formation, and prior to that time were associated with its predecessors, Douglas Robinson & Company, and Charles S. Brown.

United Elects Officers.

Stewart Browne was re-elected president of the United Real Estate Owners Association at its recent meeting. Victor Weil was elected first vice-president; Walter J. Salmon, second vice-president; Bernard Goodman, third vice-president, and I. Hyman, secretary.

Newark Real Estate Board.

Final organization of the Newark Real Estate Board has been effected. A constitution and by-laws has been adopted, a board of governors elected, and committees appointed. The governors named are:

Louis Schlesinger, Henry Reiss, Philip J. Bowers, Arthur J. Hardt, and Abe Feist, for three years; Louis Kamm, Bertram A. Ham, Robert A. Osborne, Myron W. Morse and Rocco Tortoriello, for two years, and Alfred Popik, Robert B. Stoutenburgh, George F. King, Charles W. Beardsley and Clifton Baldwin, for one year.

Charles A. Miller Elected.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, announces the election to membership therein of Charles A. Miller, counsel of the Savings Bank Association of the State of New York. Mr. Miller is president of the Savings Bank of Utica, one of the largest institutions with loans throughout the State.

Real Estate Review for the Current Week

Holiday Does Not Restrict Business—Increased Demand for Residential Holdings an Encouraging Development

IN spite of the fact that practically two whole business days were eliminated this week on account of Thanksgiving Day (most of the activity on Friday being also limited), the market made favorable progress along well defined lines. The business of the week covered a wide range and concerned itself with diversified classes of properties, in many sections of the city. The well sustained buying movement directed toward the acquisition of downtown business properties, continued to be a permanent feature of the market, although the particular favorable development of the week was a volume of business which reflected a steadily growing interest in residential properties.

The most interesting transaction of the week by virtue of its real estate significance was the sale of a costly Fifth avenue residence to a speculator and its immediate resale for occupancy as a school for boys. Not since the first invasion of Fifth avenue's exclusive residential colony by apartment houses has any transaction been commented upon more than this one. "Millionaire's" row on Fifth avenue which has for so many years held its peculiar position as probably the best known and most exclusive residential community in the world and whose glory has not even been dimmed by the towering multi-family houses which have been erected within its confines, is now being confronted by an entirely new kind of neighbor, namely, a school. Whether the residential strength of the street will be affected by this new class of occupancy is problematical and there has been as yet no intimation as to how the Bovee School for Boys will be received. From a real estate standpoint the sale is important as possibly indicating the beginning of a new trend directed toward the transformation of the character of Fifth avenue.

It will be recalled that some months ago, action was initiated seeking to amend the existing zoning law with regard to heights of buildings on Fifth avenue, and at that time it was said that this movement had for its purpose the beginning of the extensive building campaign which would transform Fifth avenue north of 59th street into a new apartment house center. Vigorous objection developed at that time from the Fifth Avenue Association and other neighborhood interests, and the matter has since been held in abeyance by the Committee of the City Plan of the Board of Estimate.

The increased demand for private dwellings was especially gratifying, in view of the fact that this class of property has for a long time been practically a drug on the market. Coincidentally, came the announcement that effort would be made in the next session of the legislature for the amendment of the tenement house law which would permit the alteration of three and four-story houses which had outlived their usefulness for one-family occupancy and which would be available for alteration into three and four-family tenement houses.

Although this announcement and the increased demand for dwellings of this type was purely coincidental, the fact remains, nevertheless, that if such legislation is enacted an unusual demand should be immediately created for this type of property because it would provide an excellent opportunity for small builders who might not be able to undertake apartment house construction to be put in a position where they would be able to capitalize the existing shortage of residential space in so many parts of the city.

Further analysis of the business of the week reveals another rather encouraging result—the comparatively small number of exchange transactions. The great weakness of the local real estate market within recent years has been the comparative lack of cash transactions, the bulk of the business concerning itself with the exchange of equities which have released little or no new capital into the real estate field. Other elements of more than passing interest in the business of the week reflected the continued presence of the operator and an improved demand for properties of various descriptions in Brooklyn and the Bronx. In the latter borough where the shortage of residential space has resulted in the placing of so many apartment and tenement houses on a profitable basis, a number of investment transactions were made, indicating that confidence in this investment medium is also being steadily restored.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 23, as against 20 last week and 18 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street, was 11, as compared with 6 last week and 8 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th street was 12, as compared with 14 last week and 10 a year ago.

From the Bronx, 15 sales at private contract were reported, as against 9 last week and 13 a year ago.

"School in Millionaire's Row."

Fifth avenue's residential section, popularly described as "Millionaire's Row," which contains the homes of some of New York's wealthiest and best-known citizens, is to have a new neighbor, a school for boys, as the result of a deal just closed. Pease & Elliman sold for Mrs. Julia Seligman, the four-story and basement house, No. 836 Fifth avenue, situated 50.5 south of the corner of 65th street, and being between the house owned and occupied by W. Watt Sherman and Frederick Lewisohn. Other owners on this block are Frank Gould, whose house is at present rented to Clarence Mackay; William Guggenheim and Mrs. James B. Haggin. The house was purchased by Mrs. Seligman's father, Isador Wormser, in 1872, and the property has not been transferred since that date, making it one of the oldest holdings on Fifth avenue.

The buyer, C. Grayson Martin, the real estate operator, has resold the property to the Bovee School for Boys for occupancy. The property is assessed at $200,000 and the transaction is a cash one. This property was formerly a part of the common lands of the City of New York, and was originally leased in 1800 under a perpetual lease, for which the tenant paid 4 bushels of marketable wheat per annum to the city, at which time the plot involved included all of the property between Fifth and Fourth avenues, 64th and 65th streets. In 1816, the city sold the fee and the perpetual lease was canceled.

Mortimer Holdings Sold.

One of the most important deals in the Wall Street section has been closed involving long-held holdings. The Mortimer Building, a nine-story office structure at 9 and 11 Wall Street, corner of New Street, adjoining the Stock Exchange, and the five-story loft at 64 and 66 Nassau Street, between Maiden Lane and John Street, were sold to Robert E. Dowling, president of the City Investment Company, by Stanley Mortimer of Roslyn, L. I.; Eleanor Jay Mortimer, individually and as administrator of the estate of the late Richard Mortimer, and by Mary Eleanor Mortimer, Stanley G. Mortimer, and Wilfreida M. Rutherford, of Tuxedo Park.

The properties have been in possession of the Mortimer family for more than eighty years and have an assessed value of over $1,000,000, the Mortimer Building being valued at $750,000, and the Nassau Street parcel is assessed at $330,000. Julius Friend was the broker.

Philadelphian Sells Lofts.

Isaac Clothier, of Philadelphia, has disposed of one of his properties, the Jefferson Building, at 119 and 121 West 23d street, extending through the block to 112-114 West 24th street. This property, which was held at $500,000, has been sold through Harold L. Lewis to a client of Stoddard & Mark. The property consists of an eleven-story loft and office structure, which is fully rented at rental aggregating about $45,000. It covers a plot 50 by 197.6, and lies between the former Koster & Bial Music Hall property and the Catholic Church of St. Vincent De Paul.

Costly Dwelling Buyer.

The home of the late John M. Bowers, 45 East 65th street, a six-story English basement dwelling, 28 by 100.5, was sold for his estate by Douglas L. Elliman & Co. to Thomas Ewing. The house stands on part of the plots 41 to 45 East 65th street, 56 by 100, which Mr. Bowers and Benson B. Sloane bought in 1909 for the sites of their residences. The Bowers house is said to have cost about $200,000. That property is assessed for $130,000, of which $62,000 represents the land. Adjoining the property to the east, at 47 and 49, are the handsome six-story twin English basement residences of Mrs. James Roosevelt and her son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the United States Navy. A feature of the present transaction is that the purchase price was paid entirely in cash, the property being taken free of mortgage encumbrance.

$250,000 Bronx Sale.

Le Roy Hall, reputed to be the largest apartment house in the West Bronx, has been purchased by Frederick Brown. It is a six-story elevator structure, covering about six city lots at the southwest corner of Fordham road and Valentine avenue. The apartment is directly opposite property bought about a year ago by B. F. Keith as a site for a theatre, and was sold by L. C. Cowen for the 2493 Valentine Avenue Company, the builder. Mr. Brown contemplates installing stores in Fordham road frontage of the building, by which he expects to increase the rental by $10,000 per annum. The property accommodates forty-seven families on an area 110 by 134 by irregular, at rentals aggregating about $27,000, and was held at $250,000.

$275,000 Heights Purchase.

The Morganstern Brothers Syndicate, operators, made an important Washington Heights purchase in acquiring from the Heights Improvement Company, of which Harry Goodstein is president, the Harvard and Princeton, two high-class five-story apartment houses occupying a plot 175 by 115 on the northwest corner of Audubon avenue and 186th street. The structures, which were completed about two years ago, accommodate sixty families, have an annual rent roll of about $32,000, and were held at $275,000.

Four Sales In Year.

Harold C. Mathews has sold, through Douglas L. Elliman &amp; Company, 50 East 61st Street, a 4 story dwelling built on a lot 20x100, between Madison &amp; Park Avenues. This property was sold to a holding company, which will improve it with small apartments, which will be furnished and ready for occupancy by January 1. The sale of this property indicates the present activities in this field. It was sold by the original owner last January to a speculator, who resold it in May at a profit to another speculator, who in turn resold it in June to Mr. Mathews, who resold it to the present buyer for a permanent investment.

Front Street Tenant a Buyer.

The Milligan &amp; Higgins Gelatine Company, the tenant, has bought from the Rhineland estate the buildings which it has occupied for many years at 222 and 224 Front street, between Bee-man street and Peck slip. They are five stories on plot 50.2x70.8, a few hundred feet from the remodeled Fulton Market property. The seller has owned the realty for more than forty years.

Adds to West Side Holdings.

Anna F. Bookstaver has increased her west side holdings by the purchase of 130 West 84th street, a five-story apartment house, on a plot 33.4 by 102.2, from Dr. J. A. Anderson and Ella J. Alsehurst. The buyer holds title to 128, a similar property adjoining, and now controls a plot 66.8 by 102.2. E. H. Ludlow &amp; Co. and John D. Hibbard negotiated the sale. Title was recorded subject to a $35,500 mortgage.

New York Central Buys.

The New York State Realty and Terminal Company (the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad) has added the northwest corner of Twelfth avenue and 131st street to its realty holdings. The property acquired is a four-story cold storage building, formerly owned by Conron Bros., on an irregular plot extending back from Twelfth avenue to the tracks of the railroad.

West Side Church Improvement.

Trustees of the Seventh Church of Christ Scientist have bought from the McIntyre Estate the plot 150 by 100, at 512 to 520 West 112th street, between Amsterdam avenue and Broadway. The site will be utilized for the erection of a church.

Operator Active In Bronx.

Frederick Brown, the operator, who has been prominently identified with real estate activity in the West Bronx, has acquired in a cash transaction the two five-story apartment houses at 2850-2856 Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 198th street, free of mortgage indebtedness, from Charles Kaepfel. The properties have a frontage of 146.6 feet on the Concourse, and 89 feet on the street, now renting for $20,000 and held at $170,000. Philip Meyerowitz negotiated the sale.

PROPOSAL*NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS: Sealed proposals for Coal and Ash Handling Equipment, Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, N. Y., will be received by the State Hospital Commission, Capitol, Albany, N. Y., until 3 o'clock P. M. on Friday, December 6, 1918, when they will be publicly opened and read. Proposals shall be enclosed in an envelope furnished by the State Architect, sealed and addressed, and shall be accompanied by a certified check in the sum of five per cent (5%) of the amount of the proposal. The contractor to whom the award is made will be required to furnish surety company bond in the sum of fifty per cent (50%) of the amount of contract within thirty (30) days after official notice of award of contract and in accordance with the terms of specification No. 3097. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids. Drawings and specifications may be consulted at the Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, N. Y., at the New York Office of the Department of Architecture, Room 1715 Tribune Building, and at the Department of Architecture, Capitol, Albany, N. Y. Drawings and specifications and blank forms of proposal may be obtained at the Department of Architecture, Capitol, Albany, N. Y., upon reasonable notice to and in the discretion of the State Architect, Lewis F. Pilcher, Capitol, Albany, N. Y.

Row of Bronx Dwellings Sold.

Another purchase by Frederick Brown in the Bronx involved holdings of the Coulter Estate, comprising the block front on the north side of 194th street, from Bainbridge to Marion avenue, comprising about thirteen lots. There are seven detached houses on the property which has been owned by the estate for the last twenty-three years and was held at $75,000. Marston & Co. negotiated the sale.

Tenant Buyer on Beekman Street.

Another firm established as a tenant in the downtown district has joined the ranks of property owners. H. R. Lathrop & Company, importers and exporters of drugs, who have occupied the six-story building at 110 to 116 Beekman street, near Water street, for a number of years, has purchased the property from the Estate of Benedict Stewart. The building covers a frontage of 66.8 feet. William H. Whiting & Company negotiated the sale.

Purchase By Riverdale School.

The Riverdale Country School has purchased from the Newton Land Association eighty lots along Fieldstone Road, Riverdale Lane, and the Albany Post Road. They constitute the outside edge of the estates formerly known as the Goodrich and Bicknell property. The school has been gradually acquiring this land since 1914, and the present transaction concludes the operation. The entire plot embraces a large plateau upon which has been erected a large school building upon the one-story plan. The new property will not be developed at once, but the plans are to erect eventually a number of buildings, including a dormitory, and cottages. Joseph P. Day was the broker in the transaction. The owners were represented by George H. Taylor, Jr., as attorney.

Operators Active in Bronx.

The Benenson Realty Company has made four important purchases from the Henry Morgenthau Company. In the Hunts Point section they bought 960 East 163d street, a five-story new-law apartment, 100 by 60, with seven stores, held at $95,000; 938 East 163d street, a five-story new-law apartment on a plot 50 by 112, held at $65,000; in the lower Bronx, 550 East 133d street, a five-story triple flat on a plot 35 by 100, held at $15,000, and 1442 Boston Road, a four-story new-law apartment, 35 by 90, held at $19,000. The buyers paid all cash.

Concourse Corner in Deal.

Elinor Lisson sold the southwest corner of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, opposite Poe Park and located one block south of Kingsbridge Road. The property fronts 75 feet on the Concourse and 112.3 feet on 193d street. On the center of the plot is a two-and-a-half story frame residence. Last month plans were filed with the Building Department by the Absar Realty Company (Abraham Weisman) for erecting a five-story apartment house at the southwest corner of the Concourse and 192d street, 81.7 by 96, to cost $70,000.

$300,000 Locust Valley Deal.

Worthington Whitehouse, Inc., in conjunction with Kenneth Ives & Company, have sold for the estate of the late Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, late chairman of the American Locomotive Company—a country estate at Locust Valley, L. I., comprising 15 acres—one of the show-places of that section. On the property is a new 3-story red brick Georgian Colonial house, designed by Hunt & Hunt, architects; and also a modern stable and garage. The property is west of and opposite the country estate of Mrs. Levi C. Weir and almost adjoins the properties of Paul D. Cravath and W. D. Guthrie, and nearby are the homes of Charles F. Cartledge, A. C. Bedford, Tillman C. Benson, and Walter L. Pate. The property was sold with the house fully and completely furnished and was held at $300,000.

$500,000 Newark Factory Deal.

Probably the largest factory sale on record in New Jersey since the transfer of the Beaver Leather plant, has just been completed through Louis Kamm, Inc. The property just sold is the heavy four-story brick building with two and three story wings at 820-850 Frelinghuysen Avenue, corner Evergreen Avenue, Newark. The purchasers, The Electrical Appliances Manufacturing Corporation will employ at least 2,500 skilled workers and have paid about $500,000 for the plant. The buildings which have just been completed, were erected for the Diehl Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of Diehl Electric motors, now located in one of the buildings of the Singer Sewing Machine Company plant at Elizabeth. The property covers about six acres, having a frontage of 383 feet on Frelinghuysen Avenue and 800 feet on Evergreen Avenue. The buildings already erected contain about 110,000 square feet. There are two railroad sidings serving the property, one on the side and one at the rear, directly connected with the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. This property is at the extreme south end of Newark, immediately adjoining the City of Elizabeth and is surrounded by many new modern plants.

Plan Edgemere Cottages.

The Lewis H. May Co. has resold for J. G. Faron the Norton property consisting of thirty-five lots fronting on Beach 31st street, Beach 32d street and McKinley avenue, Edgemere, L. I., to Theresa King, who will immediately improve with thirty private houses.

A Lamp The Nation Recognizes

Most of the things you buy come done up in packages. And about the first you think of is the familiar NATIONAL MAZDA lamp carton—for few packages have such a country-wide recognition. You'll find the blue carton on the shelves of lighting companies, hardware stores and electrical dealers everywhere.

What's the inference? Haven't you in this fact the most convincing evidence of lamp values?

Colonial MAZDA lamps are "National Quality" lamps. When you buy them you get all that the blue carton stands for. But in addition you get a distinctive lamp service that goes only with the COLONIAL label.

We have all sizes and types to meet any lighting need you may have. Our deliveries are prompt. Why not let us demonstrate our lamp service to you? Call Barclay 5495.

RECENT LEASES.

$500,000 Fifth Avenue Lease.

Douglas L. Elliman & Company have just closed a large lease in the Central Fifth Avenue section. They have secured for the Louis K. Liggett Company, operating a chain of stores all over the country, including over one hundred stores in New York City, the large store and basement at 509 Fifth Avenue, now occupied by C. T. Silver, as an automobile salesroom, just above 42nd Street. The lease, which will run for a long term of years, aggregates close to $500,000, and next to the lease recently made by the same brokers to the National City Company at 5th Avenue and 43rd Street, is one of the largest leases closed in this section. The new store of the Liggett Company adjoins the Fifth Avenue Branch of the Guaranty Trust Company in the Postal Life Building, and has been selected by the Liggett Company because of the strategic importance of this block. The building is owned by the Dyckman Building Corporation and stands on land leased from the Sturges family. The building recently figured in a large exchange of properties scattered throughout the United States. The Dyckman Building Corporation was represented by F. J. Guilfoyle.

Dairy Lessees May Buy.

The Sheffield Farms Company has taken an option to purchase the three-story dairy building at 91 to 99 Manhattan Street, fronting 100 feet by 100 deep, between Amsterdam Avenue and Old Broadway. The property has been leased by the Sheffield Farms Company from the McDermott Realty Corporation, with the purchase option, for five years from Nov. 1, 1918, at $6,000 a year. The purchase price as mentioned in the lease recorded is $120,000, subject to a mortgage for $50,000.

Lease of Hotel Wentworth.

The Wentworth Hotel, 57 to 61 West 46th Street, has been leased for the West Forty-sixth Street Realty Company, Henry C. Bowley president, to the Hubbard Hotel Company, Eliza A. Hubbard, for fifteen years at a reported total rental of $500,000. The broker, William H. McDonald, also sold the furniture of the building. The lessees have been operating the University Hotel for the last fifteen years.

Building Revival Denoted by Many New Plans

Architects and Engineers Preparing for an Early Resumption of Structural Activity Throughout the Metropolitan District

NO more direct or tangible evidence of an early revival of building activity in New York and the sections tributary is possible than the important group of buildings that have been announced by architects as being planned and which will soon be presented for estimates. The list is well diversified and indicates that the movement will be general and not restricted to a limited classification of structures.

Some of the projects were originated before the entrance of the United States into the war and have been held in abeyance until the conditions improved. Others are entirely new and indicate a renewal of confidence upon the part of the investing public as well as the building interests.

Some time ago it was announced that a gigantic hotel project was scheduled to replace the antiquated Murray Hill Hotel building on the west side of Park avenue, 40th to 41st street. The working plans for the thirty-two story hotel that will be erected on this site are now being prepared in the offices of Warren & Wetmore, architects, who planned the Biltmore and Commodore in the same locality. The new Murray Hill Hotel will be operated by the B. L. M. Bates Corporation, John McE. Bowman, president, and will become one of the important chain of hostleries in which Mr. Bowman has a proprietary interest. Although it is not likely that actual construction can be started on this project for some time, it has been stated that the steel tonnage orders have been placed and other preliminary details arranged.

Another contemplated operation that was originated shortly after the war was started and which was unable to proceed on account of the adverse building conditions is the office building that will be erected at 13-27 Broadway, running through to Greenwich street. This operation is to be erected by the Seaboard Realty Company, 101 Park avenue, for the Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., 21 State street, lessee. Preliminary plans for this structure were made some months ago by Benjamin W. Morris, 101 Park avenue, who recently stated that the final working drawings would be started immediately and work commenced as soon as possible.

That there will be a considerable volume of high class apartment house construction during the coming year is indicated by the plans for work of this nature already started and the preliminary negotiations for others soon to follow. Plans were prepared some time ago by the Fred. F. French Company for five eight-story apartment houses, to accommodate a total of forty-two families and scheduled for erection on Riverside Drive at 158th street. Arthur W. Hay is the owner. These plans are now being revised to meet the new conditions brought about by the war and it is probable that actual construction will be started as soon as materials can be arranged for and labor employed. J. E. R. Carpenter, architect and investor, is preparing the plans and specifications for a large multi-family dwelling to be erected in the Park avenue section, and other important operators are preparing to again enter this field of activity.

The Board of Education of the City of New York has practically finished its plans for an immense amount of school house construction which will include both new building and additions and repairs to existing structures. It has been stated that the city will expend in the neighborhood of $9,000,000 for new construction according to program of the Board of Education, and a considerable amount of this work will be started without delay. C. B. J. Snyder, architect for the board, is about ready to call for estimates on construction for a number of these projects, and the award of contracts will follow as soon as possible.

Reports from the sections adjacent to New York City also include a number of important educational projects. These include both those to be undertaken by the various boards of education and buildings for sectarian organizations with educational programs. One of the most important of the out of town public school operations soon to be commenced is the Industrial School for Boys to be erected in Newark at a cost in excess of $500,000, and for which plans are being drawn by John H. and Wilson C. Ely, architects. At Union Hill, N. J., another large school is being planned, and it seems now as though this form of construction would be an important phase of the coming building movement.

One of the largest single operations scheduled for the Metropolitan district at the present time is the terminal development that is contemplated at Port Richmond, S. I., and for which plans are being prepared by H. McL. Harding, 52 Vanderbilt avenue. According to the preliminary plans this project will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500,000, and will involve the construction of a number of twelve-story reinforced concrete warehouses, one-story concrete and steel sheds, power plant, etc., on a property containing approximately thirty-four acres. This work will probably be presented for estimate early in 1919.

Already the effect of the cessation of hostilities has been experienced by the building interests of the city through the marked improvement in the situation as applied to the erection of small houses, for one and two families. There has been a considerable amount of this type of building brought out during the past week and architects report that the outlook is particularly bright. The demand for housing accommodations is realized by almost everyone and need not be commented upon other than to the effect that it is likely to exist for some time to come, and that all of the building that can be accomplished during the coming year is not going to supply the lack of dwelling space. There is ample opportunity for a great volume of dwelling and apartment house construction in all boroughs of New York City.

How the Tenement House Law Is Being Evaded

SO CALLED three-family houses in Brooklyn have been erected to the number of three thousand or more for the purpose of evading the tenement house law, according to the Tenement House Commissioner, Frank Mann, who at the conference held on Tuesday in connection with his proposed new amendment to the so-called three-family house bill, diverged from his subject in order to register a vigorous objection to the practices of architects and speculative builders who have been willing to erect structures of this type. Commissioner Mann said:

"You have known the tendency in the last fifteen years, or practically since the Tenement House Law has been in existence, of architects and speculative builders who are ready and willing to erect the alleged three-story two-family house, particularly with a store on the ground floor, ostensibly for the use of two families. So far three thousand or more of these houses have been erected since the law went into effect. I do not believe I am exaggerating when I say that 99 per cent. of those that have been erected were erected with a view of evading the Tenement House Law. I am not exaggerating when I tell you that 75 per cent. of them demonstrate the truth of it. About 75 per cent. of those houses were immediately after erection occupied by three families. If there was a store on the first floor, a partition in the rear divided off two or three rooms and gave them not only an opportunity but an incentive to put in another family. This has been due to the fact that the people who erected that class of house tried to get away with $1,200 or $1,500 that would be entailed if they built real three-family houses in accordance with the Tenement House Law, which would be a benefit to all of the community.

"The man who built the house was the only one who derived benefit from it, the victim was the purchaser, because when he put three families in the house he found violations filed against it. This has been a real source of annoyance here in the Department. In some cases people had to be brought to court; tenants were required to move out, and sometimes the house was vacated. The owners complained that they could not rent the stores unless they could rent the rear for living purposes. Of course there are few of these houses bought to-day. The effect of it has been not only a source of worry and annoyance to owners but it has also affected real estate and real estate values, for the houses were built promiscuously throughout Brooklyn and Queens on the highways and byways and out of the ways where stores were no more necessary than a zoological garden is necessary in this Department. They have depreciated store rentals; they have taken business from business centers where it was formerly located. They have depreciated the value of property and rentals; something must be done to stop a continuation of it."

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

CURRENT interest in the building situation chiefly concerns the number of important operations for which plans are now being prepared and which will within a short time be presented to the contractors for estimates. Quite a number are projects that were planned before the war and held over owing to the adverse building conditions, lack of labor and the urgency of the Federal building program. In a number of respects the building conditions have improved since the signing of the armistice and the removal of restrictions on construction, and prospective builders are making haste to get their work started with as little delay as possible. Construction costs are unchanged, and according to the consensus of building opinion they will not be lowered to any great extent within the next five years or more. Material prices are expected to remain substantially at their present high levels and the wages of labor, both skilled and unskilled, will not be decreased materially.

Notwithstanding the existing high building costs, owners will go ahead with their operations wherever possible because of the great demand for space in buildings of almost every description. The demand is considerably greater than the supply for small dwellings, apartment house accommodations and manufacturing and commercial space. Rentals for all kinds of space are higher today than ever before and will remain at the present levels for some time to come. The high rentals now obtainable are the prime reasons for the anxiety of owners to construct their proposed buildings, as these make a profit on an investment possible despite the initial high cost of the structure.

The building material markets have been almost uniformly quiet during the past week. The week of the Thanksgiving holiday is generally a dull one and this year was no exception. Throughout the local market there is, however, a better feeling, influenced by the fact that a revival of construction is certain. Inquiries for materials and supplies have been received with greater frequency than for many months past and a number of important orders have already been placed for materials desired for new and important operations.

Building commodity prices are uniformly firm and unchanged.

Material producers report a considerable improvement in the labor situation that is gratifying news to the industry, as one of the prime factors in the existing high price levels has been the scarcity of labor and the extremely high rate of wages demanded, which resulted in the advanced production costs and increases to the consumer. Although an improved labor situation will not immediately cause a drop in the prices of building materials, it will make increased production possible which will carry with it a reduction in overhead.

Common Brick.—The market was quiet owing to the interruption by the holiday, but there were a number of inquiries that denote a materially increased volume of business within a short time. Nine cargoes of common brick arrived from up-river during the week and eight were disposed of. Prices are firm and unchanged, ranging from $13.50 to $14 a thousand, in cargo lots, alongside dock. There is no prospect of a drop in brick prices and the current level is likely to hold until building activity improves and brings with it an increased demand. Then a slight increase is looked for, but it will probably not materially affect the market. Brick manufacturers have recently been able to obtain a sufficient amount of fuel for their purposes and have commenced burning the brick made last summer and stacked pending the arrival of coal.

SUMMARY.—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Friday, November 29, 1918. Condition of market: Demand fair; prices unchanged. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $13.50 to $14 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 9; sales, 8. Distribution: Manhattan, 4; Brooklyn, 4.

Structural Steel.—Quite a number of important building operations are being planned for the Metropolitan district and their progress will depend largely upon the steel situation and the ability of the prospective builders to obtain tonnage requirements without delay. There has been a feeling that with the war orders completed or canceled that steel for building purposes will be available in any reasonable quantity.

Lumber.—The lumber situation locally has not changed during the past week. The demand has been active in both wholesale and retail departments of trade. The prospects for a great revival of structural activity during the coming spring and summer has changed the attitude of the industry, and preparations are now being made to handle the immense volume of business that will come as a direct result of increased building. For more than a year the lumber markets have had little demand from building sources owing to the many conditions that made construction on anything but a limited scale almost impossible. At the present time, however, it appears as though the next few months would see a marked change in the building situation, not only locally but throughout the entire country, with a consequent speeding up of activity in the markets for materials and supplies. Already inquiries for the requirements of a number of important contemplated projects have reached the market and plans for others are in progress and likely to be out for estimates within a short time. Lumber prices are generally firm, and there seems to be no indication of a recession from the present levels for a long time. A marked increase in the demand would have a tendency to stiffen prices all along the line.

Window Glass.—Glass production has been curtailed to such a serious extent during the last manufacturing season that prices have advanced to inflated levels as the result of the scarcity. Local jobbers have but an extremely limited amount of stock on hand and the factories practically no reserve. The resultant condition was forecasted some time ago when the first announcement of the curtailment was issued. Recent developments have brought no change, and at the present time there is only a limited probability for better conditions during the coming producing season. Labor continues to be a source of anxiety to the glass producers and the fuel problem is a most serious one. Unrestricted markets and an unprecedented demand for glass, brought about by a strong revival of building construction, would naturally cause glass prices to increase further and might even be responsible for a famine in this commodity.

Electrical Supplies.—The Government recently announced that it was not disposed to cancel its contracts with producers as long as there remains a supply of raw materials accumulated for the carrying out of these contracts. Restrictions on the production of electrical supplies and appliances are being gradually removed and better shipments to the trade may be anticipated soon. The labor situation is steadily improving, as the munition plants are releasing a considerable number of employes who are seeking their former occupations. Prices for electrical apparatus remain steady and there is no present indication of a material change.

Wire Products.—The slackening of Government orders has changed the outlook for the consumers of wire and wire nails. Factories that but recently were engaged to one hundred per cent. of their capacity on direct Government work are now in a position to accept other business. While there has not been sufficient time as yet to make predictions for the future, there is every reason to anticipate better deliveries and more generous stocks than were obtainable for many months in the past. The demand for wire nails has been heavy and will increase materially with a revival of building operations throughout the country.

Analysis of City Buildings.

A study of building operations in the larger cities of the country for 1917 was undertaken by the United States Geological Survey, as a part of the chapter on clay-working industries in the report of the mineral resources of the United States. The study was restricted to cities that had at the last Federal census a population of 35,000 or more. Efforts were made to obtain detailed information from 150 cities. From five cities no satisfactory data were obtained. From sixteen cities only totals for building permits could be obtained. But from 129 cities sufficient detail was received, from which to prepare a table, showing the classes of buildings.

The grand total shows that in the 129 cities 240,936 building permits were issued in 1917 at a total cost of $632,694,952. Of these, 166,909 buildings, costing $168,290,958, or 26.59 per cent., were wooden buildings. Of these wooden buildings, 69,881 permits, with cost of $13,915,630, or 20.85 per cent. of the grand total, were for new buildings. There were 67,534 permits with costs of $25,961,725, or 4.10 per cent., representing additions, alterations and repairs. Miscellaneous wooden buildings included 28,690 permits, with cost of $8,487,593, or 1.34 per cent.

Fire-resisting buildings were divided as follows: Brick or hollow tile, new, 28,219 permits, costing $271,683,008, or 42.94 per cent.; brick or hollow tile additions, alterations and repairs, 26,294 permits, with cost of $50,464,669, or 7.98 per cent.

Stone buildings included the following: New, 119 permits, cost $2,718,391, or 0.43 per cent.; additions, alterations and repairs, 279 permits, cost $1,870,777, or 0.30 per cent.

Concrete buildings, new, 2,685, cost $61,218,165, or 9.67 per cent.; additions, alterations and repairs, 2,736 permits, cost $5,293,135, or 0.84 per cent.

Steel skeleton, new, 552 permits, cost $51,246,332, or 8.10 per cent.; additions, alterations and repairs, 791 permits, cost $7,194,029, or 1.14 per cent.

Miscellaneous fire-resisting buildings, 12,352 permits, cost $12,715,488, or 2.01 per cent.

The fire-resisting buildings total 74,027 permits, with cost of $464,403,994, or 73.41 per cent.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

Major General Goethals has been placed in charge of adjusting cancellation of War Department contracts. These adjustments and cancellations will be made in accordance with the views of the War Industries Board, and only orders given since October 1, or those regarding which the contractor states in writing that no disturbance of labor will be caused may be cancelled without reference to General Goethals, it is stated. Contractors are cautioned, however, that no new labor may be employed on pending war work, and that no new subcontracts shall be let without the approval of General Goethals.

Arthur R. Calvo, for about five years manager of sales for the Permutit Company, has resigned to become an officer and director of the Hercules Engineering Corporation and its affiliated interests, the Electrolytic Engineering Corporation and the Technical Products Company.

E. L. Williamson has lately become assistant engineer for the Degnon Contracting Company in connection with its contracts with the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York.

Nicholas Serracino, architect, recently moved his offices from 1170 Broadway to 507 Fifth avenue. Mr. Serracino graduated in civil engineering from the Royal University of Naples, and announces that in addition to the execution of architectural work he will also enter actively in the field of structural engineering.

A. E. Nast, architect, who closed his offices at 546 Fifth avenue some time ago in order to devote his entire time to Federal duties as engineer on Government construction work, announces that he has reopened his office and resumed his practice.

Sarco Company, Inc., 233 Broadway, manufacturer of thermostatic radiator traps, steam traps, etc., recently announced the establishment of a branch office in the Healey Building, Atlanta, Ga. The new branch office will be under the management of C. R. Dunwoody.

Hoffman Specialty Company has established its headquarters at 512 Fifth avenue, New York, where it has maintained its Eastern branch office for some time past. George D. Hoffman, president and treasurer, and E. S. Storms, vice president, will be active in the Eastern field and located in the New York office.

Milliken Brothers Manufacturing Company, Woolworth Building, New York, recently organized to succeed Milliken Brothers, Inc., has purchased the plant of the James H. Young Stone Co., 136th street and East River, for its proposed new works. The structure, which is of mill building type, with about 40,000 sq. ft. of manufacturing area, will be equipped as a fabricating works for building construction and the manufacture of transmission and radio towers, steel poles and other all-steel specialties of the company. It is equipped with an overhead electric traveling crane. An adjoining plot has also been secured, making a total of about two acres of property, with water and rail facilities. A galvanizing plant is projected for steel transmission towers and other products. In connection with its operations the company will manufacture its standardized truss unit buildings, designed by J. E. Jennings, vice-president and secretary, for general industrial service, structures of this type having been heretofore largely devoted to Government work. C. T. Clack is president and Robert Grant treasurer of the company.

Leading Business Men Take Up Peace Problems

Under Direction of U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Plan for Readjustment of Internal and Enlargement of Foreign Trade

Atlantic City, December 5, 1918.

READJUSTMENT not reconstruction is the designation of the period upon which the United States is entering, adopted by the thousands of representative business men assembled in convention here this week to study and solve post-war problems. At this writing it is not possible to more than indicate the course upon which this readjustment is to be carried out. But there have been some significant pointers that a complete return to all the methods of doing business which were in operation before the war is not anticipated nor encouraged. The dominant idea, voiced by every speaker and echoed by the entire assemblage, is that a new era has been entered upon in which at last some of the conditions prevailing only two or three years ago have been materially altered and that these changed conditions, together with the knowledge acquired and the lessons learned during the war, will enforce different standards in the conduct of business in the years to come.

Never before has there been in this country such a gathering of leaders in the commercial world as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has succeeded in bringing together here for a four-day conference. There may have been as large assemblies in point of numbers but none before so thoroughly representative of every phase of business, and in which the delegates were of such commanding importance. Atlantic City is famous for having been the meeting place of large bodies of men called together for the purpose of conference or action on various questions ranging from business to religion but usually restricted to one or a few lines of inquiry and resulting in comparatively limited procedure. These occasions have usually been part business and part junket, with the latter feature predominating.

But it was evident the first day of this convention that the only thought in the mind of every man was to get to work upon the program outlined by the officials of the Chamber of Commerce, and to effect, if possible, at the earliest moment, a broad gauge scheme for bringing back to normal conditions a business world that had been so seriously upset by the events of the last four years.

While the convention was called by the Chamber of Commerce, it is not a meeting of that body. Its membership is composed of the business men who formed themselves, in trade units, into War Service Committees to assist the Government in handling its war problems by expert advice and collaboration. There are 381 of these committees, and the Chamber of Commerce, in planning the convention, divided them into 36 groups of related industries. Practically all of these War Service Committees are represented at the convention, there being between four and five thousand men in attendance who have the right to take part in its deliberations. Among the principal groups are those producing or manufacturing building materials, and these interests have formed the Federation of Building Industries, which will hold meetings later in the week.

Whether these War Service Committees will continue to work on peace problems, or will be formed into an organization with central directing officials, or whether their future activities will be merged into and be controlled by the Chamber of Commerce, is as yet undecided. But the latter plan is more likely, because the Chamber of Commerce has now in organization and membership become recognized as an essential and strong factor in the business establishment of the country. If the War Service Committees decide to work within its organization, it can easily become extremely powerful.

What makes this convention particularly notable is that the delegates are the really leading men in their respective lines. Presidents and Vice-Presidents and General Managers of Companies, the heads of firms, not the second or third rate employes of these concerns, have come together because of their desire to know at first hand what the other men in their lines of business were thinking as to conditions brought about by the sudden cessation of hostilities and the no less sudden plunge of the world into an unprepared-for peace. It is not to be disguised that the prevailing feeling in the early hours of the convention was one of pessimism. This was due to the fear of impending labor troubles; of the overhanging menace of large supplies of raw and manufactured goods in the Government store houses, which might be dumped on the markets with demoralizing effect; of the uncertainty as to the terms under which cancellation of Government contracts would be effected; of the lack of knowledge as to cost of products and materials when Governmental restrictions were removed and to many other unanswered questions, which until they are solved, act as a bar to the resumption of business on the former basis.

This feeling of pessimism was not allayed during the hundreds of meetings held the first day of the convention by the different groups of men. For one who had anything good to report there were a dozen who could argue and prove to his own satisfaction, and generally to that of his hearers, that never were things in such bad shape. These statements were generally of local or personal conditions. In the aggregate it seemed as if the whole country was on the verge of panic and ruin—with Bolshevism lurking in the background.

These meetings were held for the purpose of getting facts upon which to base suggestions to the convention, or to its committees, as to what action should be taken to as speedily and thoroughly as possible reconstruct the business of the country on a peace basis instead of that of war.

It was in this lugubrious frame of mind that the delegates assembled on Wednesday morning to listen to the keynote speech of Mr. Harry A. Wheeler, President of the Chamber of Commerce. The first thing Mr. Wheeler said was that this was not a reconstruction problem but only a readjustment operation, which in his opinion was an entirely different thing. What was apparent was that the majority of those who listened to him immediately fell in with his idea and lost a large part of their timidity and sense of helplessness. Readjustments in business are of every day occurrence—reconstruction work is another and a very much more serious proposition. The fact that the particular readjustment that this country has to face is a rather heavy one and far more important than it has ever had to undertake only made it a more attractive one for the men versed in the business of finding out how to do things so as to overcome unforeseen obstacles. Charles M. Schwab elucidated this idea in a convincing manner.

Mr. Wheeler made a distinction between the world-wide problems of reconstruction and our national ones of readjustment and declared that it was necessary, of course, in providing for the latter to take into consideration the former—

"The footing or foundation stone of political and economic reconstruction will be laid in the peace treaty," said Mr. Wheeler.

Harry A. Wheeler on the Value of Combination in Business

AN important problem of readjustment is the question of whether the right to combine, permitted in foreign trade under the Webb-Pomerene bill, should, by amendment of our trust legislation, be extended to domestic operations.

Under the supervision of those departments, boards or administrations charged with the direction of production and distribution of food, fuel, and war supplies, co-operation, as between the units of a single industry, and between separate industries, has been encouraged quite in violation of federal and state laws prohibiting such relationships. Many of these associations have proved of great value in speeding up production, in conservation of materials, labor and transportation needed for war purposes, and none, so far as I know, has been found to contravene the public interest.

One of the by-products of the war has been the demonstration that combinations, under proper federal supervision, may be safely and advantageously permitted. Is it fair, therefore, that we should seek answers to the following questions:

Have not the agencies of the Government controlling combinations of industrial units during the period of the war been constructive rather than repressive during the war period?

Have the combinations during this period been detrimental to public interests?

Should devices making for economy, and possible only where freedom to co-operate is extended, be continued into the period of readjustment in order that their beneficial effect may be felt upon the cost of living and upon the greater ability to meet competition in the world's markets?

Must a federal agency or commission controlling co-operative relationship be repressive in its very nature, or can it be constructive without inviting abuse of its constructive effort?

Does not the period of readjustment and the experiences of the war make opportunity for this conference to properly suggest consideration by Congress of all statutes constituting our anti-trust legislation?

"Men of business may not be regarded competent advisers in matters of diplomacy and statecraft as affecting political reconstruction, but as a corollary to this assumption, the diplomat or statesman may not be regarded as a wholly competent adviser in matters of economic reconstruction. That these two phases of the problem will share equally in the peace negotiations, no one may doubt.

"Bad diplomacy has been responsible for much of the world's ills. Commercial relationships have been sorely strained because they were intermingled with political intrigue, but now, on the one hand, old barriers have been broken down by the alliances and associations of war, while, on the other, new barriers have been raised by enmities resulting from conflict between nations formerly on a friendly footing. These new alignments merit a new brand of diplomacy and diplomacy may well take a lesson out of the Book of Commerce and by applying modern commercial ethics to diplomatic relations learn how much easier it is to deal simply and directly than by its devious parts and labyrinths of evasion and deceit.

"Failure to deal generously in the distribution of raw materials will seriously impede the industrial restoration of nations not fortunate enough to possess basic materials of their own in surplus for trading purposes.

"Should not the United States lead in proposing an International plan for rationing basic materials and stabilizing their cost so that the temptation to selfishly profit by the original ownership and control shall be replaced during the period of reconstruction by a broad recognition of the needs of all nations to re-establish their productive power under as little restraint and as rapidly as the circumstances may permit?

"Such a plan of rationing is not a function of the Government exclusive of the aid and counsel of those expert in handling these commodities. Making the plan and carrying it into effect should be left to those who best know the processes of production and distribution, with only such government participation as may give official sanction to the plan and provide the regulation that will assure fair dealing and reasonable prices."

Mr. Wheeler suggested the creation of an advisory industrial commission, to go to Paris during the peace parleys, with the members of which the Peace Delegates might take counsel as occasion arose. He also proposed the formation of an expert commission to handle the reversion to the regular channels of trade of the large amounts of machinery and raw materials in the possession of the Government so that new production might not be seriously impeded.

President Wheeler's speech disclosed to the assembled business men that their troubles were largely self created and largely accentuated when the isolated and selfish point of view was allowed to prevail. In the broader vision what seemed insurmountable became dwarfed. Combination, which had won the war, could Find and seize hold upon all that science has said or can say concerning industry. It was largely because Germany made her industries the operating end of her science that her commerce grew so fast and powerful in the years before the great war. It was more German science than German wages that made her competition dangerous. The responsive power of well-paid and contented labor to far-sighted leadership in industry is the greatest force in production, and happy are they who have it behind them.

Charles M. Schwab on the Democracy of Capital and Labor

I AM one of the men who believe that the only foundation upon which any of these things can permanently rest is the economic use of everything, whether it be labor, material, manufacture or what not. Any foundation of organized labor or capital that is on a false basis must fail. We started in some twenty years ago on a series of exploitations that many people called trusts. There were many such concerns organized that had as their prime motive the artificial idea of either restricting production or increasing the selling price. You have seen them, one after the other, fail and fade away. That was on a wrong basis. Our Congress in Washington, realized it, and rightly and justly took steps to correct it. What has been true of capital will be equally true of labor, and, therefore, the education of the American laboring man must be to have him realize that his permanency and success, and the success of the nation, will depend upon labor conditions and capital conditions that are founded on economic principles first of all.

I am not opposed to organized labor. I believe that labor should organize in individual plants or amongst themselves for the better negotiation of labor and the protection of their own rights; but the organization and control of labor in individual plants and manufacturing, to my mind, ought to be made representative of the people in those plants who know the conditions; that they ought not to be controlled by somebody from Kamchatka who knows nothing about what their conditions are. In the years gone by I seriously doubt many times if labor has received its fair share of the prosperity of this great country. We, as manufacturers, have got to open our eyes to a wider vision of the present and the future with reference to our workmen. We have got to devise ways and means by which capital and labor, that have so often been termed synonymous shall share equally, not in theory, but in practice. We have got to devise ways and means of education. We must not only talk about these things, but we must do these things. We have got to realize that many unjust demands will be made by labor as they probably have been made by capitalists and employers in the past. That is one of the lessons this great war has taught us—true democracy. The thing we have to do is to teach, not patronize, to educate and have the American laborer know and feel that he can stand with his head in the air, as you can and as I can, and say with pride: "I am an American citizen."

That is what I feel is our duty, as manufacturers now, if we want to preserve the situation in America. We have to study it with utmost care. Each manufacturer must study his own case and his own situation from his own standpoint and must know his own condition. There can be no general rule that will be applicable to all. We ought to urge a continuance of work in every direction. Matters will adjust themselves industrially in this country sooner or later by the natural course of events, but what we want to prevent is that sudden slip of the cog which will give us a social jolt that may be dangerous to our industries for years to come. We must be patient. We must go along with small or no profits if necessary. We must bend every effort to keep our employes busy, employed and satisfied. They must be made to realize the situation as we see it and be content to help us in that development. We must get closer together with our work people. We must listen with patience to their side of the story, and we must induce them to listen with patience to our side of the story. The day of autocracy in government and labor has gone by. It is the day of democracy in which we now stand shoulder to shoulder for the protection of our mutual interests and above all for the protection and glorification of this great and glorious country of ours.

The message which I have for you is a general one, but if I can get into your hearts and minds the spirit that I have in my own, that I have learned from the lessons of this war, as most of you have learned them equally with me, I shall feel that I have accomplished much. I would impress upon you that we must face a new condition of affairs; that we must work out the problems connected with it; that we must expect troublous times and difficulties in the working out of these problems; but, above all, we must plunge ahead with the confident belief that the business, industrial and manufacturing interests of the United States are going onward and upward in spite of any condition that may arise in this great country.

bring about a peaceful state where chaos was expected.

There was time for the realization of these facts to begin to influence the collective spirit of the convention before it reassembled to listen to Mr. Charles M. Schwab, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and Chairman of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Mr. Schwab had a good deal to say about the need of building up the foreign trade of the country and the necessity of retaining the 8,000,000 tons of ships we now own and building 10,000,000 tons more next year.

What was of more immediate importance was that Mr. Schwab built upon the ground work accomplished by Mr. Wheeler before him.

"I am an optimist," he declared "and I believe in borrowing all the money I can get hold of and putting it into smoke stacks and chimneys and boilers and rolling mills."

But it was his characterization of the American business man that scattered the shreds of pessimism that still remained.

"The men in business in the United States are not the men who are working for money alone," said Mr. Schwab. "The chief pride of American character is successful accomplishment. It may be measured by the dollars that go into his coffer, but the real throb and thrill of pleasure that comes to his mind is one of successful accomplishment. Let us go home with our minds and hearts filled with determination that we American manufacturers and American business men are going to have successful accomplishments, that we are going to have it in an honorable way, and that we ask our great representatives in Washington, from the President and the Secretary of Commerce down, to help American business men sustain the prestige of the American nation, and that we pledge ourselves to treat fairly with that great army of workmen who must share with us the prosperity and happiness of this great country of ours."

The enthusiasm for commercial idealism generated under the leadership of Messrs. Wheeler and Schwab was somewhat dampened later when the report was received that the French Chamber of Deputies had taken steps to abrogate the "favored nation" treaties.

After reading the cable announcing this news Mr. Wheeler said that the action, if true, was to be regretted at this time.

Secretary William C. Redfield called attention to the practically unknown and little used facilities of the Department of Commerce for aiding business men by the practical application of science to manufactures, and to the great help which the department could give

Commitments for Buildings Show Increase

Dodge Company Statistics Indicate That the Totals for 1918 Are Considerably in Excess of Past Years of Record

DESPITE the popular impression that the current year has been a period of extreme dullness for the building interests of the country the total value of the commitments for building and engineering operations for the first eleven months of 1918 is considerably greater than the total for any similar period during the past nine years of record. A study of the table of comparative statistics compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company, which gives the total amounts placed in new construction work from 1910 to 1918 inclusive, shows that the total for the first eleven months of the current year is $1,631,929,000, which is $104,559,000 in excess of the total for the same period of 1917 and $387,930,603 greater than the figure for 1916.

The totals given in this statistical table are for the construction of building and engineering projects in the States north of the Ohio and east of the Missouri Rivers, and include all of New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia, Ohio, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and portions of eastern Kansas.

Although the conclusion of an armistice has brought active hostilities to an end there yet remains a considerable volume of Government building to be accomplished, as indicated by the fact that of the total amount set apart for construction during the eleven months of this year 33 per cent. is for direct Federal account. In addition a large part of the balance was for construction that would indirectly assist in winning the war. Naturally there will in future be a decided falling off from this percentage, as the Government has already abandoned a number of its contemplated projects and ordered work stopped on others that had been commenced.

Figures showing the total amounts placed for building and engineering projects, from January 1 to December 1, for the past nine years are as follows:

Contracts Awarded, 1918.....	$1,631,929,000
" " 1917.....	1,527,370,000
" " 1916.....	1,243,998,397
" " 1915.....	857,190,100
" " 1914.....	677,920,300
" " 1913.....	798,117,500
" " 1912.....	803,391,500
" " 1911.....	735,283,813
" " 1910.....	756,284,931

For what is generally considered as the local territory or the Metropolitan district, including New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, the total for the first eleven months of 1918 shows a marked falling off from the figures of one year ago, which were the highest of the nine years of record. The total amount placed in this district for building and engineering construction for the current year was $249,188,000, which when compared with the record figure of $316,014,000 for 1917, shows a drop of $66,826,000 for this year. The year 1917 was the banner period, when the total amount expended for structural work is considered and 1918 takes second place. Of the total of the contracts awarded in the local territory for the current year 37 per cent. of the amount was for direct Government work in connection with the military program and included the erection of cantonment additions, base hospitals, warehouses and other projects of an essential military character.

The Dodge Company figures for the first eleven months of the past nine years for the local territory are as follows:

" " 1917.....	316,014,000
" " 1916.....	255,381,500
" " 1915.....	155,154,500
" " 1914.....	121,598,000
" " 1913.....	235,694,500
" " 1912.....	211,282,500
" " 1911.....	215,839,500
" " 1910.....	233,081,000

Of all the separate territories listed in the statistics

none show a greater percentage of increase for the current year than does the one which includes the cities of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. In this section the total for the first eleven months of 1918 reached the sum of $388,455,000, which was $173,801,000 in excess of the same period of one year ago. Government construction was mainly responsible for the immense total shown by this territory, as of the entire amount 45 per cent. must be credited to Federal account. The full territory involved in these figures includes Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, and Virginia.

The figures for the first eleven months of the past nine years for the territory contiguous to the National Capital are as follows:

Contracts Awarded, 1918.....	$388,455,000
" " 1917.....	204,654,000
" " 1916.....	150,046,000
" " 1915.....	90,905,000
" " 1914.....	81,195,000
" " 1913.....	83,441,000
" " 1912.....	132,691,000
" " 1911.....	96,173,000
" " 1910.....	91,934,000

The statistics as presented by the Dodge Company show a distinct falling off in the New England district for the current year. For the first eleven months of 1918 the total commitments amounted to $142,615,000 as compared to $193,343,000 for 1917 and $193,779,000 for 1916. The figure for the present year is the lowest of record since 1908, when for the same relative period the amount reached $100,037,000. Of the total of the expenditures for building and engineering construction in the New England district for 1918 approximately 31 per cent. was for direct Government work and a large part of the balance was for industrial construction required as the result of the pressure of the Federal requirements for munitions and supplies.

Some rather interesting facts are disclosed in a closer study of the statistics for the Metropolitan district for the month of November, 1918. Within Greater New York contracts were awarded for 80 residential projects, representing a total valuation of $803,000 and newly projected work of the same nature for which plans were started amounted to $1,264,000. Contracts were placed for 12 manufacturing or industrial operations at a cost of $324,000 and new industrial work was planned to the value of $287,000. There were also 78 contracts placed for miscellaneous projects, outside of the former groups, which represented a total expenditure of $989,000 and contemplated miscellaneous operations for which plans were started will total nearly $5,000,000.

In northern New Jersey 56 contracts for residential projects were let at a total estimated value of $496,000 and the newly contemplated dwelling projects for the month amount to $1,033,000. There were 13 contracts awarded for manufacturing operations involving an expenditure of $229,000 and new plans started for more than $1,000,000 worth of industrial construction. The miscellaneous projects numbered 53 at an estimated total cost of $528,000, and the proposed work of this character will call for an outlay of about $3,784,000.

Coal Zoning System Successful

ESTIMATES made earlier in the fuel year, that approximately 160,000,000 car miles would be saved in the coal year through the operation of the zone system for the distribution of bituminous coal, are being fully realized, it was announced today by the United States Fuel Administration.

Early estimates were that the movement of bituminous coal affected by the zone system would involve about 300,000,000 tons, or 60 per cent. of the total production. The latest figures show that 368,858,000 net tons of this kind of coal have been produced and delivered since April 1, 60 per cent. of which is affected by the zone system.

Factors Influencing Real Estate Outlook

Land Values, Renting Conditions, Building Costs, Mortgage Money and Taxes Will Govern

BY ARGYLL R. PARSONS,
Vice-President, Douglas L. Elliman & Co.

FOR several months past, with peace prospects more clearly indicated on the horizon, real estate brokers have surveyed the situation with a view to appraising conditions after the war. Conflicting opinions along certain lines have been voiced, but noticeable unanimity has existed as to fundamental conditions and the outlook. Let us consider briefly some important factors which influence us in forming our judgment.

These involve five principal heads, as follows—land values, renting conditions, building costs, mortgage market, and taxes. In considering these five topics it is our purpose to determine whether they justify optimism and give assurance of an active market. If they do, the second general question is where this activity will first appear and why, and to what extent it will expand.

Relative to land values, two things have been apparent during the period of the war. First, income bearing properties in the commercial and apartment house section have been rented and maintained upon such a satisfactory basis as to sustain values consistently. The exception has been in the case of high-class retail space, where, owing to the curtailment in the purchasing of luxuries, retrenchment has been imperative. The second thing apparent has been the material recession in the prices obtained for unimproved non-income bearing properties wherever an owner has found it necessary or desirable to sell. This latter affords the true index of land values, and it, therefore, must be admitted that there has been a substantial recession in land values, ranging from 15 per cent. to 30 per cent. or more. If, now, the disadvantages of war conditions are past, it is a fair assumption that, with the revival of business, land values will advance.

Considering the second topic—renting conditions. Owing to the complete stoppage of practically all apartment and commercial building, there has developed a shortage in space of every sort. This insures a strong rental demand and good rents which encourages building, which, in turn, stimulates land values.

The third factor, building costs, is a subject to be approached with care. The first thought was that, with the termination of the war, there would ensue a period of depreciation in the cost of building as the result of lower wages and lower prices for materials. This might have been the normal process in former days at the conclusion of a war. The present situation, however, differs greatly because this war was not confined to one country, but has involved practically the entire world and has destroyed millions of lives and countless dollars in materials beyond anything in previous experience. Second thought, therefore, tends to the conviction that wages will not undergo any very appreciable change, and that, with few exceptions, the cost of building materials will be well sustained for an indefinite period. Thus, in analyzing this third factor, where formerly it would have been unwise to begin new construction until the reaction period had passed, present indications lead us to believe that there will be no considerable reaction and that the low cost of land and the good rental market more than offset any slight changes that may occur.

The fourth subject is that of the mortgage market. This is also difficult to deal with, but the fact that money is plentiful in this country, the great creditor nation of the world today, and the fact that large sums have been taken out of circulation through apprehension existing in the minds of many of our population, it would seem that there must be available funds for all legitimate building operations that may be initiated during the next few years.

The fifth and last topic bears upon taxation, which can be divided into two groups—land taxes and income taxes. The agitation of real estate organizations to obtain relief from the high tax rate is bringing to minds in administration circles that the objects of taxation is defeated by an excessive rate. The high tax rate has produced such a burden on real estate that values have deteriorated to an extent that largely offset such increased revenue as is produced by the higher rate. Incidentally, there is evidence that the rate in excess of 2 per cent. is illegal and unconstitutional. We, therefore, have reason to hope the tax rate on land will be lowered this coming year. As to the income tax, with the suspension of hostilities it is certain the amount of taxes to be raised in this way will be materially less so that relief is reasonably sure.

The resultant conclusion after considering these five factors points with considerable certainty to a resumption of real estate activity and a strong real estate market. In this connection it is well to keep in mind that in the hour of prosperity caution should be exercised that the interests of real estate shall not be jeopardized through excess in any phase of the business. It is a time when constructive minds should join to safeguard real estate interests and improve the methods of real estate operations in every way possible.

If we are correct in our judgment that we are on the eve of an active market, the second general question is where will the activity first be seen? Past experience proves that it starts first in the established centers where building and market conditions are surest. This center in New York City lies in the territory of Fifth avenue from 34th to 42d streets and extends north and south, east and west, according to the retail or commercial activity and demand. It is already evident that transactions of large magnitude are in process in this central section, and many important leases are under way. From indications also now at hand there can be no question as to an awakened market, from the investors' and builders' viewpoint as well as from that of the retail tenant. It is inevitable that this activity will expand ultimately in every direction where transportation facilities permit.

If these factors evidence the approach of the best market we have had in the history of this city, it will be well for those with real estate interests at heart to consider the responsibility placed upon them and endeavor, along with the consummation of their business, to advocate and promote such reforms in the general conduct and handling of real estate as will establish it firmly and permanently as the premier investment security of the world. It is rightly described as the basis of all security, as from it, directly or indirectly, issues every product or element of value in existence.

PERSHING SQUARE is New York City's newest public place. The Board of Alderman at its meeting on Tuesday decided to name that part of 42d street immediately in front of the Grand Central Terminal at Park avenue in honor of the American commander. Some weeks ago business men in the neighborhood suggested that it would be an appropriate action to name that section of Park avenue after the man who commanded the American forces in France.

In view of the recent developments at this great local point from which lines of communication will lead to all parts of the city, Pershing Square is destined to be one of the world's best known squares. The completion of the giant Commodore Hotel and the Viaduct at Park avenue and 42d street, which will create a new north and south thoroughfare; the undertaking of the new hotel project on the site of the present Murray Hill Hotel; the importance which now attaches to the neighborhood through its position as one of the most important station units in the entire New York City subway system, and its proximity to one of the foremost railroad terminals in the world, all tend to encourage this belief.

Personal Property Tax Vital Issue at Albany

Real Estate Board Gives Figures to Show How Revenue Can Be Derived from This Source, and Realty Relieved

THE Legislative Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York submits the following statement showing the assessed value of real and personal property not only in New York City but in the entire state:

Real Estate in this State in 1917 was assessed at $12,-006,966,764, while personal property was assessed at $1,047,352,605. In 1916 real estate paid taxes on nearly $12,000,000,000, while personal property paid taxes for local and municipal purposes on only $454,989,997. The Committee has not the figures showing the amount of personal property upon which taxes were paid in 1917 or 1918, but the probabilities are that the amount does not exceed $500,000,000 in either year.

Every experienced observer agrees that the value of personal property in this State vastly exceeds the value of real estate and some experts put personalty in the State of New York at $100,000,000,000 or eight times the value of real estate. There can be no doubt, however, in any mind but that there is at least $30,000,000,-000 of personalty available for purposes of taxation. The present system of assessing is, of course, absurd; for instance, personal property in Hamilton County is assessed at $8,709. In Monroe the assessment for personal property is $8,985,000. In Onandaga County it is $5,787,000; in Erie, including the City of Buffalo, the richest city for its population in the State, personalty is only assessed $7,310,000.

In addition to this assessment for local purposes, personal property paid in 1917, according to an estimate made by Comptroller Travis about $3,895,000, made up as follows:

Secured debt .....	$ 800,000
Mortgages .....	1,300,000
Motor Vehicles .....	1,795,000

Strictly speaking all that the entire personalty of the State paid for local or state purposes was about $18,-389,000, averaging a 3 per cent. tax on the $500,000,000 assessment.

The balance of the total amount of taxes collected in the State, $289,069,646, for all purposes, except Federal, was roughly made up as follows:

Excise .....	$12,606,908
Corporations (franchises) .....	6,142,313
Organization tax .....	940,056
Inheritance tax .....	5,984,018
Secured debts .....	429,646
Stock transfer tax .....	4,865,764
Racing associations .....	1,555

Real Estate $255,000,000 and various small items to make total of $289,069,646.

If, as it is claimed, personal property values are very much greater than real estate values, it is unjust that the property of the smallest value should pay $255,000,-000 and the property of largest value pay only $18,895,-000 toward the expense of village, county, city and state government. It is argued that many forms of personal property earn nothing for their owners but this is also true of real estate. Vacant land and vacant buildings earn nothing and from many forms of improved property there is very little income.

The Committee will ask the Legislature to do justice to all forms of property. All should be taxed. There is nothing sacred about any form of property. New York City property owners, however, have one idea in mind, a fixed tax rate on real estate and that rate not exceed 2 per cent. per annum. If more income is needed for the support of the government, that is not their affair. Other forms of wealth are available for taxation. There are 150,000 real estate owners in Greater New York. They are practically a unit in their demand for a fixed tax rate and that other forms of wealth should bear a fair share of the burden of the government. The arguments of paid experts and of organizations interested in protecting personal property does not interest them. Precedents have no value unless all the conditions are the same.

The failure of a fixed tax rate in one state in the Union does not prove anything as far as New York is concerned. In Europe, there is a fixed tax rate for all forms of wealth and in this State the rate is fixed on most of the evidences of wealth.

The bold statement that there cannot be a general property tax because such a tax has not worked well under entirely different conditions than those that prevail here does not prove anything.

Budget for 1919 Adopted

NEW YORK CITY'S budget for 1919 will be $248,-025,434.88, that figure having been adopted by the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday by a vote of 45 to 9. No changes were made in the total submitted several weeks ago by the Board of Estimate, although a minority report of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen recommended a reduction amounting to $2,174,620. The 1919 budget exceeds this year's cost of municipal operation by $9,901,675.68, the 1918 budget being $238,123,759.20. The main items in the new budget, as compared with the old one, are as follows:

Conditions That Prevent Investment Building

High Cost of Labor and Materials and the Stiffness of the Loan Market Stop High-Class Construction

THREE factors of paramount importance must be definitely disposed of before the operators, who during recent years have built largely for investment in the Park avenue section and the upper West Side are again able to proceed with the construction of high class buildings upon a scale that was prevalent before the war commenced. This fact was brought out at an informal conference between a group of members of the Association of Investment Builders and a representative of the Record and Guide last Wednesday afternoon.

New construction work along the lines of investment building cannot be resumed on an imposing scale at present because of three fundamental reasons: The excessively high cost of construction; the difficulties of obtaining adequate building loans owing to the conservative policy of the financial institutions and the slack or apathetic condition of the selling market for investment properties.

All three of these factors carry equal weight in determining the outlook for the future of investment building but if any measure of improvement in any one or two of the factors could be brought about the situation would be relieved to an extent that would make investment construction reasonably profitable instead of extremely hazardous as it is at the present time.

There is no possible doubt as to the attitude of the important group of interests which for a number of years have been the backbone of the investing building situation, individuals who have made possible the erection of the major portion of the modern multi-family houses in the Park avenue section and the upper West Side and which have accomplished so much for the improvement of realty values in the districts in which they operated. These interests are united in a willingness and even anxiety to resume the activity of the years prior to the outbreak of the European war which so suddenly put a stop to building operations.

Among the investment builders represented at the conference it was the consensus of opinion that high building costs would continue to be prevalent for a long time to come. It was thought that there will likely be no marked recession in either building material prices or the wages of building mechanics during the reconstruction period and that the present high construction costs might possibly maintain over a period of five or more years before the prices recede to a level that would permit building at a profit. True, neither material prices nor building labor can remain indefinitely at the existing excessively high levels. The drop must come that will decrease the cost of a completed building to a point where it will not be forced to compete unfavorably with the structures erected five or ten years ago at considerably lower costs and which therefore would have a distinct renting advantage over the structures erected at current price levels.

Rentals are higher than ever before and it is seemingly impossible to jack them up another notch by any reasonable excuse. On the other hand there is the possibility that the existing high scale of rentals will not remain constant but will be reduced to some extent during the coming months as a result of the economic readjustment that must follow the period of war emergency. The margin of profit to the investor, considering the high taxes, excessive building costs and increasing charges for maintenance and operation, leave a margin of profit altogether too small to make the constructions of new buildings an incentive.

Before investment builders will again be in a position to become active factors in the building situation and proceed with the structures they are prepared to erect it will be essential that these interests be assured of materially greater consideration from the financial institutions that have been in the habit of making loans upon investment property. Mortgage money must be released with greater facility upon operations that have an assured future. Lending interests must be more willing to meet the builders at least half way by making terms that are more generous than have been current in the past. There would be an immense outlet for mortgage money through the construction of high class structures in many growing sections of the city but the principle upon which these loans are commonly made must be revised in order that the builders may be able to take advantage of the opportunity to supply the demand for rentable space.

One of the outstanding factors in connection with the mortgage loan situation is the matter of real estate appraisals. According to the opinion of the investing builders, present day appraisals are no actual indication of the intrinsic value of a property. Appraisals are altogether too low and are generally based on construction costs as they maintained in pre-war times and do not take into consideration the increased value of a property brought about by the high price levels of the past year or more. Appraisals based upon a more generous policy so that greater loans can be obtained for these properties would have a most beneficial effect upon the building situation as it concerns builders for investment purposes. Unless the appraisal value of a specific property can be increased within reasonable bounds to a figure commensurate with the high building costs of today or that loaning institutions become willing to make loans to builders to an amount in excess of those commonly made in late years, the investing builders as a class will naturally be forced to wait until such time as there is a general readjustment of all the conditions applying to their operations in order that they might operate on a basis where there is at least a possibility of a reasonable profit margin.

Not the least important factor determining the present attitude of the investment builders is the apathetic market for high class investment buildings, located in the best sections of the city. There is a demand for accommodations in modern structures that is greatly in excess of the visible supply. There is no doubt in the minds of anyone at this time that if a new project was to be started immediately, the agent for the structure would fully lease the building at current high rental rates before the walls were half way up. Yet the market for properties of this general character is inactive and there is no prospect of an immediate change in the situation. The reason is not difficult to locate. Buildings of this type have to compete adversely first with the structures built in times of lower construction costs, thus limiting the possibilities of a fair profit on the investment, and second, the selling market is competing with the market that offers securities of the highest order and paying interest greater than that to be obtained by realty investments, and without any of the difficulties and labor of management.

These are the three prime deterrents to an active investment building season. The builders desire to resume their chosen work but until times are infinitely more propitious and the conditions under which they are forced to operate are modified, speculative and investment building on a large scale will be held in abeyance.

REAL estate men will do their share in the campaign to be launched during the week of December 15th for the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps. The Realty War Savings Committee of which Laurence McGuire is chairman, has been called upon to sell and distribute $400,000 worth of stamps in order to have that amount available as Christmas and other gifts during the holiday week. A feature of the sales campaign will be the opportunity for buyers to acquire stamps by mail, the Committee having provided machinery which will facilitate the disposal of stamps in any quantity by this means. The Committee also has ready for distribution miniature posters for use in correspondence. Two new and appealing posters have been designed which are expected to play an important part in the advertising campaign. The Committee headquarters will be at 217 Broadway.

Prestige of New York Harbor is Threatened

Dock Commissioner Hulbert Warns Mayor of Activities to Divert Commerce to Other American Ports

NO material progress in the solution of New York City's waterfront problem was made at the conference held on Wednesday, which was attended by the Mayor, the Comptroller, other members of the Board of Estimate, Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert and A. H. Smith, Regional Director of Railroads. Instead of considering Commissioner Hulbert's plan for the improvement and enlargement of dock facilities of the port, discussion centered upon Comptroller Craig's ideas relative to the West Side improvement.

In a letter to Mayor Hylan, Commissioner Hulbert called attention to the numerous requests that he had received from steamship companies for additional wharfage accommodation which the city of New York is at present unable to provide. His letter goes on to say, "unless some definite action is taken, it will be impossible to accommodate them and they will be forced to go elsewhere, which will be a great loss to the city."

"In the past powerful railroad interests and the transatlantic shipping combine has secured practically a monopoly upon the available docking facilities, so that the trade and commerce of the port can be controlled and must pass through certain channels to the exclusion of all others."

"In the carrying out of this scheme, these interests through public officials in past administrations have thwarted the development of other parts of the port and opposed any constructive policy that would give additional facilities and accommodations to others endeavoring to do business in this port."

"These powerful interests have wielded an influence with the Federal authorities to such an extent that of the billion dollars in round numbers which have been appropriated for the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the United States less than three per cent. have been expended in New York harbor notwithstanding the fact that one-half of the commerce of the United States entered and cleared through this port and 75 per cent. of the custom duties have been collected here.

For the past twenty years the population of the City of New York has increased to the extent of 2,796,287 millions; the commerce five times, while the development of the docking facilities have been practically at a standstill. . . .

"The construction of several new piers should be begun immediately. These piers can be rented on the plans at a rental which will make them self-sustaining when constructed and the corporate stock issued for their construction exemptible from the debt limit."

"Many other improvements should be made, but these suggested above are all of primary importance and essential to enable New York to accommodate the shipping needs and retain her commercial supremacy."

"The mayor of other cities are sending their agents to steamship companies in New York, needing additional accommodations, offering great inducements for them to come to their ports."

Commissioner Hulbert also made public the names of a number of important shipping firms who had made application for additional docking facilities. Among them were Pierce Brothers, Norton, Lilly & Company, Bowring & Company, R. P. Houston & Company, the Kerr Steamship Company, the Cunard Steamship Company, the Caribbean Steamship Company and the British Ministry of Shipping.

Proposed Changes in Tenement House Law

TENEMENT House Commissioner Frank Mann calls attention to slight amendment to the bills affecting three and four-family converted dwellings which were discussed at a meeting of the Tenement House Department last week.

"As the Record and Guide is so widely read by the real estate interests," Commissioner Mann says, "it has occurred to me that the best way to bring the proposed change to their attention would be by the publication of it in the Record and Guide."

Commissioner Mann's statement as to the proposed change in the law follows:

The Tenement House Department is constantly receiving a number of complaints relative to the lack of proper heating in tenement houses. There is at present no provision of the Tenement House Law giving the department any jurisdiction in the matter; consequently the Board of Health, in order to meet the great demand from the public in reference to this matter, has recently been obliged to adopt a new section (No. 225) of the Sanitary Code dealing with the heating of buildings.

Inasmuch as this will result in some duplication of inspection by different departments, and as the public has come to look to the Tenement House Department for the enforcement of matters pertaining to tenement houses, it would seem to be advisable that the matter of heating tenement houses should be incorporated in the Tenement House Law. The following section has accordingly been prepared to be added to the "Three-Family Converted Dwellings Bill," and also the "Four-Family Bill." It is proposed to have the new section immediately precede the amendment to Section 144 of the law in each bill. It will therefore become Section 8 of the "Three-Family Bill" and Section 17 of the "Four-Family Bill," and will read as follows:

17. The said chapter is hereby amended by adding a new section thereto, to be known as section one hundred and twelve thereof, and to read as follows:

112. Where an agreement exists that a tenement house or any apartment therein shall be heated, it shall be the duty of the owner to furnish heat for such tenement house or apartment so that a minimum temperature of sixty-eight degrees Fahrenheit shall be maintained therein at all times.

Builders and the Fourth Liberty Loan

By JOHN PRICE JONES,

Assistant Director of Publicity.

THE announcement by the Liberty Loan Committee that the Committee on Building and Allied Trades, Rainbow Division, has exceeded its trade quota of $7,000,000 for the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign to the extent of $825,000 will gratify the trades represented. Soon after America entered the great war in real earnest the Government found steel requirements such that a stop had to be put to most forms of building operation. Particularly was the use of steel enjoined.

The slowing down of real estate operations except for transactions in farms led to a further cessation of building. Men and families did not contract for the building of new houses. Indeed, they did not even rebuild or remodel the old, but remained in statu quo as far as possible.

However, the members of these trades did not forget their duty and patriotic opportunity. They remembered other seasons when building operations were in vigorous swing and they had some of the profits of those days left. They also knew that if the Hun won the war there would be little opportunity of any kind for the future. So with their profits of other seasons and with abundant faith in America and the cause of the Allies they invested in Liberty Bonds.

Their Liberty Loan subscription, totally $7,825,000, represents these materials of war:

100,000 .45 calibre automatic pistols, 100,000 .45 calibre revolvers, 1,000,000 revolver cartridges, 50,000 rifles, 5,000,000 rifle cartridges, 20,000 automatic rifles, one base hospital of 1,000 beds, 80 motor trucks and one small dirigible air ship.

Outlook for Municipal Ownership at Albany

Attitude of Governor-elect Smith and Absence of Senator Brown from New Legislature Encourage Its Advocates

(Special to the Record and Guide)

Albany, Dec. 5.—With the retirement of Elon R. Brown from the State Senate and the re-election of nearly all the other advocates of municipal ownership at the last session of the Legislature, it is a practical certainty that a more or less radical municipal ownership bill will be introduced in the Legislature of 1919.

And in view of the fact that Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith is committed to municipal ownership, it is a practical certainty that he will sign any bill of this character passed by the Legislature.

Only the strong opposition of Senator Brown as majority leader at the last session staved off the passage in the Senate of the so-called Hylan municipal ownership bill. Without him at the coming session the opponents of this scheme will be hard pressed. Brown made the fight against municipal ownership, his primary effort when he saw he would be unable to force the repeal of the direct primary bill. He centered all his energy upon this task and then barely prevented the passage of the measure. The price of the defeat of the measure was the acquiescence of Senator Brown in the appointment of a commission to investigate the problem of municipal ownership, to the chairmanship of which Senator Argetsinger was appointed. The groundwork of this investigation was laid by Senator Brown, who prepared a statement showing the financial condition of the municipalities of the State, but this was as far as the committee progressed. Senator Argetsinger shortly after the session announced that he would enter the military service, whereupon the work of the commission was abandoned.

While the Wagner bill introduced last year at the instance of the Hylan administration was designed primarily to empower New York City to acquire public service utilities including the subways, it had the effect of vesting every municipality in the State with authority to take over electric and gas service and street car lines, and, because of this latter feature was given the support of a large number of up-state Legislators. Senator George F. Thompson, whose bitter opposition to the present organization of the public service commissions grew out of an investigation which he conducted, became one of the most active agitators of municipal ownership on the floor of the Senate. Thompson has been returned to the Senate and there is talk in political circles that he may succeed Senator Brown as majority leader. In this position he would be able to force his convictions upon a large element of Republicans in the Senate which supported by the Democratic representation from New York City, might easily compel the enactment of a bill similar to the Wagoner measure of the 1918 session.

The attitude of Governor-elect Smith upon the proposition is arousing considerable interest. The convention which nominated him committed him to the principle, but a large number of his most ardent supporters are men whose interests lie in the continuance of the policy of private ownership.

But regardless of his attitude it is certain that he will be compelled to pass upon some sort of a municipal ownership bill. At the present time a committee representing the Mayors' Conference of the State of New York, is engaged in the work of drafting a measure providing for municipal ownership. This bill will be submitted for approval to the principal exponents of the scheme within a short time and will be ready for introduction as soon as the Legislature is organized. In support of this measure it is expected the Mayors' Conference will conduct a vigorous agitation in the Senate and Assembly.

The committee representing the mayors have really done the work which it was expected the legislative commission would undertake. For some weeks past this committee, aided by the machinery of the Mayors' Conference, investigators and accountants, has been delving into the problem in order to facilitate the framing of a measure which would meet with the sanction of a majority of the Legislators.

Another factor which augurs well for the success of the scheme is the likelihood of the success of either Senator Walker or Senator Foley to the post of minority leader which was held last year by Justice-elect Wagner. Both of these men are strong advocates of municipal ownership and would continue the fight made last year by Wagner.

The possibility of the problem becoming a party matter is very remote, primarily, because of the presence in the State Senate and in the Assembly as well of a large number of Republicans who are committed to the scheme by their support of the measure in the 1918 session of the Legislature. No party line-up in the Senate is possible because of the following of Senator Thompson. He is able to muster enough Republican votes with the aid of the Democrats to pass any municipal ownership bill that may be drafted.

It is predicted that the bill to be proposed by the Mayors' Conference will be patterned largely after the so-called Hylan bill which provided for an amendment of the General City Law, Sections 162-167, authorizing municipalities to acquire and operate public utilities after certain preliminaries had been fulfilled, such as the appraisal by the public service commissions of the value of the utility sought to be acquired. The issuance of public service certificates secured by mortgage and payable out of the revenues of the utility acquired was an integral part of the last bill and is expected to be incorporated in the new measure.

Importance of Board of Appeals

NO more striking evidence of the greatness of modern New York is afforded than the fact that this city alone of all the cities of this country has a court that gives all its time to passing on knotty questions arising under the various laws governing buildings. This is the Board of Appeals which sits in the Municipal Building. It consists of John P. Leo, chairman; John J. Beatty, Alfred J. Boulton, John De Hart, James P. Holland, James Kearney and Fire Chief John Kenlon. It has a court room and a weekly printed calendar.

The new zoning law would be a hide bound and unyielding affair if it were not for the Board of Appeals. Border-line cases often need treatment according to the specific surroundings and any general and inflexible law and maps would often produce hardships. So the Board of Appeals is given discretionary power in certain cases enumerated in the zoning law to adapt a specific new building to the needs of its environment. The Board of Appeals puts the necessary elasticity into the zoning system to prevent useless hardships and arbitrariness. For instance, new garages for more than five cars are prohibited in business streets, but the Board of Appeals may, in a business block which now has one or more garages or stables, allow a new garage under proper conditions. It is easy to see the great benefit of such a provision. Garages hurt business streets, but there are occasional blocks already partly given up to garages and other similar uses where vacant lots may be a drag on the market if a new garage cannot be built. No statute could be specific enough to cover such cases. But after hearing the facts the Board of Appeals can come pretty near the sensible thing. They can also administer the law so as to redeem blocks especially if filled with houses or apartments that have only a single garage, and in the course of time make them best adapted to their greatest use.

Probably no single court in the entire city, even including the Supreme Court, passes each week on matters involving a greater number of dollars than the Board of Appeals.

The President's Message

Before starting for Europe at the head of the American Peace Commission, President Wilson delivered his annual address to Congress last Monday. Most of the discussion of what the President said has had to do with the political aspects of his address. Naturally, there is a wide divergence of opinion as to the wisdom of the President's trip to Europe, but it is a bit difficult for most people to avoid political bias in discussing that point.

The President undoubtedly struck a response in the hearts of all of his fellow-countrymen in that part of his message which summarized the remarkable achievements of the nation since the United States entered the war. He marshaled in a most impressive manner the facts as to what the United States has accomplished and his tribute to the men in the service abroad as well as to the older men whose work was performed at home was inspiring in the extreme.

While President Wilson made clear to the Congress his appreciation of the complicated problems which are bound to follow the war, he seemed rather optimistic as to the work of readjustment in this country. He indicated that the Government management of railroads should be regarded as temporary, and he suggested that a definite tax program be adopted without delay in order that the business and financial interests of the country may be promptly informed and thereby be in a position to make sound plans for the immediate future. The President pointed out that continued uncertainty on these points "would add elements of doubt and confusion to the critical period of industrial readjustment through which the country must now immediately pass and which no true friend of the nation's essential business interests can afford to be responsible for creating or prolonging."

Right to the point and encouraging in its optimism was the President's declaration:

"Clearly determined conditions, clearly and simply charted, are indispensable to the economic revival and rapid industrial development which may confidently be expected if we act now and sweep all interrogation points away."

So, too, no one who either heard or has read the President's address can fail to be impressed by his hope "for the formal conclusion of the war by treaty by the time spring has come."

$248,108,487.38

The taxpayers of New York City will have to produce $248,108,487.38 to pay the expenses of the city government during 1919. The Board of Aldermen early in the week adopted the budget as fixed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, making no changes.

This means that there will be an actual increase in the running expenses of the city government of between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 next year. There have been deductions in various items, notably one of more than $1,200,000 in the appropriations for the Department of Docks and Ferries. Despite the various decreases, however, so many increases have been made in other departments as to bring the total far above that of last year.

Naturally, the budget in its final form is a disappointment. The new administration, in the city campaign a year ago, charged the Mitchel administration with extravagance and waste and promised the taxpayers of the metropolis that a Hylan victory would bring an end to municipal extravagance. The new administration, as is shown by the final budget for 1919, has failed to keep any part of this promise.

It is the old story over again. Politicians out of office object to the large sums being spent by their opponents in office. But when they themselves get control of the city purse-strings the question of keeping campaign promises by saving the taxpayers' money looks different to them.

At Work, and In Earnest

England began preparations for a return to peaceful occupation even when the tide of battle was tending strongly against the allies and before the advent of the United States into the conflict turned what looked like the probability of defeat or no decision into pronounced victory. Thoroughly imbued with the commercial spirit and accustomed to dealing with world-wide questions the Britishers went ahead, strong in their belief in the ultimate success of the struggle in which they were engaged, planning to again become the dominant figure in world commerce.

In this they were followed, although at a distance, by their European allies. The fruit of their preparedness is disclosed in a cable from the American Chamber of Commerce at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to the Convention of American business men assembled at Atlantic City this week, stating that the English, French and Italian steamship lines had been put into operation again and that shipments of goods in both directions had already begun in large amounts. The information was added that there had not been received any mail let alone merchandise, from the United States in more than a month.

This indicates the actual position of this country in the proposed program of securing a large share of world trade to help in offsetting the expense and losses incurred by war. Up to the present time practically nothing has been done by the business men of America, nor by the Government, that will enable the country to secure even a small share of the coveted business.

But the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has brought together the leaders in 381 lines of business. These men, accustomed to large affairs, have set to work to formulate and put in operation plans for the readjustment of business from a war to a peace basis in this country and to drive a wedge into the foreign trade that will provide increasing or greater outlet for goods produced here.

Starting out with the feeling that conditions both in this country and abroad were such as not to justify the expectation of an immediate revival of business, and struggling with the obsession that their individual problems were so unfavorable as to preclude any satisfactory solution of them, these delegates to the greatest really representative business Congress ever held in this country have adopted the idea of relegating to the background their self-centered consideration of the problems confronting them, and have set to work in a high-minded and courageous way to accomplish what looked like the impossible, but is so no longer because nothing is impossible to the resourceful American if he sets his mind and heart to its achievement.

The men who made possible the success of our armies over there may be relied on to establish the American commercial armies of home defence and foreign occupation upon a victorious basis.

Leading Business Men Take Up Peace Problems

in furthering American commerce in foreign lands.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was another speaker who insisted upon the value of cooperation and mutual helpfulness in business. He said:

"Today we stand at the threshold of the period of reconstruction, and as we turn from the problems of war to the problems of peace we may look for such success in solving the latter as has been attained in dealing with the former only as we are animated by the same spirit of co-operation and brotherhood. The hope of the future lies in the perpetuation of that spirit and its application to the grave problems which confront us nationally as well as internationally. Among these problems none is more important, because of its ramifying relations, or more pressing, from the fact that it touches almost every department of life, than that of industry.

"Obviously the day has passed when the conception of industry as primarily a matter of private interest can be maintained. To cling to it is only to lay up trouble for the future and to arouse antagonism. In the light of the present, every thinking man must adopt the view that the purpose of industry is to advance social well-being rather than primarily to afford a means for the accumulation of individual wealth. It must be borne in mind, however, that industry cannot be successfully carried on unless not only the community and the workers are adequately served, but those whose money is invested are enabled to realize a just return."

Mr. Rockefeller outlined an industrial creed for the four parties to industry to subscribe.

James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, who was unable to be present, but whose address was read by Oscar King Davis, Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, of which Mr. Farrell is president, laid emphasis upon the necessity of building up the foreign commerce of the United States. He called attention to the fact of the unbroken record of prosperity and sustained labor employment of those concerns which regularly market overseas from ten to twenty-five per cent. of their products.

"Most men who think on the subject at all are prepared to concede that the production of commodities upon a competitive basis of cost, in amounts sufficient to supply home consumption and furnish material for foreign trade, will be the basis of our future national strength and prosperity.

"On the money side, there is equal readiness to agree that strength of finance will count for even more than it has ever done before in the development of external commerce. An eminent banking authority sums up the matter by saying that in the coming expansion of world-wide enterprise, the nation that cannot only give its own trade on both the import and export side the benefit of complete financial organization and stability, but can extend to other nations the benefit of capital and commercial credits, will be at a great advantage over any nation that happens to have its hands full in maintaining its own equilibrium, or which cannot spare capital and credit.

"The value of presenting a united front, industrially, commercially, and financially in foreign markets cannot well be over-estimated. All indications point to a reasonably quick return to the normal condition of foreign trade."

In summing up the results of the conference, President Harry A. Wheeler declared to the representative of the Record and Guide that he had found in his talks with delegates that there was a general consensus of opinion that the first to feel the advantage of a return to peace times will be the building industries.

William B. Dickson, Vice President of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, of New York, put this forecast into concrete form in talking to the Record and Guide representative. He said:

"There are many reasons why the building industries should be favorably affected now that peace has come. Prices for building materials will not fall to the old level for several years, while the demand for buildings of all kinds will become more and more insistent. This is assured because the government proposes to continue the shipbuilding program; the government will also continue building operations that must be carried out although peace has come; and the railroads must be re-furnished with rolling stock and rails. While money will not be in great supply for skyscraper construction it must be remembered that more steel and iron, in the aggregate, is made use of in the small buildings than in the towering and highly expensive buildings in the large cities. There will also be foreign demand for our building materials, especially steel and iron.

"Food products will continue to be high in price. Wheat prices for another year are fixed, and many price restrictions are still in force. The process of getting back to a normal basis will be very gradual. The first to feel any reduction in wages will be the highly paid munition workers. Other lines of work will follow, but it is not possible to say which will come back first, the high cost of living or wages. They should move simultaneously—the certainty is that reduction in either will be very gradual. This being so builders should be encouraged to go ahead without fear of trouble with their contracts half completed."

In Washington they are talking about regulating issues of securities for the next few years.

They fear that all sorts of wild cat stocks and so-called securities will be issued at high rates of interest to tempt people to trade off their Liberty Bonds.

RANDOM NOTES IN THE REALTY FIELD

Queens Chamber of Commerce Shows Residential Distribution of Labor in Borough—A Plea for Housing

LABOR from all parts of New York City has been attracted to the industrial colony in Long Island City. The Gas Defense Plant, Long Island City, which had 12,350 employees at the time the armistice was signed who were engaged in manufacturing gas masks has furnished a statement to the Queens Chamber of Commerce of the location of the residences of these employees. This statement is of particular interest as it indicates that while factories in Queens have the entire labor supply of Greater New York to draw from through the operation of the new rapid transit lines, there is an urgent need for the construction of thousands of new homes in Queens to house the increasing number of employees in the rapidly growing industrial sections of the borough.

Following is a tabulation of the number of employees of the Gas Defense Plant and where they lived:

Section.	No.	Percentage.
Manhattan .....	5,099	41.3
Queens borough .....	3,261	26.5
Brooklyn .....	1,793	14.5
Bronx .....	1,339	10.9
Richmond .....	36	.3
Misc. (including Westchester and Nassau Counties and New Jersey) .....	822	6.5

Total .... 12,350 100.0

The 3,261 employees who lived in Queens borough resided in the following sections:

Section.	No.	Percentage.
Long Island City ....	1,960	15.88
Elmhurst ....	227	1.84
Corona .....	269	2.18
Maspeth .....	74	.60
Flushing ....	294	2.38
College Point .....	35	.28
Whitestone ..	16	.13
Woodhaven .....	61	.49
Jamaica .....	203	1.64
Kew Gardens ..	8	.06
Richmond Hill .....	105	.85
Belleaire .....	5	.04
Forest Hills .....	4	.03

George J. Ryan, President of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, in commenting on the figures, said:

"The increase in the industrial population of Queens during the past twenty months has caused a demand for houses unprecedented in its history. When you consider that nearly 200 plants were engaged in war work and employed approximately 50,000 workers, it can be appreciated that the demand for housing facilities was greater than the supply.

"While it is true that Queens was unable to house the great army of industrial workers engaged in the various war plants, it is equally true that the convenience of travel by subway, elevated and surface lines has brought to the attention of the available labor supply the ready accessibility of the borough.

"I look for the greatest real estate development in Queens borough during the next few years that has ever taken place in New York City. Queens presents an attractive proposition for the builder because of its land values lower in comparison than any other section of the city with such excellent rapid transit facilities.

"The natural growth of any city is from the center. Manhattan has been an exception because of its physical formation. Its growth was necessarily forced northward instead of extending in all directions from the center. Now the operation of the subway and elevated lines easterly from Manhattan through 42d street and 59th street will cause an expansion of the city into the Borough of Queens. The demand for both residential and industrial sites in Queens is growing daily.

"Now that peace has been declared and the minds of the people are turning toward normal activities it is only natural that this great housing development in Queens borough which has been held up during the period of the war, will have an impetus greater than any development in its history."

Better Service Promised.

As a result of the recent letter to the Hon. Travis H. Whitney, Public Service Commissioner, with respect to better service on the Jerome Avenue Branch of the Lexington Avenue Subway, between 167th street and Woodlawn road, the Bronx Board of Trade is in receipt of two interesting letters, in each of which better service is forecast for the immediate future.

Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, says:

"With regard to the matter of an increase in service, about which a hearing has been held by the Public Service Commission, we have gradually been able to increase the number of our trainmen and thereby improve our service generally, and on the Jerome avenue line we have added additional trains in the Ninth avenue elevated service during the morning and evening rush hours, so as to give an interval of 4 min. 15 sec. You must realize that this line was opened without the necessary yard and inspection shed, which are very important adjuncts to railroad operation, on account of the necessity of the continuous inspection of equipment and the laying up of trains when occasion arises, which must be done without interfering with the operation of other trains."

Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney says:

"The Commission has under consideration the matter of the possible extension of both the subway and elevated service to Jerome avenue. Already increases have been requested and obtained in the number of elevated trains operating on Jerome avenue. It is hoped that shortly subway trains can be operated farther north.

"The entire situation is complicated by the inspection pits now located on the structure at the northern end of Jerome avenue. Such facilities were, as you know, necessary if the safety in operation conditions was to be maintained and as it was impossible to construct a yard under war conditions, it became necessary to place the inspection facilities on the structure itself.

"As you are doubtless already aware, the change in war conditions makes it possible now for the Commission to proceed with the remaining portions of the Dual System. One of the first and most important matters is the early construction of the Jerome Park Reservoir site, for which the plans will, within a short time, be available for bidding."

Walter Stabler Will Speak.

Members of the New York Building Managers' Association will hear Walter Stabler, comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, discuss the mortgage situation, at their monthly dinner and meeting next Tuesday night, December 10, at the Park Avenue Hotel. The members feel that this subject is one of great interest at the present time, and anticipate a large attendance.

National Tax Association.

The twelfth annual conference of the National Tax Association, originally called to be held at the Planters' Hotel, St. Louis, on November 12-16, and postponed on account of the influenza situation, will be held at the same place beginning Tuesday forenoon, December 17. The order of addresses and discussions will follow the original program.

Real Estate Review for the Current Week

Business Shows Upward Trend, with Broadening Demand—Deals on Both Cash and Exchange Bases

WELL defined progress was recorded in the real estate market this week along lines reflecting a decided upward trend of the market and a steadily growing interest in real estate holdings. The particularly encouraging feature of the business was the wide breadth of the demand which concerned itself with improved properties in practically all parts of the city.

Although several of the larger transactions were trades, enough business was closed on a cash basis to indicate that, notwithstanding the continued existence of most of the deterrents which have been tending to discourage real estate purchases, the attitude of prospective buyers of real estate was beginning to undergo a change. The largest transaction of the week involved a valuable Wall Street corner which was taken by a large downtown corporation in order to meet increased business demands. Additional purchases of plotage on Maiden Lane in the same general neighborhood also reflected the continued strength of the downtown buying movement.

One of the early results of the Government order affecting the brewing industry was seen in the sale of a leasehold on West Twenty-second street by a firm of brewers, who formerly used the property as a distributing station. While it is somewhat early to note any marked effect on the general real estate situation of the abandonment of the large number of plants formerly used for the production of beer, and the great number of stores used as saloons which will have to be vacated between now and July 1, the attitude of real estate men with regard to the future of these holdings is not over-optimistic.

Aside from the losses in taxes that will accrue to the State through diminished returns from the excise tax, which deficit will have to be made up from other sources of revenue, with the possibility of further demands on real estate, the element in the situation which is causing much concern to the owners of property, is the sudden placing on the market of a great number of stores in some of the best locations in the city. The rental power of many of these stores was based solely upon their strategic value for saloon occupancy and now that such value will be removed there is much speculation as to the future of this kind of store property. While many real estate men are of the belief that the losses will be serious there are others who are inclined to a more encouraging prospect. Many trades which have been restricted during the war period as a result of their classification as non-essential industries are now expected to come back into the various business fields and it may be that a considerable amount of space will be absorbed by this class of tenant. In the recognized business centers of the city, in the retail shopping and theatrical centers, no apprehension is being felt with regard to the future of these stores. It is in the residential neighborhoods and the factory and industrial centers that difficulties may be encountered in the renting of these places.

In view of the anticipated industrial expansion of New York City the owners of the large brewing plants are likewise expected to experience little or no difficulty in the disposition either through sale or lease of their real estate which will no longer be available in connection with the beer industry. Many of these firms are now preparing to either engage in the manufacture of soft drinks or to remodel the property for the use of other manufacturers.

Among other interesting transactions of the week was the trade of a valuable Madison Avenue Hotel for a Fifth avenue residence; the resale of a Washington Heights apartment house and the purchase of a Stanton street loft building by a new warehouse corporation. The business of the week in its entirety may be considered as very satisfactory.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 36, as against 23 last week and 22 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street, was 15, as compared with 11 last week and 8 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th street was 21 as compared with 12 last week and 14 a year ago.

From the Bronx, 13 sales at private contract were reported, as against 15 last week and 13 a year ago.

National City Company a Buyer.

In one of the largest deals of the year involving downtown properties, the National City Company has purchased the building at the northeast corner of Wall and William streets to provide for expanding business, which has forced the company to take space in several buildings in that vicinity, in addition to 25,000 square feet which it occupies in the National City Bank Building. The property has been purchased from the Mechanics and Metals National Bank and possession will be taken the first of next year. The property was formerly part of the quarters of the National City Bank, which is the parent company of the present buyers. The executive offices of the company will continue in their present quarters in the bank building, but the newly acquired property will be used exclusively by the company. It is planned to house at 50 Wall street the treasury, accounting, follow-up, stenographic, educational, advertising, stationery, filling and several other departments.

The building has a frontage of 50 feet with a depth of 117 feet, and is five stories in height. In the basement is a complete system of new vaults installed by the Mechanics and Metals Bank at the time of the extensive alterations in the building made a few years ago. The building is now occupied by the Federal Reserve Bank of the Second District pending the erection of that institution's new home on Nassau street and Maiden lane. Although the purchase price of the parcel could not be learned, it was said that the transaction represented $1,500,000.

Rumored Church Street Sales.

According to report yesterday, the old buildings at 212 to 218 Church street, in the H. B. Claflin block, will shortly be sold to interests identified with the Claflin organization. The company is now the tenant of all the buildings in the present deal, with the exception of 212, at the corner of Thomas street. The estate of Oscar F. Hawley, represented by the People's Trust Company, of Brooklyn, is the owner of record of 212; Mary B. Brandegee, of Brookline, Mass., 214 and 216, and Augustus D. Juillard, 218. Confirmation of the report was not obtainable. The Claflin Company, should the deal be consummated, will occupy the entire block square bounded by Church, Thomas and Worth streets, and West Broadway.

Hotel Leonori in Trade.

William V. Lawrence, developer of the Lawrence Park home section, has purchased, for investment from the Park Realty Company, Maximilian Morgenthau, president, the Hotel Leonori, at the southeast corner of Madison avenue and Sixty-third street, fronting 102 feet on Madison avenue and 83.6 feet on Sixty-third street. It is twelve stories, with basement and sub-basement and has been operated by the Hotel Leonori Company since its erection.

In part payment for the Leonori the Park Realty Company takes from Mr. Lawrence his residence at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-eighth street, adjacent to the home of Jacob H. Schiff and opposite the residence of James B. Duane, at the north corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-eighth street. The Lawrence house is a five-story American basement dwelling, fronting 25.8 feet on Fifth avenue and 100 feet on Seventy-eighth street. It was constructed by Mr. Lawrence and has been occupied by him. Recently he moved to his large country place at Lawrence Park West, Bronxville, near his realty interests in that section, which include the Hotel Gramata... Varick D. Martin represented the Park Realty Company in the deal and Fish & Marvin acted for Mr. Lawrence.

Adds to Maiden Lane Plottage.

Sigsbee Graham has completed the acquisition of a plot of 11,000 square feet on Maiden Lane, Gold and Pearl streets, through the Charles F. Noyes Company. The last transaction just closed, was the purchase by Mr. Graham from the Hon. Jefferson M. Levy of 93-95 Maiden Lane. With this purchase Mr. Graham now controls a frontage of 30 feet on Maiden Lane; 42 feet on Gold street, and 47 feet on Pearl street, a plot of 11,000 square feet of ground valued at $275,000. The Pearl Street property is within 37 feet of Maiden Lane. There has been a great deal of activity in this general neighborhood recently. In connection with Mr. Graham's purchases it is interesting to note that all deals made were on a strictly cash basis and in the case of 205 Pearl street and 207 Pearl street and 4-6 Gold street, Mr. Graham took title to the property without mortgage encumbrance.

Burland Casino Traded.

The Burland Casino property, one of the best known business buildings in the Bronx has been sold by Saul Birns to the State Bank, which gave eleven parcels in exchange. The casino is at the northwest corner of Westchester avenue and 158th street and consists of a hall and fourteen stores, all but one of which are tenanted. The property was valued at $325,000. It fronts 200 feet on Westchester avenue and extends over to Union avenue, where the frontage is 185 feet. Among the parcels given in part payment are Onyx Court, at 193 Second avenue, northwest corner of Twelfth street, a six-story apartment house with stores, on plot 61.3 by 90; two properties on Week's avenue, near 173d street, in the Bronx; a property on Pelham avenue; a parcel in Flushing, L. I., and one in Douglas Manor, Douglaston, L. I.

Machine Company Enlarges.

The American Machine & Foundry Company has purchased the three three-story buildings at 5508-5510 and 5512 Second avenue, Brooklyn. The brokers in the deal, Frank A. Seaver & Company, have, by these sales, completed the purchases necessary for the Foundry Company's plans for the desired additions to its present building, which occupies the block front 700 by 100 on the north side of 56th street, between 1st and 2nd avenues. The recent purchases will give them in addition 100 feet front on Second avenue and 375 feet on 55th street.

Re-Sale of the "Stockton."

Nehring Brothers have sold for the Estate of John E. Ahrens to a client, "The Stockton," a six-story elevator apartment house on plot 113 by 123, on the southeast corner of St. Nicholas avenue and 165th street. It rents for $26,000 and was held at $225,000. In part payment the buyer gave 62 West 119th street, a three and one-half story brown-stone dwelling on plot 17 by 100, held at $12,000. The Ahrens Estate acquired "The Stockton" through the same brokers in an exchange for five walk-ups at Briggs avenue and 194th street, a short time ago.

Warehouse Company Purchase.

The Maiden Lane Savings Bank has sold the six-story loft building at 334 and 336 Stanton street, adjoining the northwest corner of Mangin street, on plot 39.8 by 70. The buyer is the Enterprise Warehousing Corporation, formed at Albany last week with a capital of $100,000 and representing interests identified with other warehouses in this city. The company was represented by Charles P. Kramer as attorney. The bank took over the property a year ago from the West Farms Construction Company. Last July the adjoining seven-story loft at 338 and 340 Stanton street was purchased by the Circle Warehouse Corporation.

Sales of St. Charles Court.

A. H. Levy, Sol Freidus and B. Harris have sold for the Natism Corporation (State Bank) the St. Charles court, a six-story elevator apartment house at 31 to 35 West 115th street, on plot 74.6 by 100, between Fifth and Lenox avenues. The house is arranged for thirty families and is fully tenanted.

The purchaser, the College Holding Company, has turned over its contract at a profit to the Leopold Weiss Realty & Construction Co. A. H. Levy negotiated the re-sale.

Bronx-Harlem Exchange.

The Nason Realty Company has sold 1605 University avenue, a five-story new law house on plot 83 by 100 to the Benenson Realty Company. In exchange the purchaser takes 61½ and 63 East 125th street, two four-story buildings, on lot 33 by 100, near Madison avenue. The University avenue property was held at $125,000. L. J. Greenberger was the broker in the transaction.

$250,000 Bronx Deal.

The Nehring Co. sold for Miss Sarah Barnes Smith to Daniel H. Jackson, 935 Kelly street, corner 163d street, a five-story apartment house with stores, and 938 Intervale avenue, corner 163d street, a 5-story apartment house with stores. The rent roll is about $33,000. The properties were held at $250,000. The transaction was an all-cash one.

Brewers Sell Realty.

The William J. Lemp Brewing Company has sold the four-story building, on plot 50 by 98.9, at 555 and 557 West Twenty-second street, an Ogden estate leasehold. The property was used as a distributing station in the East, and has been sold owing to the Federal order to discontinue production. It is the only property of the company in New York. The buyers are C. B. Richards & Co., steamship brokers.

Bronx Apartments Exchanged.

Byrne & Baumann have sold for H. W. Gennerich to James E. and William J. Dougherty 568 and 572 East 166th street, two five-story apartment houses, on plot 75 by 137 by irregular. In part payment the buyer gave a brick dwelling, with about ten lots, on the north side of Point street, Yonkers, between Ravine and Woodworth avenues. The deal involved considerations amounting to about $112,000.

Pinkney Plot in Deal.

The J. Romaine Brown Company has sold for the estate of Mary G. Pinkney a plot of 50 by 100 feet on the south side of 141st street between Lenox and Fifth avenues. The purchaser, John McMahon, will improve the property with a building for his own occupancy when conditions permit.

Another Maiden Lane Purchase.

The Preferred City Real Estate Company has sold to the Empire Mortgage Company, the four-story building at 91 Maiden Lane, on a lot 21.9 by 66, adjoining the plot bought by Sigsbee Graham.

Manhattan.

South of 59th Street.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

JAY R. MARSH, of 30 East 42d st, and Alfred Ponter, of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co., have been elected to membership in the New York Building Managers' Association.

SHAW & COMPANY has been appointed managing agents for the following properties: 2453 2d av, 156 East 106th st, 73 West 133d st, 127 West 136th st, 1326 Webster av and 219 East 116th st.

OSCAR S. MEYERSON was elected president of the Junior Taxpayers' League at its recent meeting. Other officers elected were George Reubel, first vice-president; Miss Selma Berger, second vice-president; Dr. Alexander Simpson, treasurer, and Mrs. Hattie Kraemer-Wolff, secretary.

FRANKLIN PETTIT is head of the 160 East Twenty-fourth Street Company, which acquired recently from the Dallas Holding Company the dwelling at 24 East 64th st in trade for the garage at 156 to 164 East 24th st. He owns the adjoining property at 22, and now controls a plot 46x100.5. It is understood that plans have been drawn for an American basement residence to cover the entire plot.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed by Mrs. Sydney P. Johnson managing agents of the apartment house at 115 East 56th st; by Miss Mary M. Kearney managing agents of the tenement at 330 East 117th st; by the Chet Realty Co. managing agents of the apartment house at 25 Park av; by Miss Margaret A. Redington managing agents of the apartment house at 103 West 76th st, and by W. H. E. Lockwood of the dwellings at 45 and 52 West 97th st. Pease & Elliman were the brokers in the renting of the 5-sty dwelling at 10 East 79th st for J. Sanford Barnes, who was represented as agents by the Douglas Robinson, C. S. Brown Co. to I. Townsend Burden.

A LARGE OUT-OF-TOWN sale has been effected by Wm. A. White & Sons and Clark T. Chambers through which Oppenheim, Collins & Co. become the owners of an entire block front in the best part of the retail section of Buffalo, New York. The owners were John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the O'Day Realty Co., represented by the Equitable Trust Company, who have held it since 1889. The property purchased is on Huron st, and takes in the corners of Main and Pearl sts. The frontage is 231 feet on Huron st, and the depth 50 feet on Main st and 49½ feet on Pearl st. Oppenheim, Collins & Co. have for many years been tenants of a large portion of the building on the site, and are buying because of the expansion of their business in Buffalo and in conformity with their policy of owning their own buildings in the various cities where they have branches. They recently bought their Brooklyn building.

Active Planning for Structural Revival

Architects and Engineers Report Encouraging Outlook—Apartments and Moderate-Priced Dwellings to Be Erected

ENCOURAGING signs of better times for the entire building industry are manifest by the growing number of new projects, including moderate priced dwellings and apartments, now being planned by the architects of this city. The plans for a large part of this work are well advanced and should within a short time be presented to the industry for estimates. The projects that are now in the early stages of planning are not architectural dreams that will be shopped around in the hope of financing them, but authentic structural operations, proposed as a direct result of the sustained demand for rentable space of every description.

On all sides there are current reports of new operations soon to be started and projects held in abeyance for two or three years being revived in order to supply the demand for apartments, dwellings and commercial uses. If only a part of this contemplated construction is started the building interests will have more actual work on their hands than they have had for many months past. Naturally, Government construction has not been considered in this grouping, as this form of structural activity will gradually drop off and be replaced by civil building.

At a conference at Albany last Monday between State Architect Lewis F. Pilcher and Edward A. Keeler, a former president of the New York State Association of Builders, the opinion was developed that contractors will be willing to bid upon State and municipal work at figures approximately 15 per cent. below the war-time prices. Three conditions have been largely responsible for creating this willingness to cut bids for future construction work below the war-time prices. The first is the increased stability of labor. The second condition is the reappearance of competition in the delivery of materials brought about by the relief of transportation hindrances and the resumption of long-haul deliveries. The third factor is the elimination of irresponsible contractors during the stress of the war period and the resultant regrouping of contracting firms who have withstood the tests of the war emergency conditions and are at present operation on a sounder business policy than ever before. It was also brought out that material prices will not be lowered to any appreciable extent during the next year or so, and that the wages of skilled labor are not expected to be greatly reduced during the reconstruction period.

The building situation from the standpoint of the speculative interests has improved to an extent that will warrant an early start on the construction of a number of modern apartment houses, one and two-family dwellings and other types of speculative and investment building. Already plans are well-advanced for a considerable volume of work of this character and just as soon as this form of activity gets a start the more conservative among the speculative builders will again come into the market. There is no doubt as to the intensity of the demand for living accommodations in growing neighborhoods in the outlying boroughs of the city nor is there question about the lack of rentable space to supply the demand.

Real estate interests in Brooklyn and Queens have been greatly encouraged by the number of inquiries for investment properties in the sections being improved by the new rapid transit systems. There are marked indications that when building operations are resumed an active selling market will exist which will provide an outlet for the new structures erected. There is an urgent need for multi-family house construction in the Bay Ridge and Flatbush sections of Brooklyn and the demand for housing accommodations is strong in Long Island City, Jamaica, and other Queens sections. For the greater part the speculative builders are simply waiting for a readjustment of the mortgage situation in order to complete their plans and mature their projects as soon as possible and take advantage of the height of the market.

At a recent meeting of the Bay Ridge Chamber of Commerce the question of cooperating with the building contractors in the district to solve the housing problem in the industrial center of Bay Ridge was seriously considered. There is a large vacant plottage in the section that could be improved to advantage and the builders have stated that all that is required to start a building movement of large proportions is encouragement from the institutions that make a business of financing structural projects.

Plans are now being prepared in the office of Cohn Brothers, architects, for a modern four-story apartment house to be erected in the Bay Ridge section by Oscar Palmleaf, a well-known operator, who erected a number of multi-family houses in the Flatbush section. This project will be located on Ridge Boulevard and 82d street, and will occupy a plot 100x150 feet. This operation will provide living accommodations for twenty families and will cost more than $100,000. One of the features of this apartment will be the large interior court to be architecturally treated as an Italian garden following the plan so successfully used in a number of the newer Flatbush apartments.

Two important apartment house projects are now being planned for erection in Westchester County, in close proximity to New York. The operations are the result of the insistent demand for comparatively small units, in modern houses located in the suburban towns within easy commuting distance of the city. Wm. H. McElfatrick, a prominent New York architect is preparing the preliminary sketches for a ten-story fireproof apartment to be erected on South Broadway, Yonkers, by the Ludlow Hotel Corporation. The ground dimensions of this building will be approximately 83x151 feet, and the cost will be in the neighborhood of $500,000. The final details of this project have not yet been decided upon, but it is expected that active construction will be started during the coming spring.

Plans are being prepared by Bates & How for an additional building to the group of modern apartments at Lawrence Park, Bronxville, N. Y., known as the Algier Court Apartments. The new unit will be six stories in height, built of hollow tile with stucco exterior and will provide living quarters for thirty-six families in four and five room suites. The operation is to be erected by the Residence Company of Lawrence Park, of which Arthur W. Lawrence is president, and will cost about $150,000. The plans for this building will be ready for estimates early next spring.

A number of nearby New Jersey cities are also developing apartment house projects that will in all probability be started early in 1919. Newark, Jersey City, Bayonne, Elizabeth, Paterson and Passaic are all active in the market for increased residential accommodations and according to the present outlook there will be a strong building movement at these places next year.

The erection of additional theatre and amusement buildings will undoubtedly prove to be an important factor in the anticipated building revival. The Keith interests are having plans prepared by Wm. H. McElfatrick for a large theatre to be located at the northwest corner of Fordham Road and Valentine avenue in the Bronx. This structure will be four stories in height, with stores on the ground floor and offices above and will occupy a plot 100x200 feet. The cost of construction is approximately placed at $400,000. Work on this project will be started within a short time.

Dwelling construction, both one and two-family houses, has developed encouragingly during the past week. From the number of plans being prepared at the present time the future for this form of speculative activity is most promising. Brooklyn and Queens have been particularly active in this form of contemplated building and already work has been started and contracts let for an additional number of small dwellings.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

CURRENT signs all point to a large volume of building to be undertaken in the near future. During the past week new plans have been presented for estimates and quite a number of contracts have been placed for structural projects to be erected in the Metropolitan District. In addition to the operations recently contracted for or submitted for bids the architects report a general revival of interest best indicated by their orders to prepare plans for buildings of almost every character and description.

At the present time one important factor that is operating against an early resumption of structural activity is the labor situation. The building industry seems almost united in its opinion that the forthcoming year will be a period of strikes and lockouts that will cause considerable trouble, and that will prevent the fullest amount of activity for the industry as a whole.

Building material markets are at present almost uniformly quiet, as the Government demands have fallen off to practically a negligible amount and private building activity has not yet resumed to an extent that is able to offset the decrease in Federal requirements. Prospects are excellent, however, and all material interests are confident that with the advent of the spring of 1919 there will be increased business that will keep all concerned at a high pitch.

In general material prices are steady and from all accounts there is no great likelihood of important changes for some time. There has been rumors of slight weakening tendencies in the price situation, but they have not been confirmed by actual announcements of reductions from current levels. On the other hand, some lines are indicating a marked tendency toward higher prices owing to the increased labor and production costs.

Common Brick.—Although sales have been relatively light during the week, there has been a material increase in the number of inquiries which has had a tendency to brighten the outlook in the wholesale market for Hudson River common brick. Prices are somewhat firmer than they have been, and, while still ranging between $13.50 to $14 a thousand, the greater percentage of sales are made at or near the higher figure. At the present time there is no anticipation of a drop in common brick prices, but a slight increase is within the range of probability. The New York district is well supplied with brick, sufficient for any demand of the coming winter months. Up-river the situation is quiet, with the producers making every effort to burn their green brick before the very cold and stormy weather sets in. The Raritan brick producers are making brick, but at a limited rate of output, and none from this section are being sent to the New York market. According to the present outlook it will be next spring before the Raritan brick interests will make quotations on brick for New York by water as the season is too far advanced to put barges in commission.

SUMMARY—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Friday, December 6, 1918. Condition of market: Demand light, prices firmer. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $14 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 5; sales, 5. Distribution: Brooklyn, 4; New Jersey points, 1.

Portland Cement.—The market situation as applied to the cement manufacturing interests is practically unchanged. Government requirements have fallen off materially, and the producers are able to manufacture ahead for the needs of the coming year. There has recently been a slight tendency toward improvement in the volume of business emanating from private building sources, and there is considerable hope for the coming months. Portland cement prices are firm and unchanged, and at present there is little likelihood of any movement in either direction from the current level.

Hydrated Lime.—The market is quiet with demand dull, but there are fair indications of an improved situation within a short time. Dealers are looking forward to greatly increased volume of business during the coming spring and summer months. Hydrated lime prices are practically unchanged.

Lime.—Although the lime manufacturers are generally busy the bulk of the business is chemical and agricultural lime, rather than material for building purposes. The season is too late for a great revival of building this year, and the lime interests do not anticipate a large increase of business from construction work until next spring. Wholesale prices for Eastern common and finishing were increased 20c. a barrel last week with a discount of 10c. a barrel instead of 5c. as heretofore.

Sand and Gravel.—The market has greater freedom than it has had for some time, owing to the drop in the intensity of the Federal requirements. While there is an amount of activity from civil building sources the volume is not great, and no material additional business is expected for the next two or three months or until the building situation has had sufficient time to adjust itself to the new conditions. Prospects for the spring and summer of 1919 are steadily brightening. Prices are firm and unchanged.

Lumber.—Metropolitan lumber interests are practically marking time until the general building situation has become settled and the exact status of the industry determined. There is a very optimistic tone to the market both in the wholesale and retail departments of trade due for the greater part to the widespread feeling that the coming months will witness a marked resumption in building activity throughout the entire territory. The demand from manufacturing consumers is holding steadily and will likely continue as the War Industries Board recently removed the restrictions from a number of non-essential industries that were heavy users of lumber. The price situation is practically without change, and there is nothing at the present time that would seem to indicate a recession from the existing levels.

Structural Steel.—Although there has been a rumor of important building projects announced during the past few weeks that will require fabricated steel in large tonnages the inquiries have not as yet been received and it is generally thought that these projects will be held over until next year for a reduction in steel prices. One of the factors in holding up a large amount of new construction work is the present high cost of structural shapes, and if there comes a substantial reduction in the cost of erected steel brought about by a lowered steel price and a reduction in labor costs there is every likelihood that a large percentage of the contemplated construction would be started without further delay on the part of the builders. There is yet a considerable amount of Government business in the market, but it is nothing as compared to the volume being handled by the steel mills only a few weeks ago.

Window Glass.—Producers of both plate and window glass are as yet undecided as to their plans for the immediate future, and it is now generally considered unlikely that there will be an early resumption of manufacturing operations. The stocks in the hands of the dealers are at present at a low ebb, and if there should be a sudden demand for glass as the result of a strong building revival there is every probability that a glass famine would occur and prices jump to almost prohibitive levels. At the present writing the schedule of manufacturers' discounts remains unchanged.

Linseed Oil.—Demand is exceedingly dull, and no increase in the volume of business is anticipated until there is a marked resumption of structural activity throughout the entire country. Prices are somewhat easier than they have been and during the past week dropped off 5c. a gallon.

Cast Iron Pipe.—The past week or so has been a dull period for the manufacturers of cast iron pipe and aside from a limited volume of municipal business the immediate future is not promising. The season is too far advanced to admit of ordering for large public improvements and what is contemplated in this line will in all probability be held in abeyance until next spring. At that the labor and material situation will have become readjusted and the entire outlook changed. Cast iron prices are steady and unchanged.

Wire Products.—The manufacturing situation is extremely quiet and the producers of wire and wire nails are chiefly concerned with filling old contracts and acquiring supplies of steel for future operations. There is at present little buying interest manifest and no great activity in this line is looked for until the requirements of the coming spring for building and fencing are entered in the market. Prices are unchanged.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR FUEL EFFICIENCY

New York Building Managers' Association Call Attention to the Suggestions of the Fuel Administration

THE Fuel Administration, under date of Nov. 22, forbade the delivery of domestic sizes of anthracite, including pea and larger, to office buildings, public and private garages, retail and department stores, auto industries and show rooms, club houses, banks, florists, candy manufacturers, lofts, storage warehouses, dyeing establishments, taxicab companies, clothing manufacturers, or stores.

Later on the authorities rescinded this so far as pea is concerned. At the present time pea may be delivered to the above buildings. There is at the present time very little egg, stove and nut coal available, and it is for this reason that the above order was promulgated by the Administration.

Recommendations as to the most efficient use of steam sizes of anthracite in heating furnaces and also showing how the steam sizes of anthracite may be mixed with bituminous coal to good advantage, as herewith published. Every endeavor is now being made to see that the small householder and the domestic consumer is supplied with the nut, stove and egg coal that comes in this market; and in order that they may be supplied, it is most urgent that all who can, should use the steam sizes of coal.

It will be found that by carrying a small amount of ash on grates, and by not shaking down the fire too thoroughly, it will be possible to burn pea and even No. 1 in the majority of furnaces that are now burning nut and stove coal; and then, again, it is to the benefit of all who can do this to take advantage of it and thereby save the difference between the cost of the steam sizes of coal and the domestic coal, this difference being quite great at the present time.

The Fuel Administration stands ready to send an inspector and an instructor to any plant at which they think they will be unable to burn the steam sizes of coal.

Use of Steam Grades of Anthracite in Heating Furnaces.

(1) No. 1 buckwheat, and even smaller sizes of anthracite coal, can be burned in the ordinary furnace with shaking and dumping grates, if a bed of ashes is allowed to accumulate under the coal, providing there is sufficient draft.

(2) The average furnace, for at least 60 per cent. of the time, operates below its capacity, and during such times steam sizes of coal will supply the necessary amount of heat.

(3) The smaller sizes of anthracite can be used at night to bank fires and on warm days, thus saving the larger sizes for use in severe cold weather.

(4) At night, after the fire is shaken down and some of the larger coal put on, the fire can be banked for the night by shoveling on a top dressing of No. 1 buckwheat.

(5) In the morning the furnace should be shaken down as usual and fired with some of the large coal.

(6) In the mild weather, after the fire has begun to burn well, it can be checked or banked by using a quantity of buckwheat as a top dressing.

(7) The two sizes of coal should never be mixed, but kept in separate bins. The Buckwheat should be used only as a top dressing.

Use of a Mixture of Steam Grades of Anthracite With Semi-Bituminous in Steam Plants.

(1) If the furnace equipment is designed for pea coal or larger sizes of anthracite, steam sizes of anthracite may be used by mixing a small amount of semi-bituminous coal with No. 1 buckwheat or smaller to act as a binder to hold the fire on the grates, and also to increase the caloric value. The amount necessary to bind the fuel varies from 5 to 10 per cent. This mixture can be burned without smoke. Smaller sizes of anthracite may require as much as 20 per cent. of semi-bituminous.

(2) It is often advisable, when untrained firemen are handling these mixtures, to have a small pile of semi-bituminous on the boiler room floor where the men can get it to fill holes or thin spots that may develop in the fire.

(3) Proper mixing is most essential. It may be done either by delivering in wheelbarrow alternate and predetermined portions of the two kinds of coal, and then mixing by not less than two turn-overs with a shovel before dumping in front of the furnace; or on a large scale, by a similar delivery of car load lots to the coal tipple.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

Fabricated Steel Products Co. recently leased offices in the City Investing Building, 165 Broadway, for new local headquarters.

State Architect Lewis F. Pilcher has been selected on the committee to prepare plans for the great victory arch which New York City contemplates erecting to commemorate the successful closing of the war.

McClintic-Marshall Export Co. has been formed to sell, in the foreign field, the products of the McClintic-Marshall Co. and the Riter-Conley Co. with sales offices at 50 Church street, New York, in charge of R. W. Knight formerly contracting engineer, Pittsburgh.

American Institute of Architects held a meeting at the Fine Arts Building, Tuesday evening, at which the subject for discussion was "Reconstruction in France." Captain Raymond Michel and Pierre LeBourgeois of the French High Commission; Jacques Greber, and Abbe Marcel Souris made addresses.

American Museum of Safety, 18 West 24th street, New York, recently obtained permission to change its name to the Safety Institute of America. The officers for the coming year are Arthur Williams, president; James Speyer, treasurer; Dr. William J. Moran, secretary. The vice-presidents are E. H. Gary, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Dr. William H. Nichols, Charles E. Hughes, and B. B. Thayer.

Hugh J. Pritchard was recently elected president of the National Conduit & Cable Co. to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George J. Jackson. G. H. Hawley, who has been connected with the Ansonia Brass & Copper Co., has been elected a vice-president of the National Conduit Company in charge of manufacture.

H. W. Johns-Manville Company, manufacturers of asbestos and magnesia products, will build a new $3,000,000 plant upon 255 acres lying north of and adjoining Waukegan, Ill., between the Northwestern Railroad and the lake, which it has just acquired. Construction will be started immediately. The new plant, which will be a duplicate of the company's plant at Manville, N. J., will furnish employment to 2,500 to 3,000 people. It will have a yearly output of more than 35,000 cars. The company find the new plant necessary not only to meet present demands but the huge reconstruction period.

Portland Cement Association announces the appointment of Wm. M. Kinney as general manager to succeed H. E. Hiltz, resigned. Mr. Kinney has been connected with the cement industry in cement and concrete promotion work for more than eleven years, having occupied for the past four years the positions of engineer, promotion bureau and inspecting engineer of the Universal Portland Cement Company. He is an associate member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and American Railway Engineering Association, a member of the American Society for Testing Materials, American Concrete Institute, Western Society of Engineers, Engineers' Club of New York, Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, and Chicago Engineers' Club. He has been particularly active in the work of the American Society for Testing Materials, being vice-chairman of Committee C-1 on Cement and a member of the Executive Committee. He is a member of the Executive Committee, and secretary of the Committee on Concrete Roads and Pavements of the American Concrete Institute. Mr. Kinney was largely instrumental in establishing the Structural Materials Research Laboratory at Lewis Institute, Chicago, under the direction of Professor D. A. Abrams, and has been since its inception a member of the Advisory Committee.

Harry Leslie Walker, architect, has been appointed District Business Manager for District No. 2 of the Committee of Education and Special Training of the War Department. District No. 2 comprises the States of New York and New Jersey. In this position Mr. Walker will have charge of all contractual and other business relations in connection with the "Students Army Training Corps." between about forty colleges and universities in the two States mentioned and the War Department.

Retail Lumber Dealers' Convention.

The 25th annual convention of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of the State of New York will be held at the Hotel Iroquois, Buffalo, January 21, 22 and 23. The association has a particularly happy time for celebrating the completion of twenty-five years of association endeavor, and special efforts will be made to make the convention the best the organization has ever held. The problems arising with the coming of peace, no less than those which came up during the many months of war activity, require the best thought of business men, and a full discussion of the new conditions should be of interest and value to all in the trade.

STEEL AVAILABLE FOR BUILDERS

Architects, engineers and contractors who have projected work that is being held up on account of the scarcity of fabricated steel are invited to examine the lists of lattice and plate girders we are offering. The lattice girders vary in length from 39 feet to 51 feet and in depth from 4 feet 5 inches to 6 feet, and all have a safe carrying capacity of 2500 lbs. per lineal foot. Also a number of columns 16 to 18 feet high are offered.

Girders of this type may be used to excellent advantage in the construction of garages, moving picture theatres, factory and warehouse buildings, crane runways, trestles and as bridges for trolley roads and highway spans.

Some of these lattice girders are now available for shipment. Majority available for shipment within thirty, sixty and ninety days.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION will hold its annual meeting and convention at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, December 9-11.

THE MANUFACTURERS' COUNCIL OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY has planned for a meeting at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, December 11, with sessions throughout the day and evening, to consider readjustment plans and needs of the industries of the State. Warren C. King is president of the council.

TECHNICAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA holds its regular meeting second Friday of each month. Oscar S. Teale, secretary, 35 Broadway.

NEW YORK STATE RETAIL HARDWARE ASSOCIATION will hold its annual convention and exhibition at Buffalo, N. Y., February 25 to 28, 1919. The convention headquarters will be at the Hotel Lafayette and the exhibition at the Broadway Auditorium.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS. Monthly meeting second Tuesday of each month. Calvin W. Rice, secretary, 29 West 39th st.

AMERICAN HARDWARE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION and NATIONAL HARDWARE ASSOCIATION will hold a joint convention at Atlantic City, N. J., December 11 to 13, inclusive. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Traymore. F. D. Mitchell, secretary, American Hardware Manufacturers' Association, Woolworth Building, New York City. T. James Fernley, secretary, National Hardware Association, Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW YORK LUMBER TRADE ASSOCIATION will hold a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday evening January 27. The proposition to hold a dinner this season originated before the signing of the armistice, and at the annual meeting on November 13 the secretary reported, as a result of the canvass taken a week previous, that the sentiment was strong for resuming the annual banquet, which for so long has been a feature of the lumber trade in New York. The committee having the matter in charge is composed of Russell J. Perrine, who is chairman; Everett L. Barnard, Henry Cape and J. C. Turner. Every effort will be made to make the affair a memorable one in the history of the association.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association will hold its business session at the Waldorf-Astoria Tuesday, Dec. 10. In the evening the lumber dealers of the metropolitan district are expected to join the committee for dinner, after which General Boyle, the counsel of the association, will present an address. A large attendance is desired, as the committee want all the members of the association to understand the program and progress which the national organization is making.

Business Men Declare For Business As Usual

Atlantic City, Dec. 10, 1918.

THE greatest piece of constructive work accomplished by the convention of business men held here last week under the initiative of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was the re-establishment of American pluck and determination to achieve success in the minds of several thousand leaders in hundreds of lines of business who came here disposed to have confirmed their opinion that the country was in for a bad time generally for the next few years.

It is probably true that nine out of every ten delegates to the convention expected to hear that conditions elsewhere in the United States were much worse than in his own community where he was assured "there was likely to be trouble." There had not been any trouble yet, it was true, but just wait until one of many things happened and then everybody would see what we were up against. There were the four million soldier boys who would be back in a short time and want jobs—and would have to have them even if some other fellows who had been just as patriotically at work but who had not been in uniform had to get out. There was the labor question, meaning the question of a reduction of wages, and just listen to what Gompers said last week. And there was the matter of the piles and piles of wool, and iron and wheat and cotton and tractors and autos and monkey wrenches and a million other things that the Government had bought, at high prices, had not used, and was now ready to dump into the regular channels of trade at a price that would play havoc with the whole works. These were only a few of the things that "were going to" bring about chaos, and nearly every man had local variants of the tales of woe. Gossip had been busy spreading the propaganda of disintegration and decay and possible revolution throughout the clubs and in the corner groceries of the whole country.

And these men who are good business men because they keep in touch with what is public opinion and community affairs had been influenced to despair of getting back to normal conditions without panicky times.

That's how it was when the convention met. In two days seven men had turned nearly five thousand timorous and hesitant individuals who were apparently ready to settle down into aimless acceptance of an inactive and unprofitable period of reconstruction into a militant body of alert, vigorous American manhood ready to make Business Depression look like Chateau Thierry after the old 69th had smashed its way through it over the flower of the Hun's army.

These seven men deserve the Congressional Medal or surely as General Pershing did. They said, relying on their intimate knowledge of the tested enterprising character of the American business man, as General Pershing knew that he could depend on the men in his army when he offered it to General Foch, that the American Army of Commerce was equal to the emergency which confronted it and was ready to and would go over the top.

The American Expeditionary Force without the grit and courage and confidence of General Pershing would have made a sorry exhibition of itself instead of acquitting itself with glory. The American Commercial Force under the inspiring leadership of Generals Wheeler and Schwab and Redfield and Farrell and Rockefeller and Warburg and Baruch has turned "face front" and is ready for business.

It took nerve to say to five thousand men, hungry for foreign trade to keep their will wheels turning, that the United States must not try to bag the foreign commerce of the world but must practice the doctrine of live and let live so that the American people could not be accused of dollar philanthropy—but that is what Mr. Harry A. Wheeler, President of the Chamber of Commerce and Chairman of the convention did not hesitate to say, and was heartily applauded.

It was courageous for Mr. Charles M. Schwab, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company, to suggest borrowing money to build factories when the five thousand pessimists in front of him were wondering what they were going to do with the plants they had—but he made them feel he was on the right track.

It required vision to urge upon a crowd of men burdened with the problems of practical business to seek the aid of science in shaping the future so that competition would be more easily overcome, but Secretary William C. Redfield lifted a big load off the tired business men's shoulders when he showed them that with the aid of the machinery in the Department of Commerce they could cut the costs of manufacture and enable them to meet foreign competition on better terms.

It was only to a nation that had been baptized with fire for humanity's sake that a man could say we must not accept as our commercial standard the principles that had brought the hatred of the world upon the heads of the German people, but James A. Farrell, President of the U. S. Steel Corporation, declared that the future security of the world could not be brought about by waging a perpetual bloodless war, inspired by the same enmity, suspicions and fears that but lately divided the world—and the men who are the keenest in business competition in the whole world saw the truth in what he said.

High purpose was necessary to point out to those who had grudgingly admitted labor to a share in the profits of business that still more of freedom and of generous participation must be granted to the partners of Capital in the world's work if the land was to be made safe to live in—but Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, creed was subscribed to with enthusiasm by the men who had

Industrial Creed Proposed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Unanimously Adopted by Nearly 5,000 Representatives of 381 Lines of Business at the Atlantic City Convention of War Service Committees Called Together by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to Plan the Readjustment of the Nation's from a War to a Peace Basis.

1. I believe that labor and capital are partners, not enemies; that their interests are common interests, not opposed, and that neither can attain the fullest measure of prosperity at the expense of the other, but only in association with the other.

2. I believe that the purpose of industry is quite as much to advance social well being as a material well being, and that in the pursuit of that purpose the interests of the community should be carefully considered, the well being of the employes as respects living and working conditions should be fully guarded, management should be adequately recognized and capital should be justly compensated, and that failure in any of these particulars means loss to all four.

3. I believe that every man is entitled to an opportunity to earn a living, to fair wages, to reasonable hours of work and proper working conditions; to a decent home, to the opportunity to pay, to learn, to worship and to love, as well as to toil, and that the responsibility rests as heavily upon industry as upon government or society to see that these conditions and opportunities prevail.

4. I believe that industry, efficiency and initiative, wherever found, should be encouraged and adequately rewarded, and that indolence, indifference and restriction of production should be discour-

5. I believe that the provision of adequate means of uncovering grievances and promptly adjusting them is of fundamental importance to the successful conduct of industry.

6. I believe that the most potent measure in bringing about industrial harmony and prosperity is adequate representation of the parties in interest; that existing forms of representation should be carefully studied and availed of in so far as they may be found to have merit and are adaptable to the peculiar conditions in the various industries.

7. I believe that the application of right principles never fails to effect right relations; that the letter killeth and the spirit maketh alive; that forms are wholly secondary while attitude and spirit are all important, and that only as the parties in industry are animated by the spirit of fair play, justice to all and brotherhood will any plans which they may mutually work out succeed.

8. I believe that that man renders the greatest social service who so co-operates in the organization of industry as to afford to the largest number of men the greatest opportunity for self-development and the enjoyment by every man of those benefits which his own work adds to the wealth of civilization.

looked askance at any further concession to labor, and were only a short time before quaking because they were so doing.

It was a bold proposal to continue making common cause with our allies by further loans of money and extensions of credits for the purchase of raw and manufactured material when business here was seeking Capital for its own uses—but Mr. Paul Warburg had the audacity to see New York vying with London as a world exchange market if the national effort, born in idealism, is properly safeguarded from debauchery of unscrupulous business methods and ineffective or disturbing Governmental action.

It was almost revolutionary to ask if the wasteful practice of competition under some circumstances should not be done away with—but Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, retiring chairman of the War Industries Board, made this suggestion as the result of the knowledge he has acquired in the Government war service to this assemblage of men whose training has been rather in the art of commercial warfare than in the field of non-competitive combinations.

The fearlessness and audacity and inspiring attitude of these seven speakers, who had accepted the rates of leaders because they were broad minded, with clear vision and had the courage of their convictions, turned the thoughts of the allied business men from the contemplation of the coming of troublous times to the determination to act together and at once to prevent the undermining of the business structure; to present a united front to the approach of disturbing elements; to depend on individual initiative and the characteristic American habit of the will to put things over and so prevent a period of depression by joining hands to force the continuance of prosperity. Panic is more a state of mind than a condition of facts—this fear of what may happen than a knowledge of what actually is.

So these men, who prevented a rout and compelled their business associates to think in terms of victory, deserve at least the thanks of the country even if they cannot have the Congressional Medal for merit. It's a good job to inspire a lot of half beaten men with the purpose of making a winning fight.

Of course these men had some very telling arguments with which to counteract the gossip prognostications of hard times to come. They made good use of the following facts: That the soldiers are not all to be sent home at once; that immigration, which has practically been nil for several years, has to make up a deficit of 5,000,000 before it can again be a formidable factor in furnishing an over supply of unskilled labor; that the shipbuilding program calls for more than double the output next year, with consequent urgent need of more shipyard workers than are now employed; that the Government will not dump goods on the market in such way as to demoralize business; that the whole world looks to us for raw and manufactured products, for money, for credits and that therefore the high cost of living will be maintained, that wages will not be materially reduced and that the cost of materials will continue on a high level; that there was more money than ever before for constructive work; that normal times are on the way, but "normal times" meaning a period in which the relative proportions will again exist, but naturally on a higher level than before the war.

So 5,000 leading business men, enthused by the undaunted spirit of seven, went home to preach the doctrine of readjustment in an optimistic frame of mind.

The next most important action of the Convention was the creation of a new and powerful federation of American industries. This Association, made up of the

Offers Comprehensive Port Development Plan

New York and New Jersey Joint Commission Recommends Creation of Port District—No Federal Tunnel Appropriation

A PROPOSED agreement between this State and New Jersey for the development of this port on a comprehensive plan has been prepared and published by the New York and New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission.

The Commission recites the fact that in 1834 New York and New Jersey entered into a treaty relating to the Government of the waters of the port of New York, and states that the further development of the terminal facilities in the port can best be accomplished by the cooperation of the two States under an amendment of the treaty of 1834. It is proposed that each State pledge to cooperate "in the future planning and development of the port of New York" and makes possible the creation of a "Port of New York District."

The treaty does not fix the boundary lines of the district. These are to be determined by the Legislatures of the two States. The treaty creates what is termed "The Port of New York Authority," made up of six commissioners, three to be appointed from each State, having authority to purchase, acquire, construct, lease and operate any terminal or transportation facility within the district; to make charges and establish rates of toll for the use of the same, and to take, own, hold, lease and operate any kind of property; to borrow money and secure the same by bonds or mortgage upon the property held or to be held by it.

It is provided that the treaty is not to affect the legal title to any property now vested in or held by either of the two States or by New York city or any other city, county or village within the district. Nor does it affect the revenues now derived by the city from its dock properties. The treaty would authorize the port authority to make orders, rules and regulations within the port district for the improvement of navigation and commerce not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States or of either State or with acts of Congress; and it provides a method by which rules, orders and regulations are to be made effective only after submission to the municipalities within the district for their approval.

The proposed plan does not deal with the physical or economic features of port development. These are being separately studied by the commission and will form the basis of its report to the Legislatures of both States. The treaty is based, however, upon the assumption that the commission will conclude from its study that comprehensive development of port facilities must come through the cooperation of the two States, joining when necessary with Federal and municipal authorities, acting through a legally constituted agency vested with broad legal powers to build, maintain and operate port facilities, to improve commerce and navigation at the port, to borrow money for the purpose and to deal with all phases of the matter by public or private ownership or by both.

All legal questions were carefully considered by the commission before this synopsis of the proposed treaty was made public.

It is stated that the plans of the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission do not collide with the proposed improvements for New York city urged by Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert.

The commission consists of William R. Willcox, chairman; E. H. Outerbridge, Arthur Curtiss James, representing New York; and J. Spencer Smith, vice-chairman; De Witt Van Buskirk and Frank R. Ford, representing New Jersey, with William Leary, secretary; B. F. Cresson, Jr., consulting engineer, and Julius Henry Cohen, counsel. The proposed treaty creates a legal plan for the comprehensive development of the port under a strong central authority.

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee voted on Thursday its disapproval of the Calder bill, providing for an appropriation by the Government of $6,000,000 to build a vehicle tunnel under the Hudson River at New York. A decision not to report the bill to the Senate was reached after the committee had heard representatives of the Joint Tunnel Commission of New York and New Jersey and other advocates of the tunnel scheme.

The project was rejected on the ground that Congress would be setting a precedent for tunnel and bridge enterprises, backed by Government capital, in other communities. Senator Kellogg of Minnesota said there was no more reason for the Government building a tunnel under the Hudson River than under the Mississippi River.

Gen. Goethals explained that he had passed on the question of whether the New York and New Jersey shores ought to be connected by bridge or by tunnel. "I decided against a bridge because it would be an obstruction to navigation," he said. "If destroyed in time of war it would block navigation. A vehicular tunnel project would relieve congestion where a bridge would not and fogs and ice would not be the terror to traffic that they are now."

Gen. Goethals' plan embraced a tube forty-two feet in diameter, of concrete block construction, with two tiers and a sufficient width to allow three trucks to pass. It also provided for a footpath. An engineering firm, he said, had estimated the cost at $12,000,000 and that it would take two years to build it. The yearly maintenance was placed at $125,000.

"This tunnel," he said, "would relieve congestion along the shore front and if the proposed port development, with a large freight classification yard on the New Jersey side, is followed out it would bring material relief in lightering and other river traffic, now very much congested."

Among those at the hearing were General George W. Goethals, who was called in by the Joint Tunnel Commission as an expert; E. W. Bloomingdale of New York, chairman of the Joint Commission; Paul Windell, counsel of the commission; George W. Dyer, chairman of the New York Tunnel Commission; William H. Noyes, chairman of the New Jersey Tunnel Commission; former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey; Edward A. Byrne, consulting engineer of the New York Tunnel Commission, and J. D. Tamblin, Associate Secretary of the New York Chamber of Commerce, Governor-elect Smith of New York and Governor Edge of New Jersey telegraphed their inability to attend.

At the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission Mayor Hylan expressed more sympathy with the port development urged by Dock Commissioner Hulbert than he has in his previous public utterances. He indicated that his attitude hitherto had been taken more or less

Own Your Own Home Campaign Inaugurated

National Federation of Construction Industries Starts Country-Wide Propaganda—Directors Elected at Convention

It is indicative of the importance of real estate and construction development in the business life of the country that out of 381 committees representing the great lines of industries which met recently at Atlantic City to consider reconstruction problems, 97 were interested in construction. Following the larger conference these 97 committees met in convention called by the National Federation of Construction Industries to consider the business outlook and to decide upon the best means of immediately tackling construction problems.

Among the prominent men who were present at the meeting and who discussed the question at issue were D. R. McLennan, chief of the Non-war Section of the War Industries Board; Hugh MacDonald, assistant in the newly created Surplus Materials Division of the Housing Corporation; Judge E. B. Parker, Chairman of the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board, and Hon. William B. Calder, Senator from New York.

The most significant action taken at the Convention was the launching of an "Own Your Own Home" Campaign in which all the various organizations represented will participate. It was pointed out that although great public works might temporarily absorb labor and materials, the ultimate economic basis of normal conditions must rest on private construction. In fact a return to normal conditions can only be reached after the buildings deferred on account of the war, for which there is now so insistent demand as shown in advancing rents and shortage of space, have been replaced. The "Own Your Own Home" Campaign to be launched by the Federation is the first step in this direction.

To carry the campaign through, it is proposed to capitalize the community interest in housing, which has been stimulated during the war, and to enlist the co-operation of the various Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and Real Estate Boards throughout the country. If the opinion of a well-known expert on business conditions who recently stated that "the experience of the past shows that building is active when prices are highest" may be taken as an indication, the timeliness of this movement is well gauged. Not only is there an insistent demand for more and better housing accommodations in most of the larger cities of the country, but high wages and general prosperity which always accompany high prices make home building particularly attractive. If the interest of American communities in housing can be properly directed, much of the emergency war construction in this field will be made of permanent benefit to the country.

The direction of the campaign will be in the hands of a group of prominent men in the building field—among these are Colonel John R. Wiggins, of Philadelphia, President of the National Association of Builders' Exchange; L. McNamara (St. Louis, Mo.), President, National Association of Master Plumbers; J. J. Comerford (Detroit, Mich.), President, National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association; Col. Sam Tate (Tate, Ga.), representing the National Marble Association; Hugh Cotty (New York), General Contractor; F. T. Miller (New York), President, F. W. Dodge Company, representing the trade press; Thomas Earle (S. Bethlehem, Pa.), President, Steel Fabricators of the United States; J. T. Duryea (Syracuse, N. Y.), representing the Boiler and Radiator Manufacturers' Association; C. W. Gompertz (San Francisco), General Contractor; A. M. Maddock, of the Sanitary Potteries Company, Trenton, N. J.; Ernest T. Trigg, of the G. B. Lucas Paint Co., Philadelphia, President, National Federation of Construction Industries; B. F. Affleck, President (Chicago), Portland Cement Association; W. C. Dickey (Kansas City), representing the Clay Products Association; John L. Kaul (Birmingham, Ala.), representing the National Supply Manufacturers' Association; John A. Kling (Cleveland), representing the National Builders' Supply Association.

A meeting of these men has been called at Chicago for January 8th, 1919, to consider the details of the campaign.

Officers of the Federation are: Ernest T. Trigg, President; A. M. Maddock, Treasurer.

Comptroller Travis' Plan for New Taxation

ALBANY, N. Y., December 11.—State Comptroller Travis says that the imposition of a State income tax on all general business corporations and partnerships, including manufacturers, appears to be the best solution for increasing the State's revenues to meet the constantly growing cost. According to the Controller's estimate, about $15,000,000 would be realized annually from this new source which would help to offset the loss of $12,000,000 excise tax and the increased cost of government, without the need of increasing the present direct tax on general property or developing any new special taxes of an indirect nature on franchises, privileges and incomes to overcome the expected decrease in revenues.

"That the present system of taxation is unscientific has been demonstrated," said the Controller, "as under it the real property pays a tax out of proportion to that paid on intangible property which cannot be successfully taxed by unskilled and underpaid boards of local assessors.

"The general property tax plan of this State has fallen down with particular reference to the taxation of personal property. Under our laws, the assessors are supposed to assess each taxable person with the amount of personal property owned. It is estimated by some that the amount of personal property owned in the State of New York is three and one-half of the State. Examination of the assessment rolls shows that the amount of personal property assessed in 1917 equals but 4 per cent. of the amount of real property so assessed. In fact the history of this subject reveals that in 1866 25 per cent. of the taxable property assessed in the State was personalty. Since 1866 the percentage has steadily declined.

"It is the experience in Europe and in the several States of this country that if you tax personal property at a greater rate than say $8 per $1,000 the taxpayers will by one method or another conceal their property and evade the payment of the tax.

"It is not possible in the short space of time adequately to discuss the measures necessary to produce substantial justice of taxation in the State. Briefly, however, my plan is as follows: First, re-enact the law in force until 1911 imposing a tax upon the property of non-resident decedents similar to that adopted in nearly every other State.

"Second, the imposition of a State income tax on all individuals, general business corporations and partnerships, including manufacturers.

"Third, the mortgage recording tax should be repealed and mortgages should be taxed annually at the rates prescribed for investments. Some may be shocked at such a proposal, but upon analysis all reasonable persons will agree.

"Fourth, the rate of investments should be increased from 2 mills to 3 or 4 mills, and the revenue received divided 'fifty-fifty' between the State and the tax district where the owner resides. As it now stands, the owners of investments are not generally paying the investment tax. In fact it is a permissive tax. I have no authority to attempt to compel its payment. It is my notion that the tax law should be amended to make the payment of this tax mandatory, and also to provide an appropriate penalty to induce its prompt payment."

Great Building Activity May Come Next Spring

Readjustment of Wage Scales and Reduction in Cost of Materials
Likely to Result in Bringing About Much Construction Work

THROUGHOUT all branches of the building industry there has recently been much discussion as to the possibilities of an early revival of industrial building activity and as to exactly what form such activity might be expected to assume. The fact of a marked increase in the number of structures to be erected for industrial occupancy is almost taken for granted as it is now assured that the United States will in future be the leading industrial nation of the world. In order to successfully maintain this position, however, a great expansion of its industrial facilities must be provided for. This presupposes the erection of factory and industrial buildings of every type and description throughout all parts of the country and a consequent period of lively activity for the building industry engaged in this kind of work. The planning for a large volume of industrial construction as an important part of the reconstruction program has occupied the attention of almost everyone associated with the building industry.

Many well informed men in the building trades are to be found who are strongly of the opinion that the cost of materials entering into the construction of buildings will have to be materially reduced before the building industry will again be able to assume its former prominent position among industries of the country. This will be necessary because the present prices of practically all materials and commodities entering into building construction and which are not actually under Federal regulation and control have advanced to a figure almost prohibitive except for structures absolutely essential and for which current high building cost is of little or no object.

These high prices are partly, but by no means entirely due to the greatly increased wages of labor, transportation and other factors entering into the cost of production. The increased cost of labor is based upon two principal factors: the first, the actual increases in money per hour, or per day which the workingman receives; and second, the loss of efficiency and consequent decrease in the rate of production which seems always to accompany any shortage of labor.

A large part of the increased cost of construction however, appears to be the direct result of the shortage in materials that was created by the abnormal demand during the past few years and which culminated with the entrance of the United States in the World war.

In other words, the producer has in many instances taken advantage of an opportunity to make a considerably larger percentage of profit on his goods than would have been possible had the times remained normal and the world conditions not upset by a great upheaval.

Now that the enormous demand for labor and supplies in so many lines has diminished as the result of the armistice and the consequent reduced pressure for munitions and supplies, competition will again make itself felt and it is possible that a lowering of the high price standards may result.

The efficiency of labor will also be materially improved now that the demand is lessened for workers in munitions factories and other essentially war industries. Without considering the question of reducing the existing scale of wages paid to labor this reduction in demand for labor will operate to bring about a further decrease in the cost of almost every kind of manufactured articles, including supplies for building construction.

Of course, there are other important influences at work at the present time that may offset much of the foregoing and operate as a factor in maintaining the existing high price levels. One of the most potent of these is likely to be a large and insistent demand for manufactured articles and raw materials from foreign countries. There has been recently a large number of inquiries for building materials from European sources and export business in these lines is likely to be a prominent feature of the business of the producers of building materials for the next year or so.

It is the opinion of a large number of close observers that if a reasonable readjustment of conditions can be made during the coming winter months considerable building activity may be anticipated during the spring and summer of 1919.

Of the total amount of money placed for building operations in the future a substantial part must be set aside for the improvement of the nation's industrial facilities.

G. EDWARD ESCHER, PRESIDENT,
White Fireproof Construction Co.

Offers Comprehensive Port Development Plan

in the interest of a diplomatic settlement of the differences between Comptroller Craig and the Dock Commissioner.

Acknowledging that there was a great demand for new piers and terminal facilities along the waterfront the Mayor added:

"We do not know how much money we shall have for that purpose. As soon as we have a concrete proposition before us we shall take it up. I am going to call a conference to iron out all these propositions. There is a demand for piers. There is no doubt that more are needed. But we must go slowly in such matters. Such things cannot be decided offhand."

Within a few days the Board of Estimate will hold a meeting to revise the appropriations outstanding against the debt limit.

In consonance with the general scheme for port development Alfred E. Marling, president of the Chamber of Commerce, during the week sent to United States Senator Calder and Representative William E. Cleary of the Committee on River and Harbors urging them to do what they could to expedite legislation that would provide for the removal of Sheel Reef, in the East River, for its entire distance.

A communication was sent also to the Board of Estimate indorsing Dock Commissioner Hulbert's plans for port development and urging immediate action signed by officials representing the Chamber of Commerce of

How to Increase Rents from One-family Houses

Examples of Buildings Remodeled in War Times Which More Than Doubled Income, Notwithstanding High Cost of Alterations

EXISTING opportunities for the profitable alteration of old dwellings into apartments are exemplified in a number of interesting projects which have recently been completed and which indicate that in spite of the cessation of building construction a number of enterprising owners have been able to capitalize the existing shortage of residential space. Even before the war and American participation in it, the trend of city life from the private house to the apartment became a marked one; within recent years the principal demand for apartments has been concentrated upon the small suite, ranging in size from one to four rooms and practically all structures of this type have been rented with ease. The stoppage of building construction tending further to restrict supply intensified the demand. With no new apartment houses in prospect, the old dwelling which had been built for the occupancy of one family and has outlived its usefulness for this purpose presented immediate possibilities for alteration and many owners and builders, regardless of the advanced cost of material and labor, began to undertake projects involving interior reconstruction and general remodeling for apartment use.

This movement has long since passed the experimental stage, and numerous instances may be given where owners have been able to realize through the expenditure of comparatively small amounts, two, three and four times as much annual income in a remodeled structure as was obtainable from the old building.

Vincent C. Pepe, of Pepe & Brother, who has been prominently identified with a number of these projects within recent years, discussed the present day opportunities along these lines and cited several instances where owners have been able to transform holdings of small income producing capacity into excellent investment holdings. Mr. Pepe said:

"The demand for small apartments in the Washington Square section, especially in altered dwellings, is growing steadily and I am in a position to state that at this time the supply is able to meet only about 40 per cent. of the demand. Never before has there been a better opportunity for property owners, builders and operators to profitably remodel the old houses in this section. In spite of the fact that the mortgage market is not encouraging, that prices of labor and material have been advancing and conditions created which for a time made it difficult to undertake even small alterations by some builders, I can provide several instances which may be regarded as typical examples of existing opportunities.

"An alteration which has just been completed concerned property under our management at 18-20 Jones Street, houses which are owned by the Greenwich Improvement Society. Before they were altered, the monthly rent returned was $70 for each house, or $140 for the two. About three months ago the owner decided upon re-improvement and a total of $7,000 was spent for the installment of steam-heat, electricity, plumbing, other interior alterations and painting. The rentals are now $310 a month for both and all the apartments were rented a month before completion to good tenants. The building project was successful in spite of the fact that it cost 30 per cent. more than a similar project would cost in ordinary times. It may be interesting to note in connection with this property that I offered it for sale about a year ago at a figure below the assessed valuation but could find no buyer. Finally the owners ordered it sold at public auction; not a single bidder appeared and the owners were compelled to bid it in.

"The property at 17 St. Luke's Place owned by Josephine Brokaw was also altered at about the same time and we experienced the same excellent results, all the apartments having been leased to responsible tenants.

"This is in a new section near Hudson Park. This property was a three story and basement brick building rented as a private house for the last five years at \$50 a month. The owner, who paid \$9,000 for it about nine years ago, spent about \$3,800 on the alteration and now realizes \$160 a month from the house. The return on the original investment was about  $5\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. but the total investment is now 15 per cent.

"The property owned by Judge Wauhope Lynn at 14 St. Luke's Place, a similar property that formerly was rented for $1,000 a year, was altered last May into studio apartments and the rental increased to $2,800 a year. These are not the only houses which have been profitably remodeled and a great many other instances can be cited in support of the contention that there are still a number of splendid existing opportunities in spite of the fact that prices are yet on a war basis. Houses which were altered in normal times show even a greater return, but I have only given instances of projects which were undertaken within recent months when conditions were not normal."

Charles E. Duross has been active in urging upon owners in the Chelsea district the necessity for the re-improvement of old dwellings and he also furnished a number of interesting examples of recent alteration projects. In discussing them he said:

"New York City was accustomed to look to emigration to keep up its steady growth, but this has been stopped for the past four years; still the city grows and it is becoming a problem to house all the inhabitants. The Tenement House Department is now taking up the subject of modifying the law, by which old houses, formerly built for private dwellings, may be changed into three and four family houses. This plan of altering dwellings has been going on for some little time in Manhattan. If the proposed tenement house changes are enacted into law, it will do a great deal to relieve congestion in accommodations and, at the same time, cause a great deal of private house property in Manhattan Borough, which is now a drug in the market, to be useful and salable.

"Many houses have already been altered into studio buildings and bachelor apartments, with great profit to the owners. Our office during the past five years and up to a year ago, when building practically ceased, induced many owners to thus improve old buildings. The field for this class of building has only begun to be developed. The demand for apartments in the altered house, in my opinion, will be permanent. Tenants appreciate the greater freedom, light and air usually found in small altered houses. Some owners have been skeptical about the permanency of such improvements but when they see the profit to be derived from the altered house, as compared to the old dwelling, they are usually willing to admit it is a good investment.

"One of our clients had a five story rear building at 64 West 9th Street which had at one time been used for factory purposes. As a factory or storehouse it was worth $1,200 per year. He decided to change it to studio apartments. He put in steam heat, electricity, ten bathrooms, painting, tiling, etc., at a cost of $10,000, and the rent from the rear building now is $4,800, the expenses being $800, showing a total profit of $4,000 and leaving him a return of thirty per cent. on the money invested for the improvements.

"I might mention another property in Tenth Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues (size 26 by 50 on a lot 26 by 100) an old four story and basement dwelling. It had been occupied by the owner, an old lady, for many years and until she died, leaving a will which directed that the property be sold and the proceeds to be given to charity. As a private house it would, after being overhauled, rent at $2,400. Our office sold the property to a Wall Street man who altered it under our supervision, with the result that the income was raised to $8,500 as against $2,400, showing a profit of $6,100 on an investment of $14,000, the cost of the alterations.

"I might also mention a smaller house in the Chelsea District as an example of a dwelling of the English type which had become obsolete and could no longer be rented as a private dwelling or even a boarding house.

Use of Portland Cement Will Be Much Greater

Large Quantities Required for Road Construction and Farm Buildings, Report at Annual Meeting of Association

A FUTURE of great possibilities was the underlying current of feeling at the annual meeting of the Portland Cement Association held at the Hotel Biltmore Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Throughout all sessions of this convention optimism was the keynote and the deliberations centered upon the preparation of plans for handling the great volume of new business that will come with the anticipated period of reconstruction rather than discussion of the adverse circumstances that for a year or more have hindered the production of cement.

Some of the members of the association came to the annual meeting direct from the great Reconstruction Congress held at Atlantic City the week previous and these men were filled with enthusiasm for making the coming year a momentous one in the economic history of the United States. The Atlantic City meeting accomplished great things in clarifying the industrial outlook and many of the thoughts presented were of great benefit to the cement interests.

It now seems assured that Portland cement will be produced in greater volume and will have a wider range of use than at any time in the past history of the industry. Active planning for construction work is now under way that makes this statement not a conjecture but a certainty.

The item of road construction alone is expected to make tremendous demands upon the cement interests during the coming year. This character of activity will in all probability continue its growth as the necessity for new road building and the reconstruction of existing roadbeds is of paramount importance to the national industrial development. The war has caused a great volume of contemplated road work to be held in abeyance and now that conditions are rapidly changing there is every prospect that a large percentage of this work will be undertaken as soon as the weather conditions warrant.

The rapid development of the tractor and motor truck and the increasing adaptability of these for short and medium distance hauls in order to conserve freight car space during the period of emergency has demonstrated that they can be used to advantage for industrial and commercial use and that the transportation costs may be reduced by their use. The one essential to the economic use of tractor and truck, however, is good roads throughout the country and this unquestionably means the construction of miles of new roads along modern lines.

Recent years have been prosperous ones for the average farmer and as a class they have accumulated reserve funds which they are now destined to use for the development of their properties. Plans are well advanced for a large amount of farm building construction during the next year or so and the farmer has learned considerable about the value of cement and its adaptability for farm building construction. Barns, stables, silos, dairy buildings and even dwellings will be constructed in great number during the years and in many instances the fundamental medium will be portland cement.

In discussing the annual meeting of the Portland Cement Association with Wm. M. Kinney, recently made general manager of this organization, he stated:

"The Portland cement interests are not at all worried about the future of the industry. Many of the problems that have beset the producing end have been disposed of and the others will naturally be solved by a speedy return to normal conditions throughout the country. There are excellent indications that the use of cement for construction work of almost every character will be greater than ever in the past and that road and farm building construction will lead the list in the requirements for the next year or so."

The annual meeting closed Wednesday evening with the annual banquet of the association at the Hotel Biltmore at which the speaker of the evening was Frank L. Mulholland, a prominent lawyer of Toledo, Ohio.

We submitted a plan, by an experienced architect, to the owner. He decided to make the improvements at a cost of $5,000, and raised the rent from $900, the former rent, to $2,250. These are actual examples of what can be done by a little thought and expenditure of necessary money. The location of this house is No. 457 West 21st Street. There is a similar alteration, on about the same plan, at No. 245 West 21st Street where the new rent was a little higher, owing to its slight advantage of location over No. 457."

Even better results have been attained on the upper west side. Mr. Duross calls attention to alterations in the group of properties known as the Kirtland Houses located at 38 West 72d St, 333 West End Avenue and 121 West 86th Street. Some of these private dwellings which formerly rented at prices ranging from $2,000 to $3,000 now rent at $10,000 to $12,500.

Edward C. Ohl, manager of Pease and Elliman's west side office, which manages a considerable number of these properties, in discussing the situation said:

"Inquiries for small apartments are more numerous than ever before and many owners of private dwellings have wisely met this demand, in a measure by altering their houses into small suites. Many more such, however, could be disposed of and leased in a short time and while the architect may be limited in his plans, concerning the small individual unit generally involved, it seems that there is still room for improvement. House-keeping facilities are in most part inadequate, due, no doubt, to the various restrictions of the city departments, upon which point there is now some discussion and if remedied a plan may be devised that would prove very popular to a vast number to whom this feature would very much appeal.

"Notable among the recent remodeled dwellings on the west side, which we had no difficulty in disposing of all the apartments in a short time, are those at No. 39 West 76th Street and 48 West 72nd Street. These two converted private dwellings before being altered could probably have been rented for about $2,500 or $3,000, while at the present time they are producing an annual gross rental of $7,500 to $8,500. On this basis private residences, as an investment, present an interesting proposition and considering the adverse conditions under which these improvements were installed and the likelihood that in some respects building and labor conditions will ease up, many other private house owners will be induced to enter this field."

The four story and basement residence at 330 West 86th Street figured in an interesting project. This house, formerly occupied by one family, contained 12 rooms and 2 baths and brought from $2,200 to $2,400 a year. This property was remodeled into a 5-story house, now contains two apartments on each floor, consisting of one apartment of 3 rooms and bath in the front and an apartment of 2 rooms and bath in the rear, a total of 10 apartments, which bring in an annual gross rental of $11,000. While figures concerning the cost of this alteration are not available, the outlay probably was not more than $12,000.

William R. Ware who has also been actively identified with the rental of apartments and remodeled dwellings on the upper West Side furnishes an interesting example in the three-story and basement house at 228 West 82d St., which formerly rented at $1,200 a year as a private house and which, after an alteration at comparatively small cost, now shows an annual return of $2,640.

Analysis of the Mortgage Loan Market Today

Walter Stabler, While Recognizing the Limitations Put Upon Building at Present, Believes That Future of Realty Is Bright

WALTER STABLER, comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company discussed the building loan and general mortgage situation on Tuesday night at the monthly dinner and meeting of the New York Building Managers' Association, at the Park Avenue Hotel.

After declaring that large loaning institutions such as the life insurance companies were out of the market on account of heavy Liberty Bond purchases, he expressed the opinion that the building revival would come slowly and that the resumption of activity would be gradual rather than sudden. The revival in his opinion, depends upon financial arrangements and he suggested the bond issue, popular in other cities, as a possible solution.

Mr. Stabler who was introduced by Chairman William T. Ropes as the best posted man on the local financial situation, said:

"Real Estate has passed through the greatest epoch in its history. Not even in 1873, which I understand was the most critical period, nor in 1893, 1904, 1907 and 1914—never in all these years has real estate met and conquered adverse conditions such as have existed during the war period.

"Before the war we had already begun to slow down in building construction largely as a result of the overproduction of apartment, loft and office buildings. You are all familiar with the great accumulation of office space in this city which amounted almost to a tragedy.

"But even the most pessimistic of us saw the period when this tremendous over-supply of space was absorbed and we may thank the war for it. We can all agree that never before in history has there been a condition so favorable as exists today with regard to real estate holdings, in spite of the high taxes and advanced labor and material costs.

"I want to impress upon you that I believe that we have a most promising future. I have always been optimistic with regard to real estate but I am particularly so now. We have a great many problems to face but they will be the easier for solution on account of the improved standing of real estate holdings, largely due to the increase in rent and I feel confident that such good conditions will continue.

"Since the war began building has slowed down until it eventually stopped and there is now no construction, as we know it now, in any part of the United States except those Government projects which were undertaken as war measures. But the other kind of building construction, such as we are interested in will, it is hoped, start but it must start slowly. The country is bare of materials necessary for building construction and it will take a long time to recuperate, but the return of building activity must come as a normal development. There is little doubt that we will have lower prices of steel but as against this we are confronted with a shortage of brick, cement and other necessary building materials and the high cost of labor.

"Very little present-day building of importance is now undertaken without the necessary finance and at present there is no money available for this purpose. The large reservoirs of money heretofore available, the life insurance companies are completely loaded up with Liberty Bonds that have come in recent issues and the companies are preparing for anticipated issues. These institutions have made heavy subscriptions to bonds in the United States and Canada and it will take a year or more to pay for them. We have not been buying these bonds because we think less of real estate, but because we deemed it our patriotic duty and the life insurance companies have performed their patriotic duty to the limit. I speak for my company and may also express the same opinion for the other life insurance companies, all of whom have also gone to the limit of their resources in connection with bond purchases. Savings banks are in practically the same position; they have also made large investments. Their outlook, however, is somewhat different because they anticipate the return of large sums which were withdrawn during the war period, money which was popularly called "stocking money." These funds are being returned in steadily increasing amounts and the banks expect to have considerable money in the future, for release into the real estate field. I am informed that some of these banks are now taking applications for mortgage owners. But this encouraging situation has no effect on the building outlook because savings banks are prohibited by law from making building loans and that is the particular phase of the situation in which you and I are interested.

"I wish to repeat that there is no time like the present offering more possibilities for the building loan operator. When he begins to realize that there are opportunities to get back into the market, things will begin to pick up. If the situation could be created whereby the building loan upon the completion of the operation, would be turned into a permanent loan and if it could become known more generally that savings banks and others are in a position to take these permanent loans, there is bound to be a revival and whatever is done will tend to relieve present congestion as far as all kinds of property is concerned.

"Moderation will make for safety and I hope that we never reach the point reached eight years ago when so many lenders encouraged builders too liberally and permitted entirely too many structures to be erected. But we all learned our lesson. The moderate resumption of building will work great advantages to the city without working to the disadvantage of the present favorable condition. It is obvious, however, that before there can be a resumption of building activities we must adopt some new plan of finance and I can suggest one plan never before used in New York City which has been extensively employed in other cities, the bond issue. I am familiar with conditions existing in many parts of the country, where new construction has been financed through bonds and notes issued in small amounts even as low as ten and fifteen thousand dollars divided into small units, the issues being controlled by proceeds. If such a plan could be practised in New York nothing would produce better results. No railroad or any other similar project thinks of any other plan and it has worked out satisfactorily. Such issues should be for long terms and above all, arrangements made for an amortization every year or six months so that the debt is greatly reduced and the loan made safe. The owner would be benefited through a reduction of his obligation and the entire situation would lead toward a conservative loan and greater confidence for lenders.

"As far as mortgages in general are concerned we have been too careless in the way we borrow and the way we lend. Speculators have had in mind one idea and that is to attain as near the expense of operation as they could. I do not blame them but I blame the lenders because this is bad principle and is productive of bad results.

"The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has a mortgage policy which requires a reduction on the principle of all its mortgages of 2 per cent. every year. This is now becoming an accepted rule with regard to practically all institutions and is based on a sound foundation. It is as much to the interest of the owner as it is to the lender because it enables him to pay all his debt in installments instead of being faced with the situation where he must meet his entire obligation. I predict that this rule will eventually be the plan of all the mortgage institutions in New York City and I hope to see it the universal practice.

"As far as I know there has been no general call for mortgage loans. I know that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has never called for payment in full when the interest and taxes were paid. If owners accept the situation cheerfully and made the requirements for the payment of small sums annually in the reduction of principle they will not alone benefit be-

Calls Conference to Unite on Tax Legislation

Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of Mayor's Committee on Taxation, Asks All Interests to Meet December 18 and 19, for Concerted Action

IN an effort to crystalize the best prevailing opinion relative to New York City taxation, the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, Nathan Hirsch, chairman, announces that public hearings will be held at the Aldermanic Chamber on Wednesday, Dec. 18, at 3 o'clock, and on Thursday, Dec. 19, at the same hour.

In a statement issued yesterday, Mr. Hirsch outlined the purposes of the hearing, the immediate plans of the committee, and announced the names of the speakers who will deliver addresses on the subject of taxation.

Mr. Hirsch's statement follows:

"A number of recent developments with a direct bearing on the tax situation, which may result in considerable losses in revenue to the City of New York, serve to bring more forcibly to the attention of every one interested in the welfare of New York City, the necessity for the undertaking of immediate measures of relief.

"The bone-dry law will mean a great loss in revenue.

"Senator Henry M. Sage, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee announced the other day that the cost of state government for next year would be fifteen million dollars more than last year, as against an estimated loss in revenue of twelve million dollars, making a total decrease of twenty-seven million dollars, the major portion of which will have to be paid by the City of New York.

"Other conditions, such as losses through subway operation, increased salaries of city employes, and the increased cost of supplies for city departments, make it imperative to seek new sources of revenue, and it may be necessary to even change fundamentally our methods of taxation.

"I am informed that various interests, including real estate association, individuals, members of the state Legislature and city officials, have prepared, or intend to prepare, certain bills for introduction at the next session of the Legislature.

"I am afraid that we are going to see a repetition in Albany of the same procedure, which has characterized the position of New York City, relative to tax bills, for the last five or ten years, when practically no relief has been obtained because they were not properly presented and supported.

"Recognizing this situation and desiring to prevent its repetition at a time in the history of New York real estate when relief has become absolutely vital, the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, after conferring with His Honor, John F. Hylan, Mayor of the City of New York, has decided to attempt a co-ordination of all the opinions of real estate men and others who have studied taxation problems, for the purpose of preparing a bill, or bills, which will represent the product of their united efforts, and which will be supported not alone by the city administration, but by all of the real estate organizations, taxpayers and citizens at large of Greater New York.

"We have called a public hearing to be held in the Aldermanic Chamber, City Hall, on Dec. 18 and 19, at 3 p. m. His honor the Mayor will preside at the meeting on the first day, and addresses will be made by Charles L. Craig, comptroller of the City of New York; by Alfred G. Milbank, chairman of the Taxation Committee of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests; and Robert E. Dowling, chairman of the Taxation and the Legislation Committee of the Real Estate Board. On Thursday, Dec. 19, addresses will be made by Eugene M. Travis, comptroller of the State of New York; by Jacob A. Cantor, president of the Department of Taxes and Assessments; by Stewart Browne, president of the Real Estate Owners Association; by Senator James A. Foley and others.

"In a further effort to obtain the best prevailing opinion, relative to the tax situation, the Mayor's Committee on Taxation has sent out the following questionnaire to leading real estate men and others qualified to express an opinion, and they have been requested to answer the following questions:

1st.—In your opinion is the present system of taxation wrong?

2nd.—What in your opinion are the fundamental defects?

3rd.—How in your opinion can these defects be remedied?

4th.—Are you in favor of a tax on personal property?

5th.—Are you in favor of a state income tax, and a business tax?

"The Mayor's Committee on Taxation would appreciate it if not only the leaders in the New York real estate field, to whom we have sent the above questionnaire, would make an early reply, but we would also appreciate it if every citizen and taxpayer in Greater New York, who desires to register his opinion, would send in replies to the Committee, Room 823, Municipal Building.

"An additional committee will be organized, to be known as the New York City Citizens Real Estate Committee, which is expected to co-operate with the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, so that we will be in a position to have the corporation counsel draft the necessary bills for real estate relief.

"I want to take this opportunity of declaring most emphatically that this movement is entirely non-partisan and non-political, and emphasize the point that only when we go to the Legislature as one great unified body, representing all interests, can we succeed."

cause their obligation which will be minimized, but the position of the lender will also be strengthened with the greater equity in the property and the loan will be a better and safer one each year.

"In closing, I wish to say that no security has ever held its own under adverse conditions so well as real estate. No security has made such a good return and weathered such storms without Government help. I grant you that vacant property is suffering largely because of building conditions but improved property has more than held its own. I can say with utmost confidence to all prospective owners of real estate that nothing will pay them better than well-located, improved, income-producing real estate."

At the regular business meeting of the Building Managers' Association a number of interesting matters came up for discussion. Chairman Ropes read a letter from the U. S. Department of Labor requesting co-operation with employers to aid returning troops to get back their old positions and to aid in the obtaining of new jobs. The building managers as an organization adopted a resolution stating that they would take back in their employ all men who had returned from the Government service and who showed either discharge or release papers. Treasurer Lee Smith reported that the membership of the association now comprised 103, that the financial condition was healthy and that all dues for the year had been paid. Other committees that reported were the Ash Removal and the Tenement House Committees. E. M. Biggs, of Brokaw Brothers, was elected an associate member.

Chairman Ropes appointed several committees which will work on the drafting of a uniform lease. These men will work out a satisfactory lease based on present ones now in use and affecting different kinds of properties.

William T. Ropes will be chairman of the general committee which will be subdivided into three smaller committees, each to deal with certain classes of property. The committee for office and semi-office building will consist of William H. Class, chairman; M. D. Littlefield and L. Dailey; for store and office buildings A. W. Warner, chairman; A. C. Bang and Aaron Robinson and for apartment houses and dwellings of R. W. Murray, chairman; M. Sloman and F. S. Bancroft.

Facts for the Timorous

When Judge Gary predicted that "the next five years in this country will be the most progressive, prosperous and successful in our history" some people professed to believe that his wish was father of his optimism. But there are certainly enough favorable facts, officially proclaimed, to justify the belief that if this country does not experience the most golden period of its existence in the next few years the people will be themselves to blame.

Business depression does not follow on good crops and the Department of Agriculture places a value of $12,272,412,000 on the nation's principal farm crops this year, exceeding the record year 1917 by $614,380,000. In other words the farmers alone have received in actual cash for their products in two years enough money to pay the entire cost of this war to the United States, including the loans to the Allies.

The United States Employment Service has received reports from thirty-four states showing that in most of the large industrial centres of the country the demand for labor equals or exceeds the supply. Buffalo is the only New York city reporting a surplus of labor, 6,000 men being temporarily idle owing to the laying off of workers on airplane contracts. In New Jersey there is a heavy shortage in several of the largest cities and in other cities no surplus, all of which means that, with little chance of immigration on the old basis, and with prospects of emigration increasingly apparent, the returning soldiers will have no difficulty in finding work. The Shipping Board announces that it can give employment to a million men.

The aggregate resources of 28,880 state and national banks throughout the country on June 30 last amounted to $40,210,000,000. These banks had deposits of $32,589,000,000 and loans of $22,046,000,000. State banks showed an increase in deposits of 5 per cent. over the record of the previous year and national banks of 9.87 per cent. The total resources of the banks of this country almost exactly equal the total cost of the war to England as stated by Lloyd George.

The Government has announced the policy of abolishing restrictions on business as rapidly as is possible or consistent with the good of the country. Dispersion of the great supplies of raw materials in possession of the Government will be made with discretion, as is evidenced by the procedure in the auction sales of wool, for which there is great demand, and which the Federal authorities propose to hold bi-weekly, in quantities that can be readily absorbed by the trade. The action of the steel manufacturers in adopting a schedule of prices materially reduced from that which is in force until the end of the year indicates that war prices generally have begun to come down.

The measures adopted by the business men of the country at the Atlantic City conventions, designed to co-ordinate the entire working forces of the nation, governmental, financial, mechanical, the trading and manufacturing units, and the transportation establishment for the readjustment of the entire commercial policy on a peace basis, is assurance that business depression can only come about with great difficulty.

The farmers are rich, money is plentiful; the bugaboo of an overabundance of labor is unsubstantiated by facts; wages can only come down gradually, and only as the cost of living is reduced; prices of raw and manufactured materials will not slump but only fall slowly; the business of the country will not be allowed to set into panicky conditions.

Strong men are at the helm—the same long headed, broad minded, resourceful, energetic Americans that in eighteen months made the United States the greatest military nation in the world, knowing next to nothing about war and caring less. It is a much simpler task for these men to make this country the greatest trading nation in the world, which was never our ambition before. They know the game, they like it and they will make the most of all the advantages we possess—which are many and great.

Encouraging, At Least

Real estate transactions during the week have assumed proportions that have not been equalled for some months and have been of a character that in ordinary times would have been taken to mean a revival of business if not the inception of a boom in the realty field. With the readjustment period only in its early stages it would be unwise to base predictions of a broad and active market upon the fact that in one week there have been double the transactions for a similar period in a long time.

But there are some facts in the news of the week which are at least significant and encouraging. The transactions have been spread over the entire city, have been largely in properties which indicated permanent investment and generally were of the character of those that form the real basis of a satisfactory and broadening real estate market. The best times in the realty business are not those when skyscrapers figure most conspicuously, with little actual money passing. It is in the marketing of private houses, tenements and small business buildings in considerable numbers that brings about a favorable tone in the real estate business. It is because this was the character of a considerable part of the week's business that it is possible to feel that perhaps the turn has come at last.

Real estate is held at such low figures now that the opportunity for good investments was never better. And this is bound to have its effect in bringing into the market many buyers who have faith in the future of this city.

All In the Day's Work

The Record and Guide acknowledges the receipt of congratulations from numerous of its readers on the comprehensive report it gave of the convention held at Atlantic City last week by the industrial leaders of the United States.

One of our readers made the observation that "only in the Record and Guide was the true atmosphere of the gathering portrayed, and the manner of handling a tremendously large and difficult subject was accomplished with the result of creating a news story of vital interest to readers in which the facts were faithfully reported and all of the non-essentials deleted."

For several thousand of the most important business men of the United States to gather to discuss War Readjustment was an occasion of vital importance. Naturally, the Record and Guide regarded it as a duty to furnish to its readers a comprehensive report of the proceedings. This, however, was merely in the line of the day's work, merely pursuing the policy by which the Record and Guide is always striving to make itself useful and valuable to its readers.

nearly 400 War Service Committees that were formed under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was created by the Committees to act in the future as the spokesman for industry before the Government just as the Committees acted separately as the point of contact between industry and the Government during the war period.

The Federation voted to function under direction of a Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and it will have back of it and serving it the Chamber's organization. When necessary it will have, too, the benefit of the weight of expression of the membership of the Chamber. The chairman of the War Service Committees will sit as an Industrial Advisory Council to the organization.

The views of this assemblage of industries respecting industrial readjustment were expressed at Atlantic City in a series of resolutions covering the most important subjects that today engage the attention of business men. These resolutions, most of them adopted without a dissenting voice, covered the following lines of action:

To remove all Governmental restrictions on industry.

That war contracts accepted by the Government in good faith, whether formally executed or not, shall be promptly and equitably adjusted.

That the War Service Committees tender their services to the Government for the purpose of assisting in the disposal of the raw and finished products acquired by it but unused during the war.

That if in special cases there shall be for a time a temporary condition of unemployment the communities thus affected shall promptly meet such conditions; that local Chambers of Commerce should be able to contribute in an important way to this work and that the development of public works of every sort, as recommended by the President, should be promptly resumed in order that opportunities may be created for unskilled labor.

The recommendations of the Shipping Board relative to the formation of local commissions at each port, the membership of which shall contain representatives of the industrial, commercial and railroad interests centering at the port, which commission shall foster the installation of needed facilities at these ports.

That hydro-electric power shall be developed wherever possible by legislation of the Federal Government.

That the Government shall extend the work of the Forest Products Laboratories.

That uniform cost accounting should be adopted by industries.

The remaining resolutions adopted at the War Conference recommended:

Encouragement and preservation of private industries shown to be essential by the war.

Removal of all obstacles to reasonable co-operation in industry.

Filling of vacancies on the Federal Trade Commission with able men of broad business experience and clear vision.

Amendment of present taxation laws, or passage of new revenue legislation.

Allowance in taxation for reserves for subsequent shrinkage in value of merchandise.

Early return of railroads to owners, allowing proper pooling, combinations or consolidations.

Opposition to Government ownership and operation of telegraphs, telephones and cables.

Construction of a great Merchant Marine.

Further study of public utilities problems.

Sharing of war materials, equipment and tonnage with, and extension of further credits to Allies.

Commission of American business men to attend Peace Conference.

Development of foreign markets.

Education in foreign trade for American youth.

Development of commercial and financial associations with other North and South American countries.

Protecting American rights in Mexico.

Organization of industries in national associations.

It was also voted that all resolutions adopted by War Service Committees, or by Related or Major Groups which came properly before the Clearance Committee and upon which no action is otherwise recommended should be referred to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for review.

New York, Dec. 12, 1918.

Editor of the Record and Guide:

In the excellent account published in the Record and Guide of November 30th relative to the conference held in the Tenement House Department last week affecting three and four-family converted dwellings, there is a slight misconception which I should like to correct.

Toward the end of the article reference is made to a letter received from former Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy, now secretary of the Tenement House Committee of the Charity Organization Society, in which it is stated that certain sections of the bill would probably be approved, certain others disapproved, etc. At the conference two bills were discussed, one having reference to three-family converted dwellings, and the other having reference to both three and four-family converted dwellings. Mr. Murphy's letter applied only to the "Three-Family Converted Dwellings" bill.

RANDOM NOTES IN THE REALTY FIELD

Will Attempt to Facilitate Sale of City-Owned Realty—Barge Terminal Construction Progressing

IN order to facilitate the sale of city-owned real estate, Comptroller Charles L. Craig plans to have introduced in the next Legislature a bill which will permit the payment of commissions to real estate brokers who dispose of city property. At the present time all of the city's real estate which is sold must either be placed upon the auction block or else purchased direct, through the Comptroller. Under the present arrangement the city cannot pay commissions to brokers.

Barge Terminal Progress.

Frank M. Williams, State Engineer and Surveyor, has notified the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens that rapid progress is being made toward the construction of the three barge canal terminals acquired by the state four years ago on the East River and Flushing Bay, so that shippers in Queens will be able to avail themselves of these additional and cheaper facilities for sending and receiving freight.

Mr. Williams, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, states: "Contracts have been awarded for the erection of a freight house and the paving of the site of the terminal to be located on the East River just north of the Queensboro Bridge. The City of New York has started proceedings under which the approach to these terminals will be opened and paved. I see no reason why construction at this site should not progress.

"As to the construction contemplated at Halletts Cove and Flushing, I wish to advise you that the work of this department has been seriously handicapped during the past few months due to the number of employees who entered the military service. I trust conditions will so adjust themselves within the very near future whereby a considerable number of these men will return to the department. If so I feel confident that construction at both Halletts Cove and Flushing should begin some time during the latter part of the winter or the very early spring."

Real Estate Men on Grand Jury.

Auctioneers Elect Officers.

James L. Wells was re-elected president of the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association at its recent annual meeting. William F. Redmond, who has been vice-president and treasurer of the association for the last year, was also re-elected. Henry Brady was elected secretary to succeed Hugh D. Smyth. Joseph P. Day will be chairman of the executive committee, the other members being Bryan L. Kennelly, Samuel Goldsticker, J. Clarence Davies and Lewis Phillips.

Suggestions of the City Club.

The City Club, in a programme for state construction effort, submitted to Governor-Elect Alfred E. Smith, urges the appointment of a commission which will take up the matter of proper housing for working people of limited income.

Commercial builders have never supplied a sufficiency of proper houses at low rents, the programme says in this connection, and the cessation of building operations during the war has made the shortage acute. The memoranda attached to the recommendations call attention to the action of the Government in building such houses for its employees near many ship yards and munitions plants and calls upon the state to extend such a policy as a peace measure. Such a commission to be appointed by the Governor should be like that appointed to plot out the zoning system in the city—having representatives of all the varied interests involved in the scheme.

The construction platform carries also the plank that the Legislature systematically push forward the completion of all necessary public works that were provided for before or during the war in order to provide employment for the men of the returning armies.

Plan Merger of Realty Boards.

Discussions at the first in a series of informal conventions of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York in Utica last week centered upon the proposed board plan of membership, in successful operation in the National Association in the State of Ohio and the State of Illinois. A plan will be submitted to the twenty-four local boards throughout the State of New York, including the Real Estate Board of New York, the Brooklyn Board of Brokers, the Real Estate Exchange of Long Island, and the Westchester Board of Brokers. The two latter organizations have already signified their intention of joining the State Association as a body.

Charles A. Miller, president of the Savings Bank of Utica, and attorney for the Savings Banks of the State of New York, delivered an address on "Taxation," warning of the danger of greatly increased taxation on real estate, especially in the city of York.

Ask Tenement Amendment.

The Rockaway Beach Property Owners' Association, which has been making an effort to secure a modification of the Tenement House law to benefit the Rockaway section, is much interested in the stand taken by the commissioners, who propose to have an amendment introduced in the coming Legislature providing that a house having a store on the ground floor and two living apartments above shall be termed a three-family house. It has been found by the commission that many storekeepers live in the rear of their stores and, as this is generally accepted as proper, they will endeavor to have the Tenement House law amended so as to legalize this use. The Property Owners' Association hopes to induce the commissioners to also amend the law so as to term a cottage a rooming house, as many persons rent a house for the summer season, and then get back part of their rental by subletting a part of the house to another family.

Brooklyn Realty Auction.

Jere Johnson, Jr., Company auctioned in the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange for the Broadway Savings Institution the dwelling 1296 Dean street, for $8,000, to Oliver Rousse; for the Bond & Mortgage Guaranty Company, 513 Myrtle avenue, for $3,800, to Nicholas Meyer; 1241 Gates avenue, to Rocco Imbsi for $1,750; 49 Taylor street, for $1,900, to Hyman Agar; 332 Stagg street, corner Bogart street, for $2,400, to Bernard A. Zinis; 148 Grattan street, corner of Varick avenue, to Bernard A. Zinis, for $6,950; six parcels bounded by Eastern Parkway, Truxton street, Stone avenue and Somers street, with frame mansion occupied as a club, for $3,350, to Herman Weingarten; lot, 25x100, corner of Stone avenue and Somers street, for $1,200, and the adjoining lot, to Mr. Weingarten, for $825. The next three lots were purchased for $2,250 by G. Reid.

Sulzberger Heirs Buy Realty.

A total of $455,000 was obtained for the Sulzberger property sold at auction in court partition proceedings by Joseph P. Day in the Vesey Street Salesroom. All of the forty properties offered were purchased in the names of interested parties and are to be turned over to a realty company now being formed by the various members of the family for the purpose of holding the realty.

Real Estate Review for the Current Week

Market Shows Remarkable Improvement, Setting New Record of Year for Weekly Volume of Business

CONTINUING its steady progress, the real estate market recorded such a substantial improvement that it not only eclipsed last week's excellent showing, but set probably a new mark for the year. It is doubtful whether so much business, covering so wide a range and involving holdings in so many sections, has been reported in a single week for the last two years.

It is not the purpose here to sound too high a note of jubilation or to become over-enthusiastic. There have been other weeks in the past which revealed sporadic outbursts of activity and which raised the drooping hopes of real estate men only to bring on new and more poignant disillusionment. The real estate millenium will never be reached as the result of an overnight revolutionary upheaval. It must come as the result of steady and normal progress, in pace with the clearance of the financial situation affecting mortgages, in pace with degrees of relief from tax burdens and in pace with the eradication of all or most of the evils which have combined within recent years to depress the market and attract capital into other fields.

Nevertheless the improvement this week was so marked and so many encouraging deals were closed that property owners, real estate brokers, building managers and all who are interested in real estate, may regard the market in a newer light, worthy of real optimism.

The expansion of business was characterized by three distinct phases, each meriting special recognition because it showed a basically healthy condition which may be taken as foundation for the belief that the market is steadily becoming sounder and that the immediate future is imbued with unusual potentialities for a strong buying moving of both unimproved and improved properties.

Probably the most important development of the week was evidence of a remarkable demand for residential properties consisting chiefly of dwellings and apartment houses in many parts of the city. The business focused attention not only upon moderate priced properties but also concerned itself with costly dwellings on the Lenox Hill and Carnegie Hill sections, and with upper west side multi-family houses. This particular phase of the situation is not new since there has been, within recent months, a steady buying movement affecting dwellings of the better class. The new development which is encouraging is the demand for the smaller types of properties by classes of buyers who have been conspicuously absent from the market for a long time. The real test of market strength is not the spectacular million dollar purchase of a well-known property by a prominent buyer or the sensational trade involving exchanges of large equities, but the purchase of the small investment holding by the buyer who intends to hold the property. While the professional buyer continued to be identified with the market and this kind of purchaser figured in a number of transactions, such a large number of new purchasers appeared that the business assumed an entirely new aspect. It is a long time since so many deals for small holdings were consummated.

Th second important trend which manifested itself was the purchase of office and loft properties and the acquisition of sites for improvement with business buildings. In spite of the prevailing opinion among men familiar with the building situation that there will be no general early resumption of construction activity, it is obvious to every one that eventually the movement must come and many prospective builders are beginning to take advantage of the splendid opportunities now existing, due to the low prices at which unimproved property is being offered for sale. That some of these transactions should affect lower west side properties is not surprising since the operation of the new Seventh Avenue subway the extension of the avenue down Varick street and the dock improvements which will probably shortly be undertaken, will make the entire neighborhood especially desirable for various kinds of wholesale firms.

Large transactions of the week affecting business properties concerned a valuable Wall Street building which was taken by the New York Stock Exchange to provide for future extension of business and a tall office building at 198 Broadway, which was bought by well-known operators.

The third conspicuous feature of the business was the unusual activity of the operators, who bought and sold properties of practically every description on both a large and small scale. The ease with which operators are reselling properties assumes a special significance at this time because knowledge of their business reveals that many of them buy with the idea of making a quick resale. The fact that they have been so active recently leads to the belief that they are anticipating in the immediate future, the return of investment capital into real estate and they are seeking to capitalize the existing low prices at which property can be now bought.

Analysis of the business of the week must disclose to even the most pessimistic market observer that the trend is unmistakably upward. The belief is steadily growing that it will continue in this direction, and this contention is based not alone upon optimism but upon progress graphically illustrated by the growing number of transactions and the expanding demand. The fact that no marked improvement in the mortgage situation has become noticeable, tends to endow the business of the week with additional importance.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 50, as against 36 last week and 20 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street, was 18, as compared with 15 last week and 8 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th street was 32 as compared with 21 last week and 12 a year ago.

From the Bronx, 14 sales at private contract were reported, as against 13 last week and 17 a year ago.

Stock Exchange Plans Expansion.

The New York Stock Exchange has purchased the Mortimer Building at the corner of Wall and New streets from Robert E. Dowling, president of the City Investing Company, for a reported price of $750,000. The building adjoins the exchange and was purchased with a view of preparing for a great expansion of business, which is anticipated in consequence of the growing importance of America's position in the world of

The building is eight stories high and nestles into the northwest corner of the Stock Exchange. It is one of the pioneer structures of the district. It was built in 1884 from plans made by George E. Post, and has a frontage of 57 feet on Wall street, 67.7 feet on New street, 52.6 feet on the southerly line and 57 feet on the easterly line.

The listings of domestic securities next year are expected to be large, and in addition bankers expect that the exchange will undertake the transaction of large business in foreign securities. In order to care for this expansion and to provide room for a new plan of clearance, which is expected to be adopted in the near future, as well as to house in one building the departments now located at 18 and 42 Broadway, and in other buildings, the Stock Exchange took advantage of the offer of the Mortimer Building. Robert E. Dowling contracted recently for the purchase of this property and that at 64 and 66 Nassau street from the Mortimer family.

Bing & Bing Buy 198 Broadway.

A lower Broadway office building has passed into new ownership with the sale of 198 Broadway by Isaac H. Clothier, of Philadelphia, to Bing & Bing.

The property, which was held at $500,000, is a twelve-story office and store building, on a lot 23 by 161.10. Mr. Clothier acquired this property in May, 1904, from the Campbell Realty Corporation, subject to a mortgage for $350,000. It is one of the many properties he purchased in this city during a speculative campaign which he terminated about five years ago. A few weeks ago Mr. Clothier sold the twelve-story Jefferson Building, on 23d and 24th streets, just west of Sixth avenue, to the same purchasers.

The Broadway property is one of the first examples of the improvement of a narrow lot with a tall structure. It is one of five ownerships forming the block front comprising the Dutch Reformed Church, corner of Fulton street, formerly occupied by the Evening Post, the Riker-Hegeman property of the Flagler estate, the Childs Restaurant property, purchased in 1910 from the Southack estate, and the Corbin Building property, at the John street corner. This and the Fulton street corner are held under leases by Elias A. Cohen, who recently remodelled the structures. The remaining John and Dey street corners of Broadway have been modernized in recent years, the most notable improvement being the new Western Union Building.

New West Street Project.

A modern business building will replace a group of old West street buildings as the result of an interesting transaction just closed. Leon S. Alt-mayer and the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company have sold for J. Seaver Page to Albert C. Merkle represented by John J. Buckley, attorney, the properties at 509, 511, 513, 515 and 517 West street, and 114, 116 and 118 Horatio street, eight business buildings, four stories and two stories in height. The property has a frontage of 109.7 feet on West street and a frontage of 125 feet on Horatio street. It is adjoined on the south by the American Seamen's Friend Society who occupy a 5½-story modern fireproof building. The buildings sold will be immediately demolished and a fireproof business structure erected covering the entire plot of about 14,000 square feet. The actual height of the new building has not yet been determined, but it will be fireproof and modern. The present houses on the premises were built prior to 1839 by Z. Volney King & Brother, and have been used continuously since then as plaster mills.

Another Horatio Street Deal.

In a deal affecting adjoining property the heirs of Frederick W. Devoe sold 100 to 110 Horatio street, through to 99 to 111 Jane street, eleven brick buildings, ranging from one to six stories in height, fronting 171 feet in the former and 161 feet in the latter thoroughfare, having a depth of about 175 feet. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, was the broker. The Devoe interests acquired the property about half a century ago, and up to about a year ago, it was occupied by the paint works of the Devoe & Reynolds Company. George Cressey is the buyer.

Manhattan—New Jersey Exchange.

A Broadway apartment house and a Montclair, New Jersey, residence figured in a $500,000 trade. The Broadway property is the St. Regis, at the northwest corner of 152d street, a six-story elevator structure, valued at $350,000, which Frederick Brown sold to the 3675 Broadway Corporation, incorporated at Albany, with W. M. Kilcullen, L. Bertcher, and J. W. Winkler as directors, and capitalized at $40,000. This house has accommodations for forty-eight families and shows a total yearly rental of $38,000. It occupies a plot 100 by 150.

Els Lodge, one of the finest estates on Upper Mountain avenue, Montclair, held at $150,000, was taken in part payment by Mr. Brown. The place contains about four acres, laid out in attractive gardens, terraces, etc., having a frontage of 600 feet on Upper Mountain avenue. It overlooks Harrison Park and from its elevated position has extensive views of Manhattan. The residence on the property contains twenty rooms and five baths, billiard room and palm room.

Out-of-Town Apartment Buyers.

Philadelphia interests have bought the ten-story apartment house at 780 Madison avenue, between 66th and 67th street, held at $350,000. The sale was made by Malcolm E. Smith and Rudolph C. Culver, Inc., and Edward J. Crawford, as brokers, for the North Madison Avenue Corporation. Two women are understood to head the buying syndicate which plans to manage and operate the property. The building stands on a plot 40 by 80 and is of modern construction. The selling company acquired title last October, following an auction sale of the property, which is next to the large residence of the Cutting family.

Buyer for the Abbotsford.

The Central Trust Company, as trustee for the estate of Mary W. Eels, sold the ten-story Abbotsford apartment house, at 411 West End avenue, southwest corner of 80th street, 102.2 by 100 feet, held at $410,000, to an operator. The house is laid out with three ten room suites to a floor. The annual rentals are reported to approximate $55,000. The building will be remodeled into small suites.

Park Avenue Dwelling Buyer.

Rufus L. Patterson, vice-president of the American Tobacco Company has sold, through Pease & Elliman, the four-story and basement dwelling No. 101 East 64th street, at the northeast corner of Park avenue, with a frontage of 20.10 feet on 64th street and 100.5 feet on Park avenue. The purchaser, Thomas A. Howell, well known in the sugar business, expects to rebuild the house and will occupy it on completion. Mr. Patterson bought the house last August. Directly opposite, at the southeast corner of 64th street, is the large plot accumulated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., on which, it is understood, will be erected the new building for the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church.

Brokers in Maiden Lane Deal.

William A. White & Sons, negotiated the sale of the four-story building at 91 Maiden lane, on a lot 21.9 by 66, for the Preferred City Real Estate Company to the Empire Mortgage Company. The property adjoins the large plot assembled by Sigisbee Graham.

Art Dealers Add to Realty.

Duveen Brothers, art dealers, are reported to be the buyers of the four-story residence at 1 West 56th street, on a lot 25 by 100.5, sold by Pease & Elliman, for Thomas Thacher and Philip G. Bartlett, as executors of the estate of Frederick Meade. The house is assessed at $110,000. It adjoins the buildings of Duveen Brothers and Farquharson & Wheelock on Fifth avenue, and the holdings of August Heckscher on 56th and 57th streets.

Heights Exchange and Re-Sale.

The A. & J. Realty Corporation, Joseph Bender, president, bought from Frederick Brown, 530 West 144th street, a six-story elevator apartment, between Amsterdam avenue and Broadway, 87.6 by 100, containing thirty suites, renting for $20,000 a year, and assessed for $160,000. The seller bought the house November 30. In part payment he took and immediately resold to the Moses Realty Corporation, the seven Blythe-bourne apartments at the southeast corner of Madison avenue and 99th street.

East 65th Street Residence Sale.

Mrs. E. D. Douglass has sold the new five-story American basement dwelling at 16 East 65th street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, on a lot 20 by 100.5. This house has only recently been completed and has never been occupied. The property was held at $113,000. Douglas L. Elliman & Co., were the brokers. It is interesting to note that this is the second sale of a fine modern residence in this street consummated by the same brokers within a fortnight. Walter E. Sachs is the buyer.

Tenant Purchases Dwelling.

George O. May, the tenant, has purchased the three-story residence at 53 and 55 East 91st street, on a plot 32.9 by 100. Mrs. Betty Greene, the seller, purchased two old dwellings that formerly occupied the site and subsequently erected the present building. The property is about 105 feet east of Madison avenue. It was held at $90,000. The Carnegie residence is on the block to the west at the south corner of Fifth avenue.

Big Westchester Trade.

Well-known Westchester properties figured in an interesting exchange effected by Fish & Marvin, who sold the Parkhill apartments, a modern five-story terra cotta and brick structure, 100 by 150, at 242-46 South Broadway, Yonkers, N. Y., adjoining the Parkhill station and Parkhill Inn, to the Olds Holding Corporation, Frederick Brown, president, who gave in part payment the Pomeroy property known as Oakholm at Oriental Park, Mamaroneck, comprising two acres, a large dwelling and outbuilding. The Parkhill Apartments were built by the American Real Estate Company, are fully tenanted and were sold at $150,000. The Pomeroy property is among the finest of Westchester residences, and was held at $40,000.

Plan Yonkers Hotel.

The Ludlow Hotel Corporation, Inc., comprising James Runciman, president; H. A. Youmans, vice-president, and James H. Bennett, secretary and treasurer, purchased the southwest corner of Broadway and Ludlow street, Yonkers, as a site for a 400-room hotel, details of which are being worked out by the Roberts-Frost Company, of Manhattan.

Bath Beach Houses Sold.

Harry J. Appel of the Andrew Reis Company, in conjunction with Charles J. Curtin, sold to a client the dwellings 2012, 2014, 2018, 2020, 2030, 2032, 2036, 2038 and 2042 85th street, between 20th and 21st avenues. The property is valued at $72,000. Mr. Appel predicts there will be a great demand for 1 and 2-family houses, especially in the Eastern Parkway Section owing to the convenient transit facilities which the new Interborough Subway will afford.

Capital and Surplus $5,000,000

162 REMSEN ST. BROOKLYN
Telephone 6480 MainRECENT LEASES.*$700,000 Railway Express Lease.

The Rowantree-Schley Co. state that all previous reports of the leasing of the space at 111-119 West 19th street through to 110-118 West 20th street by the Equitable Life Assurance Society to the American Railway Express Company were premature, as the first and final papers were only signed Wednesday. The lease involves the third to eighth floors inclusive, 100 by 184 feet, making a total of 110,000 square feet. After the completion of alterations this entire space will be used as accounting and clerical offices to supersede the offices now located in numerous locations about town. The lease is for a term of years at a rental involving about $700,000.

Big Brooklyn Pier Taken.

G. F. Butterly leased for the Ireland Realty Company the steamship and railroad pier, foot of North 1st street, Williamsburgh, Brooklyn, on the East River, just vacated by the New England Steamship Company (New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Company), which is now accommodating shippers, receivers and manufacturers at the Eastern District Terminal. The lessee is a steamship company which has been engaged in exporting products to and from the West Indies and Coastwise ports, and since the termination of hostilities propose acquiring additional water fronts in New York harbor, to further facilitate shipments, the receiving of cargoes and berthing steamers from many foreign ports. The annual rental secured for this pier is much higher than that heretofore paid by the R. R. Company. The property measures 500 ft. from North 1st and River streets to the outside pier head line, and has an average width of 150 feet. These measurements include the upland and land under water having thereon a covered pier measuring 42x300; also a two-story freight house and office building. The lease is for a period of ten years commencing Dec. 14; the aggregate rental being about $300,000 for the term including taxes, insurance and repairs.

$300,000 Beaver Street Rental.

National Transit Company, H. D. Bushnell, president, leased the eleventh and part of the twelfth floor at 18 Broadway, containing about 12,000 square feet of floor area, from E. E. Smathers, through Felix Isman, Inc. The property forms an L around the corner of Broadway and Beaver street, and has a frontage in the latter thoroughfare. The lease is for twenty years and expires May 1, 1939. The rental is at the rate of $2.50 a square foot. Severance & Van Alen, architects, are completing extensive alterations to the structure at a cost estimated to be about $300,000. Two stories will be added to the building and in addition to other structural changes, a new heating plant is being installed. The Exchange Buffet is negotiating for the leasing of large space in the basement of the building.

Novel Commercial Lease.

L. C. Cowen has rented for Jos. Reinhorn to the Montiray Food Co., Inc., the first loft in 216 West 42d street, adjoining the New Amsterdam Theatre. The tenant will establish a demonstrating room and restaurant for the display and sale of the Mexican and South American Food products which the company manufactures. The restaurant will be called the "Sonora."

Sixth Avenue Schulte Store.

The Schulte Realty Company, through Herbert Hecht & Co. leased from Samuel Gruber for a term of ten years, a 25 foot corner store at 6th avenue, southeast corner 36th street. This location was chosen in view of the rapid development of 36th street as the wholesale millinery center, the most recent accession to this colony being F. Blumenthal & Co. After extensive alterations another link will be added to the chain of Schulte Cigar Stores. The Liggett-Riker-Hegeman Co., recently leased the northwest corner of 36th street and Broadway, through the same brokers.

Lessee Will Alter.

The Club Operating Company, which has recently leased several dwellings on the east side for conversion into small apartments, plans a similar change at 48 East 50th street, a twenty-foot house, which Pease & Elliman have leased to the company for Austen Gray for a long term of years.

Manhattan.

Judge Gary Outlines Future of Steel Industry

War Industries Board Ceases to Function on January 1—Steel Manufacturers Propose Lower Scale

ANOUNCEMENT from Washington this week that the War Industries Board will cease to function on January 1, next, and, therefore, would take no action towards further control of the price of steel as regulated by Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, and spokesman for other members of the Iron and Steel Institute, had the effect of focusing attention on the steel market in the immediate future. The "country's barometer" will have the centre of the stage for the next few weeks, at least, as never before.

Judge Gary had prepared a schedule of prices on a materially lower basis than were in effect under Government regulation. He made them public with the announcement that, while they had not been recommended, they represented what the steel industry believed to be a proper price basis beginning with the new year.

The present prices with the proposed reductions in the basic steel products were Bessemer pig iron $35.20, basic pig iron $33 and foundry pig iron $34, each to be reduced $3 a gross ton; blooms and large billets, now $47.50, to be reduced $4 a gross ton; heavy shapes, now $67.20, to be reduced $4 a net ton; sheared and universal plate, $72.80, to be reduced $5 a net ton; merchant bars, $64.96, to be reduced $4 a net ton; black sheets (No. 28), $112 a gross ton, to be reduced $6 a net ton; tin plate, $7.75 a hundred pounds, to be reduced 40 cents.

The proposed prices also contained reductions in about the same proportion in the less important products of the steel mills, with the exception of plain and barbed wire and wire nails. Iron ore was eliminated from the list of new prices.

The effort to stabilize the market at a lower basis is considered an intermediate step in throwing the market open. Under Government supervision it was easy enough to maintain a maximum price list for the various products, but after Dec. 31 the consumer at home and abroad is going to have the real voice in determining prices for steel.

The market may later tend to work downward from the proposed plane; it may work upward. Steel trade journals report substantial inquiry for pig iron for export.

During the balance of the current month it is probable that cancellations of Government contracts will show their full force and the new year will begin with conditions ripe for a normal period of buying.

In this connection it is of interest to give the predictions as to the future of business made by Judge Gary at the meeting of steel manufacturers before they went to Washington to try to induce the War Industries Board to continue Governmental control of steel.

Mr. Gary said that he hoped no manufacturer would favor wage reductions, notwithstanding that the War Industries Board might decide the matter of prices.

"I am assuming," he said, "that you will not favor reductions in the wage rates unless and until it shall become absolutely necessary. Our prices have been high during the last year, and in the cases of a few companies the profits have been large.

"Costs of production in the course of time will be decreased, though not to former levels. It is hoped that no seller of our products will feel inclined to make prices too high simply because he may be able to secure them, nor too low simply because he is in need of ready cash. We ought to get back to a peace basis as speedily as possible.

"We are so rich and prosperous and our resources are so large that indulgence in feelings of fear or doubt as to our financial, commercial or industrial safety and progress would be wholly unjustified. Our prospects are bright, our opportunities for success are greater than ever before.

"I predict the next five years in this country will be the most progressive, prosperous and successful in our history. The results will astonish even the most optimistic to-day. We need to be conservative, thoughtful, persistent, fair minded and wise to the limit of our understanding."

In discussing the labor situation, Judge Gary said:

"During the war the wage rates have been increased materially and frequently. They are now much higher than ever before, so far as I am informed; it is claimed in some respects they are out of proportion. For one, I believe we have not been paying more than was proper and just. The necessary costs of living have been growing, and unless and until they are reduced it would seem that, on the average, the present wages are reasonable.

"It is urged that on the basis of the present scale of wages the employers cannot afford to make reductions in the prices of their commodities, and many insist they are entitled to higher wages. As we, in this country at least, are operating and living on a basis of general prices that are abnormal, we might consider the propriety of making reductions at the same time in every direction; but this would be impracticable. Therefore, if there are to be reductions they must be gradual and considered in individual cases. We must commence at some point or place. Judging from the past all of us believe we should not commence to make reductions at the point of wage rates; sacrifices must previously be made by employers. Our employees must continue to be treated liberally with respect to their compensation and general welfare. We will continue to show to them that it is our intention to consider their merits, and to treat them as associates and valuable assistants in our work. We should give no cause for reasonable complaint or unfavorable criticism.

"If the workmen generally are treated fairly and liberally they will stand contented for fair treatment of the employer. I refer now to the wage earners. But who are workmen? You and I, as well as the man who works by the day. Most of us, if not every one of us, started on the farms or in the shops or mills, for very low compensation, and we are proud of it. We are still workmen, with long hours and arduous tasks. No man wishes to remain at the bottom of any ladder. All wish to climb and to prosper. All desire to occupy positions of independence and they want to secure this by hard work. Let us use our influence in assisting our employees to progress and succeed. Let us retain their confidence and loyal support by our action. They will meet us half way if they are permitted to exercise their own judgment and spirit of fairness. Conditions now are good, and you who are listening to me have been a potential factor in bringing this about.

"I am assuming you will not favor reductions in the wage rates unless and until it shall become absolutely necessary, notwithstanding it is possible the War Industries Board may decide there ought to be conservative reductions in the price of our commodities after January 1. Our prices have been high during the last year, and in the cases of a few companies the profits have been large. In order to maintain production up to full capacity of all manufacturing works, so as to meet the military necessities of this country and its associates in the war, it has been necessary to fix prices larger than normal, because of increasing costs of production, by reason of wage increases and higher prices for everything the producer has been obliged to buy or pay for. However, the war is ended and producing and selling conditions are changing. Furnaces and mills will be returned to ante-war uses and methods. The law of supply and demand will again control. There will soon be no restrictions in prices nor anything to prevent their settling down to a lower basis, depending upon circumstances. Costs of production probably will, in the course of time, be decreased, though not to former levels. It is to be hoped no seller of our products will feel inclined to make prices too high simply because he may be able to secure them, nor to make them too low simply because there is need of ready cash. Everything depends upon the individual producer. If we are fair and reasonable toward our employees, our customers, our competitors and those who own our properties, we shall not become demoralized nor foolish, and we will be entitled to the approval of all other lines of business and to the people generally. No one in the long run is benefited by unreasonably high or low prices. This has been tested over and over again. The general public, as in 1907, expects the steel industry, called the barometer of trade, to exercise moderation and skill, and, so far as legitimate and right to lend its efforts in aiding the stabilization of business. For our past attitude we have been commended. In the future we may expect to receive our just deserts."

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

THE Federal Government recently assumed a leading position in the widespread effort to revive the building industry and return conditions again to the normal of the pre-war period without undue delay. The Supervising Architect of the United States Treasury Department during the week presented a number of important building projects, planned before the entry of the nation in the European war, but which were held in abeyance during the emergency, to general contractors for estimates. There is considerably more of this type of work scheduled to follow as soon as these bids are closed. The fact that the Government has resumed its plans for the erection of large public structures without further delay cannot but exert a beneficent effect upon the building situation as a whole. The result will undoubtedly be a large increase in the number of projected operations brought out for estimates within the next few weeks and the award of many substantial contracts for civil construction throughout the country.

The week past was a noteworthy period for the number of structural projects out for estimates aside from these to be built by the Government. The list of operations placed with the builders for estimates is widely diversified and represents a large potential expenditure for construction during the early spring and summer of 1919.

Building interests in the Metropolitan district are practically undivided in the opinion that construction costs will not be lowered to any great extent during the period of reconstruction either by a decrease in material prices or by reduced labor costs. There are even those to be found who would not be surprised if structural costs were advanced a further notch before a recession to lower levels is possible. The fact that it is generally conceded that high construction costs will maintain for a year or so at least will in all probability hasten the start of many operations scheduled and which might better be built at existing levels while the demand for rentable space is strong and unsatisfied.

The markets for building materials are generally quiet, but wholly optimistic for the future. There have been a number of inquiries for materials in substantial amounts current during the past week or so, but dealers and producers are strongly of the opinion that the coming two or three months will be quiet as far as volume of actual business is concerned, but pregnant with possibilities for next spring and summer. The intervening period will be used to advantage in perfecting plans for the expeditious handling of the tremendous amount of building material orders that are certain to follow the winter of preparation.

Almost without exception building material prices are firm, and there is no immediate prospect of a recession from present levels. Dealers are fairly well supplied and will be able to supply any ordinary demand of the next few months.

Structural Steel.—The most prominent feature of the steel situation at the present time from the viewpoint of the building industry is the large tonnage that is still being devoted to Government building operations in various parts of the country. While the demand for fabricated material in any great volume required for Federal projects holds there is little likelihood of steel for civil building projects being released in large amounts. The subject of steel prices is another matter that is responsible for the hesitancy on the part of the building interests to mature their operations to the point of starting. There is a strong feeling that fabricated steel prices will be substantially reduced within the next few months and prospective builders are not willing to make commitments at the current price levels when they are almost certain that by waiting a while they will be in a position to obtain materially reduced estimates for their steel. The outlook for the spring is steadily improving and new projects are almost daily being announced as in the preliminary stages of development. That the steel situation is becoming readjusted to the new conditions is manifest by the figures recently announced which showed that the unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation November 1, were 8,124,663 tons, compared with 8,353,293 tons on October 31. This is a decrease of 228,630 tons. One year ago the unfilled orders were 8,897,106 tons. There have been but two increases in orders this year and these were in June and in October.

"Peace With Victory"

brings a new responsibility—the responsibility of reconstruction and demobilization. The United States Government has a new and stupendous task ahead and needs more than ever the brains, courage, energy, influence and money of the Army of Business.

Funds are needed to bring home our armies, to reconstruct devastated Europe and to insure the real fruits of victory and peace.

Business men, your peace fight is along the lines of forming War Savings Societies and Victory Clubs, among yourselves, your employees and your clients. Your scope and power is on a par in peace with the scope and power of our armies on the field of battle. Reconstruction and readjustment is your duty and privilege.

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

Electrical Supplies.—New business in electrical lines is lacking and there is prospect of a quiet period for the industry until conditions are readjusted to peace times. Prices are firm and are without indications of a break. Large stocks, ordered some time before the signing of the armistice are now being delivered and as a consequence it would not be surprising if the market gave way slightly. Local stocks are generally in good shape and jobbers are practically marking time until a general resumption of building activity. There is every anticipation that any demand that might arise as a result of increased building activity can be cared for without difficulty or strain.

Lumber.—The local yards are as a whole confident that the coming spring will bring a marked increase of business from building sources and they are holding off until the general conditions are more settled and the situation again near normal of pre-war times. During the past week orders and inquiries from the building trade have slowed down somewhat, but the demand from manufacturing consumers is firm. Lumber prices are almost without exception steady, and what tendency there is for changes is upward.

Linseed Oil.—The market is quite dull and the outlook is without special promise for the next month or so. This is generally the quiet part of the year, and so the condition of the market is not unusual. Stocks of linseed oil are limited, but a new supply, sufficient for all existing demands is in sight and the recent market tension brought about by the scarcity of oil will be relieved shortly. Prices are firm and unchanged.

Cast Iron Pipe.—Aside from some inquiry involving export business the cast iron pipe situation is quiet. Domestic demand is light and although there are numerous important projects planned these are not likely to become active until next spring. The outlook for municipal business during 1919 is good and should comprise a large percentage of the business for next year. Government fixed prices dominate all quotations; 6 in., 8 in., and heavier, $67.70; 4 in., $70.70, and 3 in., $77.70, New York.

Window Glass.—Up to the present writing the manufacturers of plate and window glass are undecided as to the commencement of operations for the coming season. A meeting was held in Pittsburgh during the week between the Window & Plate Glass Manufacturers and the National Glass Distributors' Association at which a number of serious trade problems were discussed. The action of the meeting has not been announced as yet. Local glass distributors are not anticipating a large increase in the demand for glass during the next three or four months, but do expect materially improved business with the coming of spring and the completion of a great amount of new construction work that is the result of release from the recent building curtailment orders of the Government. The manufacturers' schedule of discounts remains unchanged.

Common Brick.—Conditions in the wholesale market for Hudson River common brick improved materially during the past week. There was an increase in the arrival of cargoes, seventeen boats having docked during the past seven days. Buying interests also improved and a total of twelve cargoes was disposed of. Prices are much stronger than they have been for some time and the prevailing figure is $15 a thousand, in cargo lots alongside dock. This level seems firm at the present writing and while no further increase is anticipated for the immediate future, there is no prediction as to the manner a sudden demand for brick in large amounts would affect the price situation. The general tone of the common brick market is strong, due no doubt by the increased number of inquiries during the week. There is now every prospect of a busy spring and summer season for 1919. Up-river activity is centered upon the burning of brick made during the past season and getting it on the barges and shipped before the river is closed to navigation. There is no material change in the Raritan situation and brick from this district is not being quoted for New York delivery.

SUMMARY—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Friday, December 13, 1918. Condition of market: Demand improved; prices advanced. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 17; sales, 12. Distribution: Manhattan, 3; Brooklyn, 3; New Jersey points, 6.

OPINION AFFECTING BOARD OF APPEALS

Owner Who Withdraws Appeal Cannot Re-open
Matter After Amendment to Zoning Law

GEORGE P. NICHOLSON, as acting corporation counsel, has rendered an opinion, at the request of the Board of Appeals, with reference to an application called an appeal, by John J. Shea, for permission to change a five-story and basement brick livery stable at 117-119 West 46th street, Manhattan, into a garage. That appeal was ultimately withdrawn and the present application is for its reinstatement and a determination upon it as to the date of its withdrawal—or in other words, a determination that the applicant is entitled now to be accorded the right to use said property in the same manner that he may have had a right to use it on the date of the withdrawal of his said appeal notwithstanding the provisions of the Building Zone Resolution have been amended since that date so that now the particular use to which the applicant desires to put said property is no longer a matter of right.

The Corporation Counsel's opinion reads in substance:

"The questions asked:

"1. Has the Board of Appeals the power to restore to its calendar an appeal removed therefrom under the foregoing circumstances?

"2. If the Board may restore to its calendar an appeal removed therefrom under the foregoing circumstances, should such an appeal be now considered under the provisions of the Zoning Resolution in effect upon the date of the filing of the said appeal, or must it be disposed of under the Resolution as amended on December 21, 1917?

"3. If the Board of Appeals may restore to its calendar appeal 400-16-A, has the Board the power at this time, under the provisions of Section 20 of the Zoning Resolution, and in view of the circumstances under which the appeal was dropped from the calendar to vary the provisions of Section 6 of the Zoning Resolution and grant permission for the conversion of the building, the subject of such appeal, from a public stable into a public garage?

"Under the amended provisions, whatever may have been the rule under the provisions of said section as it originally stood, I am of opinion that the owner of property now devoted to one of the uses enumerated in subdivision A of Section 4 of the Building Zone Resolution, cannot, as a matter of law, change such use to another of the enumerated uses in subdivision A of Section 4, where structural alterations are necessary. This view was submitted to you by this department in an opinion dated August 13, 1918, when Mr. Shea was contending before your Board that he had such a right provided the cost of structural alterations incident to the proposed changed use did not exceed 50 per cent. of the value of the building exclusive of foundations. In said opinion you are advised that if one use enumerated in subdivision A of Section 4 of the Building Zone Resolution is changed to another use enumerated in said section, structural alterations cannot be made as a matter of right and that therefore, where structural changes are necessary to the proposed changed use they cannot be made as a matter of right.

"Mr. Shea's present application goes a little further, and while impliedly acquiescing in the conclusion last above expressed, he now insists that his right must be determined as of the date of the withdrawal of his original application. I am constrained to advise you that the law, as I view it, is definitely opposed to this contention and will not justify me in holding that the present applicant is entitled as a matter of right to devote the property in question to the changed use under the Building Zone Resolution or the resolution of the Board of Appeals as they existed at the time of the withdrawal of the original application. On the contrary, I am of opinion that any application on the part of Mr. Shea, whether as an original application or a reinstatement of his former application must be disposed of under the provisions of the Building Zone Resolution as they now exist.

"This conclusion would seem to render the second and third questions immaterial, since Mr. Shea, as shown by the position taken by his counsel on the hearing above referred to, does not seek by his present application to invoke the discretion of the Board of Appeals upon the proposed alteration. However, I see no legal objection to the reinstating of an original application which has been withdrawn without consideration or determination of its merits. Such an application as reinstated would be in no different situation than if it had remained on the calendar undisposed of, or than if viewed as a new application."

Michael Reid, Builder, Is Dead.

The building industry of New York lost one of its most prominent members this week by the death of Michael Reid, one of the oldest active builders. Mr. Reid died Wednesday, December 11, at his home 116 East 70th street after a short illness. Despite his advanced age of eighty-six years, he remained active in business until the last.

Mr. Reid until his death was president of M. Reid & Company, Inc., 114 West 39th street, contractors and builders. He built the Ritz Carlton Hotel, the Imperial Hotel, the power house for the Metropolitan Traction Company and the Third Avenue "L," hundreds of private residences and scores of big office buildings. As each of his four sons reached his majority he was taken into the business and assigned to an important department.

Mr. Reid was a lover of horses. From the day he purchased his first truck horse, through the succeeding years when he owned many famous horses, and at the last when he kept a small stable, he remained a good judge of horseflesh. Although he had owned such noted animals as "Willie E," "Thurley" and "Farmer," he steadfastly refused to become an exhibitor or allow his horses to race professionally. He always explained that he owned horses for the pleasure driving gave him—not for publicity.

Probably the only association of which Mr. Reid ever was a member was the Road Drivers' Association. He was one of its organizers, served several years as its president and treasurer, and was largely responsible for the building of the Speedway. He was active in the affairs of St. Vincent Ferrer's Church, and is survived by four sons and two daughters.

Conference on Converted Dwellings.

A final conference will be held on Wednesday, December 18, at 3 p. m., in the office of the Tenement House Department, relative to the proposed bills affecting three and four family converted dwellings, for the purpose of considering one or two important changes which have been made in the original draft of these bills and at the same time to consider the question of presenting a bill designed to have the effect of preventing the further erection of the "fake" three family tenement house under the guise of an application that it is intended for two families.

Engineers to Be Represented at Capital.

A National Service Committee will be established at Washington by the Engineering Council, 29 West 39th street, New York. The details of membership and financing have been referred to a Reconstruction Committee composed of

J. Parke Channing, chairman; Harold W. Buck, George F. Swain, D. S. Jacobus, Calvert Townley and George J. Foran. A fund of $2,500 has been appropriated for the establishment of a Washington office. It has been voted to discontinue the War Committee of Technical Societies which has been co-operating with the Army and Navy at Washington.

United Action Demanded at Tax Conference

Real Estate Organizations Asked to Back Up City Administration In Effort to Secure Relief from Legislature

SEVERAL proposals for the relief of real estate were made at the public hearing of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation at the City Hall on Wednesday and Thursday. The meeting was called by Nathan Hirsch, chairman of the Mayor's Committee for the purpose of bringing together all the different factions of those interested in real estate in the attempt to secure coordination of effort before the legislature this winter.

No action was taken as a result of the two days of speech making but it was stated that Chairman Hirsch will now appoint a committee representing all of the real estate organizations to act with the city administration in framing a bill for presentation to the legislature and in pushing it to a vote.

The most promising feature of the hearing was the suggestion of Laurence McGuire, President of the U. S. Realty and Investment Company and for four years President of the Real Estate Board, that all realty interests should get together back of any measure proposed by the city administration, a proposal that received hearty support by a large number of those in attendance at the hearing. This suggestion followed the statement by Comptroller Craig as to the attitude of the administration, which coincides in many particulars with that adopted by the Real Estate Board.

The Comptroller favors a personal property tax of three-quarters of one per cent., with a listing system for personal property and strong penalties for evasion of the law. This tax is to be collected before the tax rate on real estate is fixed, by which arrangement the city would be assured of the funds necessary to meet its obligations. The Real Estate Board has not taken any definite action on the plan for the compulsory listing of personal property other than that such listing would follow as a matter of course the passing by the legislature of the bill for the limitation of the tax on realty and the fixing of a personal property tax of one quarter of one per cent. that was the program of the Board last year. It is reasonable to suppose as the differences between the Comptroller's plan and the program of the Real Estate Board are so slight that it will not be an insurmountable difficulty for them to unite on a bill that will bring about the desired result if the legislature passes it.

The advocates of a state income tax instead of a personal property tax have not as yet expressed themselves on the question of united action that involves giving up their belief that a personal property tax is unworkable and that the only sure method of reducing the burden of real estate is by providing for a state income tax similar to the provisions of the Federal Income Tax law.

Mayor Hylan presided at the hearing.

The Comptroller said:

"Real estate interests must take this situation as you find it and provide enough money for the mandatory requirements of the City Government plus interest and amortization and redemption requirements. I say to you that when you go to the legislature in an endeavor to limit your tax rate on real estate to 2 per cent. or  $1\frac{3}{4}$  per cent. or  $\frac{3}{4}$  of one per cent. you must decide on one of two things: limitation of the City's debt or abolishment of its necessary work. As a matter of fact, I do not believe there is any man in this room or in the City of New York, for that matter, who believes in doing that sort of thing. But that will be the consequence of such an attempt, if successful.

"The objections to imposing an income tax are insurmountable, in my judgment. In the first place, the Federal imposition of income tax burden for war purposes and for redemption purposes for bonds now outstanding is using the income tax to the very limit; in other words, it is now imposed to the limit of endurance and it is the last tax that Congress is ever going to let up on. In my judgment, all taxes, all imposts levied by Congress by reason of the war and by reason of the necessities of the National Government will go before the income tax. I do not believe you would have any chance before the legislature in 1919 in any attempt to pass a State or City Income Tax Law or any other Income Tax Law that conflicts in the slightest degree with the operation of the Federal Government's Income Tax Law. It is a well understood principle of taxation, wherever you have a Federal form of government, that the wider fields of taxation are resorted to by wisely framed Federal taxation methods. They are for the defense of the realm."

The Comptroller called attention to the finding of the Mills Committee, which proposed a State Income Tax, and added:

"If you observe the provisions of that bill you will find that it does not include a tax upon incomes of residents of New York. The reason for the omission of this provision was due to serious difficulties in enforcing a tax on incomes in the State of New York derived from sources outside of the State. It is claimed that there is a Constitutional question involved. I have not examined that Constitutional question and I express no opinion regarding it. But the practical operation of such a measure would be this. If a man, a bona fide resident of the City of New York, had an income of $10,000 a year $9,000 of which he derived from mines in Utah or Arizona and $500 of which he derived from a factory in New Jersey, you could collect a tax on his income only on the basis of $500 a year; but a real estate man who had a $10,000 a year income derived from real estate in the City of New York would get it both ways—he would pay a tax on his real estate and pay a tax on his income as well. Therefore I think it is just as well to look this gift horse in the face from the real

Say 1919 Taxes Will Not Exceed Those for 1918

Comptroller Craig's Promise of No Advance Confirmed by President Cantor of the Department of Taxes

CONSIDERABLE interest was shown among real estate men in the statement that the tax rate for 1919 would not exceed that for 1918, made by Comptroller Craig at the hearing of the Mayor's Committee on taxation this week.

Comptroller Craig's statement is as follows:

"I want to correct one mis-statement that, for some reason or other, is being repeatedly made and continuously circulated among property owners, and that is that the 1919 tax rate is going to be greatly in excess of the tax rate for 1918. I have heard it stated and I have seen figures in cold type to the effect that the increase of the 1919 tax rate over the tax rate for 1918 will be all the way from 25 points to 60 points. I want to assure you that there is not a particle of foundation for such statements. The tax rate for 1919 will not exceed the tax rate for 1918, assertions to the contrary notwithstanding."

The Record and Guide tried to obtain an explanation from the Comptroller's office of how this conclusion had been reached in view of the increased budget, but no explanation was forthcoming.

President Jacob A. Cantor made the following statement with reference to the new tax rate:

"I do not know what the Comptroller based his statement upon, because the Department of Taxes and Assessments has made no report as yet to the Mayor, either upon real estate or personalty. If Mr. Craig was considering, when he made the statement, the promise made by me that we would increase personalty assessments $100,000,000 and realty assessments $100,000,000, he will be justified in what he said.

"The records of the Tax Department now show for 1919 a greater personal assessment than ever before in its history. After more examinations made by us than ever before, and with the commissioners and deputies exercising unusual care in extracting from those assessed correct information as to the character and value of their personal property, the estimate made by me several months ago has been verified by results.

"There will be an increase in the assessed valuation of real and personal property of $200,000,000. This will offset the increase in the budget, so that I can safely assert, on the basis of our work here, that the 1919 tax rate will be the same as that of 1918.

"To this great increase in the personalty assessments, additions will be made as the result of the increased taxation of personal property owned by corporations not paying a tax now under the Emerson Law and also through increases in the bank tax to a considerable amount."

estate man's point of view before you rush into it.

"I am firmly convinced that if you impose a properly devised personal property tax you will have the same experience, if it is properly followed up, that the Federal Government has had with the income tax. In other words, after you cast aside the theoretical objections made to the income tax and put it into practice, as the Federal Income Tax has been put into practice, you will find that it has become one of the greatest sources of revenue that the Government has derived from taxation.

"I make a suggestion to the real estate men that the steps looking toward a proper personal property tax to be taken were to be these: first, compulsory return by everybody subject to taxation within the City of New York having property of a value of over $5,000, a return that carries with it a good stiff penalty. To impose a penalty of $10 a day or $100 a day for delay in filing a personal property return is a mere invitation not to file it; but if you put in a provision similar to that in force by the Federal Government in the Tax Law of 50 per cent. for default in filing a return you will have, in my belief, a line a dozen blocks long up to midnight of the last night to file returns, instead of as now after the time to file the return you have a line four blocks long to swear off.

"Let us say that you start out requiring a personal return by everybody by the 1st of July. Then fix a date for the closing of the personal property tax books so that the personal tax will be made payable by the middle of January. There are many reasons for that. The tax rate on real estate is not fixed until the first week of March, so if you close the personal tax books and require the payments to be made by the middle of January, you have the money actually in hand and you know with substantial accuracy how much can be realized on that personal tax before the Board of Aldermen fixes the rate on real estate. The rate to be fixed on real estate in that case will be only the deficiency required to meet the budget after the deduction of the general fund and the personal property tax. That would avoid, moreover, the scandal that has been connected with personal taxes in New York City of writing off at the end of the year millions of dollars of uncollectible taxes. When at the end of the year you write off the uncollectible taxes you merely throw that burden forward into next year's real estate tax. As a consequence of collecting your money in advance in that way you will know where you are exactly and there will be no deficiency at the end of the year, and then the subsequent accruals in the general fund will result in a reduction of your tax rate for the following year."

The Comptroller declared himself in favor of a personal property tax of three quarters of one per cent.

Robert E. Dowling said:

"I was in Albany with Mr. Craig last winter when he appeared at the hearings on a bill that was presented before the Legislature that carried with it a proposition to tax personal property at the rate of one-quarter of one per cent. per annum and take away the present exemption for debt. At the very beginning of what I have to say, I wish to state emphatically that the statement by the Comptroller, from his recollection, that real estate men last winter at Albany said that the amount of personal property subject to taxation in the City of New York was so great that after taking out 99 per cent. and all those various percentages he spoke of there would be no tax left on real estate was not made by anybody representing the Real Estate Board. In fact, I did not hear anybody make such a statement as that. The only way you can find out how much personal property is owned in the City of New York today, in

Building Awaits Settlement of Wage Scale

If Labor Continues to Demand Advances in the Face of Existing Conditions, No Work Will Be Done

BEFORE there is any possibility that building activity, particularly in the Metropolitan district, can be resumed upon a large scale, the difficulties brought about by the labor situation will have to be disposed of. At the present moment the situation is critical and is a potent factor in holding up work that under any other circumstances might have been commenced. Plans have been completed for new buildings, financial affairs have been arranged and the material market is in a position to supply building commodities to any needed amount. Yet the owners are unwilling to start their projects while there is unrest in building labor circles and there is a possibility that after starting operations their progress would be delayed by strikes and lockouts.

At the present time the carpenters are locked out as the result of recent strikes for additional wages in direct violation of their agreement with the Building Trade Employers' Association. Carpenters have demanded $1 a day in addition to their agreement of $5.50 per day. This agreement expires December 31, and the employers have been willing all along to renew for the regular term upon the same basis but the carpenters would not agree. The final result has been a lockout by the boss carpenters who are members of the association and a consequent stoppage of work upon a number of active projects, including the Hotels Commodore and Pennsylvania. The number of carpenters actually out of work as the result of the demand for $1 increase is placed all the way from 600 to 2,000.

The dock builders have also struck for an increase in the wage scale despite their agreement which does not expire until December 31 and the glaziers are also on strike. The agreement of the latter trade has to December 31 to run and both these strikes are in violation of their stipulated terms with the employers.

Dissatisfaction in labor circles identified with the building industry is spreading and there are rumors of slight disturbances in other trades beside those previously mentioned. In almost every instance the matter of increased wages is the bone of contention, workmen demanding or agitating increases above the present high scales and the employers making every effort to keep their workmen satisfied at the existing rates. There has been little said on the part of employers about a reduced scale of wages to mechanics in the building trades although it has been thought that the men have been getting actually more than the traffic would stand but it was willingly paid because during the past year the bulk of the work was under direct contracts from Federal departments and the urgency of the demand made anything seem almost reasonable as long as it was possible to obtain workmen for any specific operation. Now that the urgency of the Government demand has passed and the building industry is making a determined effort to re-establish itself upon a normal pre-war basis, the employers take the attitude that labor is unreasonable in making its forcible demand for higher wages, at a time when the entire industry is in process of reorganization and while the economic position of the country is undergoing a serious change as well.

The feeling is quite general now that there will be a gradual recession from the high price levels that have steadily mounted since the commencement of the world war. There is every reason to suppose and anticipate that living costs will be reduced considerably in the near future and that the value of the dollar will be much greater than it has been during recent years and than it is today. In the face of these changes that have to come ultimately employers are unwilling to allow a further increase in wage scales but are almost united in their willingness to renew the expiring agreements at the present scale. This, they claim, would be tantamount to an increase of wages greater than ever made in past history through a threat of strike.

Propose Increased Depth for Tenement Houses

PROPERTY owners, builders and architects attended a meeting on Wednesday in the office of Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann, in order to further consider proposed amendments to the law affecting three and four-story dwellings. At a hearing held some weeks ago Commissioner Mann submitted a program of proposed amendments which he declared would provide substantial relief for owners of one-family houses no longer available for such use by permitting them to alter the houses into three and four-family tenements, such remedial legislation yet being conservative enough to meet the approval of the legislators and the tenement reform organizations, who were responsible for the law as it stands.

The meeting Wednesday was called for the purpose of discussing in greater detail the commissioner's plan, complete details of which were published in the Record and Guide of November 30.

The Real Estate Board of New York was represented by H. H. Murdock, who offered some amendments. The principal change was the increasing of the depth of the buildings to sixty feet for both the three and four-story houses, instead of fifty for the former and fifty-five for the latter. Mr. Murdock also took exception to the proposed fireproof passage connecting the yard with the street, in the taller structures, substituting in its place a gate in the yard, so that egress could be obtained to the neighboring property.

Captain John P. Leo, chairman of the Board of Standards and Appeals, also favored the depth of sixty feet.

"I believe that were a lateral, party wall fire escape adopted, instead of the present dangerous ladder arrangement, a step, and a big one, in the right direction would be taken. It is a dangerous procedure for any one on a cold winter night to attempt to climb down one of the ladder fire escapes. The party wall arrangement is practical and, I believe, should be adopted," he declared.

Commissioner Mann drew attention to the difficulty experienced by the department in keeping this form of fire escape free from encumbrances, but was willing to abide by the ruling of the majority.

L. De Muth, representing the West Side Taxpayers' Association, stated that his organization favored the proposed bill.

Central Mercantile District Leads in Traffic

Broadway and Fourteenth Street Equals Grand Central Station in Ticket Sales—Many Lines of Transportation

THE Central Mercantile Association has compiled the following information:

The central mercantile district is now the world's traffic center. The passenger traffic report of the Public Service Commission recently issued concerning subway and "L" travel and report received from the Hudson & Manhattan Tube Company demonstrates this fact beyond question.

A study of the figures in these reports shows that over 106,000,000 persons, annually, use subway and elevated trains in the central mercantile section.

Likewise, Fourteenth street is proven the greatest traffic artery in the world—as over 44,000,000 passengers yearly purchase tickets at subway and elevated stations on this thoroughfare.

In the report of the Public Service Commission, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company heads the list in volume of traffic with 418,337,000 passengers carried during the year, although its rate of increase was only about 1 per cent.; the aggregate increase being 4,143,000, while the elevated lines of the same system with a total traffic of 352,660,000 had a percentage of gain of less than 1 per cent., viz.:—3,280,000.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit system with its new lines opened showed a much larger increase; the elevated and subway traffic being 257,961,000, an increase for the year of 31,445,000 or 13.88 per cent.

The lines of the Hudson & Manhattan Tube Company likewise showed a high rate of increase, jumping from 68,556,000 in 1917 to 76,348,000 in 1918, an increase of 7,792,000, or 11.37 per cent.

The Public Service Commission and railroad officials account for the low rate of increase in travel on Manhattan elevated and subway lines by the fact that the rate of increase for 1916-1917 was abnormally high, due to the trolley strikes of 1916, which tended to divert large numbers of passengers to the rapid transit lines. An analysis of the ticket sales on the Interborough-Fourth avenue subway line, although showing a loss on the entire line of over 11,000,000 fares during the year, which includes a loss at Eighteenth and Twenty-third streets in our district, yet it shows an increase of about 400,000 at the Fourteenth street station.

The Grand Central station with its new lines opens with Fourteenth street and Broadway as being the greatest traffic point in the world, each with ticket sales of about 28,000,000 per year. Atlantic avenue, in Brooklyn, is second, with a ticket sale of 21,516,000; Brooklyn Bridge third, with 21,222,000, and Times Square fourth, with 15,843,000. These three last-mentioned stations all show a loss over the year 1917; Times Square decrease being 420,000.

The traffic on the elevated lines in the central mercantile section showed marked increase. The Second avenue line, with a total increase of 5,094,000, carried an increase in our section of over 273,000. The Third avenue line was the only elevated line in the city showing a total decrease for the year, amounting to 2,535,000. However, notwithstanding this fact, the stations on the Third avenue line in the central mercantile territory had a combined increase of over 121,000, demonstrating the remarkably healthy industrial and commercial growth throughout our area.

The traffic on the entire Sixth avenue line increased only about 135,000, although the ticket sales at the stations in the central mercantile district showed the remarkable increase of over 145,000, despite the fact that the traffic on this line in our section was thought to be somewhat reduced owing to the closing of the Greenhut department store at Eighteenth street.

The Ninth avenue line showed a total ticket increase of 585,000. The increase sales at the stations in our district amounted to 168,000.

A recapitulation of the ticket sales on the elevated lines shows a total increase of 3,280,000; and the total increase of these lines at stations in the central mercantile district is over 708,000, being 21.6 per cent. of total elevated traffic increase. The increase on the Hudson and Manhattan tubes in our district is 323,416. Likewise, the ticket sales on the new Seventh avenue line in our section from its opening on July 1 last, up to and including November 30, 1918, amounts to 11,361,000. These figures exceed expectations on this line.

This great traffic increase in the C. M. section is, of course, due to the large number of wholesale, manufacturing and jobbing firms which have moved into the territory centering mainly between Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets. This fact is well demonstrated by some of the figures taken from the commission's report. For instance, on the Sixth avenue line in our section, the Fourteenth-Twenty-third streets section, as above stated, shows a ticket sale increase of over 145,000, while the report shows a combined loss at Twenty-eighth and Twenty-third streets, of over 510,000.

Likewise, on the Ninth avenue line, the district between Christopher and Twenty-third streets in our section shows an increase traffic of over 349,362, while the loss at Thirtieth and Thirty-fourth streets for the past year amounts to over 180,000, demonstrating forcibly that the great industrial development in the C. M. district is in the Fourteenth-Twenty-third street area.

The commercial development of the Fourteenth-Twenty-third street section on the East Side is likewise well illustrated in the traffic on the Third avenue line. It shows an increase of 121,424 over last year, while the three stations immediately south, viz.:—Grand, Houston and Ninth streets, each show a loss amounting in the total to 388,000; likewise, the three stations immediately north, viz.:—Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fourth street ferry, each show a loss, totaling 286,000, additional proof that the Fourteenth-Twenty-third street area is enjoying splendid industrial advancement on both side of Manhattan.

President Clarkson Cowl, in commenting on the remarkable rapid transit traffic throughout the central mercantile section, said that he was not greatly surprised as he has been impressed from day to day with the splendid increased commercial and industrial growth and advancement of this section of Manhattan.

Samuel Gompers on Labor Question

SAMUEL GOMPERS, President of the American Federation of Labor, at the dinner of the Academy of Political Science held recently, outlined the position of labor during the readjustment period.

After sounding a warning that there could be no return to the old industrial conditions he declared that there were five points necessary to labor. They were: A living wage, an eight-hour day, no child labor, equal pay for women and a living wage for unskilled labor. He said:

"This is no time to rock the industrial boat!"

Mr. Gompers said the old methods of "power of wealth and coercion" to force "justice" upon the workman had passed, and that in the future capital would have to meet labor on a higher plane of justice and humanity, which, he believed, had been one of the lessons learned from the war.

"The sons of the laboring people and of the employers have made the supreme sacrifice together in the cause of justice and humanity," said Mr. Gompers. "It is not going to be easy to thrust the laboring people back and down in the sphere of industry. Each must recognize the principle that we were united in this great world struggle, and now, that peace has come, the working out of the industrial future must be done in the same spirit of co-operation and co-ordination.

"We will never go back to the old conditions. Organized labor is strongly opposed to any destructive methods. We want to grow, to construct, to make living conditions better, to make to-day a better day than yesterday and all the to-morrows better than the days that have gone before."

Architects Busy on Many Building Projects

Plans for New Construction Run from Alterations in Houses, Apartment Buildings and Country Homes

ARCHITECTS of New York City are busily engaged upon the preparation of plans for building projects that are planned as an essential part of the reconstruction period following the establishment of peace. Many of these plans are now completed and unless circumstances arise which make further progress hazardous or impossible there is every likelihood of a large percentage of this work being started in a relatively short time.

The action of the United States Treasury Department in announcing that it would immediately resume activity on its program of construction interrupted by the war has led to similar moves on the part of other Federal departments. According to the present outlook there was to be a considerable amount of Government work undertaken during the coming year in addition to those projects that even now are being planned as protective measures and which are necessitated by a considerably increased permanent military establishment.

The State of Pennsylvania also has announced that it will start operations upon all structural projects that come under its jurisdiction and for which appropriations have been made and plans prepared. There is quite a large volume of State work projected and an early start would add materially to the confidence of the building industry.

Within the Metropolitan district the past two or three weeks have been progressive ones from the viewpoint of newly planned projects and already a number of contracts have been awarded that indicate a tendency to start the work of building notwithstanding high construction costs and other deterrents.

One of the important phases of the building situation today is the great amount of alteration work already actually underway or being planned for an early start. In this form of construction the alteration of private dwellings in the Fifth avenue section has assumed a prominent place. There have been a number of operations of this character recently announced and according to the activity of the real estate market in which dwellings figure prominently is sure to be much additional work of this type.

Apartment house construction will undoubtedly be another important phase of construction during the coming year. The Fred. T. Ley Company has the contract for alterations costing upward of half a million dollars to the twelve-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Central Park West and 65th street. This building is owned by Walter Russell and Penrhyn Stanlaws, who also are interested in the structure at the corner of Central Park West and 67th street. The plans for this project are being prepared by Starrett & Van Vleck, 8 West 40th street.

In Brooklyn plans are underway for a number of high class apartment house projects which will be started early in 1919 and which will materially help in solving the housing difficulties of that borough. Cohn Brothers, architects, are revising their plans for the four-story apartment to accommodate twenty families that Oscar Palmleaf will erect at the corner of Ridge boulevard and 82d street, in the Bay Ridge section. This structure will consist of four and five room suites and will cost approximately $100,000. Work will probably be started soon after January 1.

Slee & Bryson, architects, are making plans for a modern apartment to accommodate thirty-eight families on Eastern Parkway west of Franklin avenue. This project will be four stories in height with ground dimensions of 79x109 feet and will cost more than $125,000. The Hampton Building Company, Wm. B. Greenman, president, is the owner and builder.

In the Brownsville section of Brooklyn there is anticipation of considerable apartment house construction during the coming year. Barnett Baltowsky, owner, has started excavations for three four-story tenement houses, 60x89 feet, in the east side of Powell street south of Riverdale avenue, from plans prepared by Cohn Brothers, architects. This operation will call for the expenditure of about $150,000 for construction.

At Elmhurst, L. I., a large apartment house project is planned by the Queensboro Investing Company. This project will consist of five five-story apartments, with ground dimensions of approximately 62x89 feet, to be located on Polk avenue, Filmore avenue and 22d street. The buildings will be erected from plans by George H. Wells, 21 East 40th street, Manhattan, and will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000. It is expected that work will be commenced about February 1.

Fortunes made during the war will naturally find an outlet in the construction of large country homes and estates. Plans for quite a large amount of extremely high class suburban and country home construction are on the boards and more of this form of work will follow. Prosperous times are always followed by a period of home construction in which structures costing upward of $50,000 each are well represented. At the present time plans are being prepared by Tooker & Marsh for a large country residence to be located at Bayville, L. I., for Edwin Tannhauser, president of the Tannhauser Film Corporation. Although the details of construction have not yet been worked out this building will be a large one and it is expected that work will be started early next spring.

According to the reports there will be considerable house building activity in Great Neck, L. I., and the adjacent territory during the coming year. Miller & Mallory, Ithaca, N. Y., are preparing sketches for a large dwelling of the Italian villa type at Great Neck for J. H. Ballantine of 50 East 42d street, Manhattan. Another house is being planned for Mr. Ingersol and there is likely to be considerable speculative work of a high class produced during the coming season, as there has been a strong demand for dwellings of the better sort and costing upward of $12,000.

In addition to the contemplated program of school building now being worked out by the New York City Board of Education there will in all likelihood be a large amount of money expended for educational buildings in nearby suburban localities. Newark has plans under way for three or four large school projects including a manual training high school for boys that will cost more than $500,000. New Brunswick, N. J., through its Board of Education has commissioned Alexander Merchant to prepare the plans for two grammar school additions costing $35,000 and $45,000, respectively, and a junior high school to cost approximately $400,000. Paterson, Passaic, Bayonne and other New Jersey cities all have important school building programs under advisement and a part of this work will undoubtedly be undertaken during the coming building season.

Henry Bacon has been retained by the Monmouth County Historical Society to prepare the plans and specifications for the $150,000 historical museum it contemplates erecting upon the High School campus at Red Bank, N. J. This operation will be started next spring.

At further distance from New York but still within the sphere of influence of the building industry of this city some large and important construction work is in contemplation. One of the largest operations of this character is the projected office building to be erected by the City of Albany at the corner of Eagle and Beaver streets and which will cost more than $1,000,000. The plans for this structure are being developed by Walter H. Van Guysling, architect, and Arnold W. Brunner, advisory architect.

In line with the maintenance of a larger and more efficient military establishment than the United States has ever before attempted is the proposed building program that will considerably increase the facilities for military education at West Point, N. Y. Congress has been asked for an appropriation totaling several million dollars for additional buildings required at this post and although the bill has not yet been passed there is little question but that the money for buildings will be forthcoming.

Production of Granite Shows Large Decrease

Figures Compiled by United States Geological Survey—First Complete Report of This Important Industry

THE granite sold in the United States in 1917, as shown by figures compiled by G. F. Loughlin, of the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, from reports submitted by producers, amounted to 5,564,200 short tons, valued at $15,-544,957, about 7 per cent. of the quantity and 19 per cent. of the value of the entire output of stone during the year. The figures show a decrease of 40 per cent. in quantity and 11 per cent. in value from 1916 and were the lowest recorded in any year since 1901. The same adverse conditions were reported by the quarrymen for 1917 as for 1918—high wages, shortage of cars and boats for transportation, lack of labor, and high cost of all supplies, as well as substitution of cheaper material. Prices were advanced but, according to many producers, not enough to cover the increased cost of production.

This is the first year for which complete figures showing the quantity of granite produced have been recorded, and in order to compare the production with that of 1916 the output in that year has now been determined largely from actual reports and partly from estimates. The quantities are given according to the usual unit of measurement, but in order to get the total the units have been reduced to short tons.

The following States are the principal producers of monumental granite. In 1917 their output represented 86 per cent of the quantity and 90 per cent. of the value of monumental granite.

Monumental granite produced in certain States in 1917.

State.	Quantity. (cubic feet).	Value.
Vermont .....	1,620,464	$2,200,509
Minnesota .....	264,194	803,370
Wisconsin .....	115,255	538,370
Massachusetts .....	366,738	480,568
North Carolina .....	190,737	393,021
New Hampshire .....	156,378	252,522
Rhode Island a .....	105,323	158,702
Connecticut .....	55,199	114,786
Colorado .....	44,030	104,241

a Rough only.

The price per cubic foot, as shown above, differs greatly, depending on the form in which the stone is sold as well as on the grade of the stone. More than 90 per cent. of the output of both Vermont and Massachusetts is sold rough, whereas most of the stone produced in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and North Carolina is sold dressed. The output of North Carolina, chiefly stone for mausoleum work, heretofore classified as building stone, has been transferred to monumental stone, the class in which it more properly belongs.

The only product whose output increased in value in 1917 was monumental stone (7.8 per cent.), although the quantity produced decreased 6.6 per cent.

Building stone decreased 3,462,721 cubic feet (49 per cent.) in quantity in 1917 and $803,129, or 20 per cent. in value.

Granite paving blocks decreased 12 per cent. in quantity in 1917 and 0.5 per cent. in value, the average price per thousand being $57.67, an increase of $6.94 over 1916. A production of 19,004 tons of "Durax" blocks, valued at $115,717, was also reported.

Granite used for rubble decreased 85,288 short tons (34 per cent.) in quantity and $54,363 (21 per cent) in value, and granite for riprap 1,188,458 short tons (54 per cent.) in quantity and $409,379 (40 per cent.) in value. This class of stone varies greatly in production from year to year, depending on the amount of river and harbor work done by the State and Federal Governments. In 1916 California, Connecticut, Delaware, North Carolina, and Virginia were the States showing greatest production for this purpose. In 1917 California decreased over 50 per cent., North Carolina about 30 per cent., and Virginia and Connecticut reported practically no output of rubble; Massachusetts showed a greatly increased production, and Arizona, Delaware, New York, and Texas were important producers although operations were confined to not more than two localities in each State.

Curbing decreased 600,817 linear feet (30 per cent.)

in quantity and $129,317 (15 per cent.) in value in 1917 as compared with 1916, following an increase of 19 per cent. in value in 1916 over 1915. Georgia, the leading State in 1916, decreased in value $110,427 (49 per cent.), and ranked third in 1917, being exceeded by Massachusetts, which showed an increase of $7,194 (4 per cent.), and North Carolina, which showed an increase of $35,-818 (28 per cent.).

Crushed granite represented 17 per cent. of the value of the total granite output in 1917, and 20 per cent. in 1916. There was a decrease of 1,658,279 short tons (35 per cent.) in quantity and $842,796 (23 per cent.) in value in 1917. According to uses the crushed granite sold for road metal amounted to 1,176,557 short tons, valued at $1,001,076; 478,667 short tons valued at $269,-218 for railroad ballast, and 1,409,902 short tons valued at $1,430,326 for concrete. There was a decrease for each product in 1917 in both quantity and value, but railroad ballast showed the greatest decrease, 59 per cent. in quantity and 54 per cent. in value. All the States that reported production for this purpose in 1917 decreased in output except Virginia. The total average value of crushed granite in 1917 was 88 cents a ton, which was 13 cents more than in 1916.

The number of operators decreased from 598 to 483 in 1917, and several of those that operated reported their quarries closed during part of the working year.

Must Furnish Heat to Tenants

THE Board of Health has issued a report of the effort made by the department to compel owners of apartment houses and office buildings to furnish heat to their tenants as provided in the leases made with them. The report follows:

"Immediately after the enactment of the ordinance requiring landlords to maintain the temperature of all occupied apartments, where leases had been made requiring them to do so, at 68 degrees (F.) the Department of Health received a number of complaints of failure on the part of these landlords to obey the ordinance.

"The procedure in each instance was to have a representative of the Department investigate and ascertain the facts and endeavor by personal effort to obtain compliance with the requirements of the Sanitary Code; if unsuccessful, prosecute to secure compliance.

"The following table (with Richmond eliminated because no complaints were received there) shows the number of complaints investigated by the Sanitary Bureau during October, 1918, relative to such lack of heat in apartments.

	Manhat- tan.	Brook- lyn.	Bronx.	Q'ns.	Ttl.
Complaints received.....	426	1620	323	26	2405
On investigation no cause for action was found.....	396	171	132	10	709
Abated by personal effort.....	39	1448	100	16	1603
Returned for court action.....	1	1	..	..	2
Total valid complaints.....	40	1449	100	16	1605
Pending .....	..	..	91	..	91

"An examination of the above table indicates that the vast majority of complaints were abated through the personal efforts of the agents of the Department and it was not necessary to appeal to the courts to force compliance with the terms of the ordinance.

"In the first case submitted to the courts it developed during the trial that the defendant had from the time of the adoption of the ordinance by the Board of Health used every effort to make repairs to a defective heating plant, and after the evidence submitted to the court clearly established this fact the Department withdrew the complaint.

"In the other case, a corporation owning an office and loft building wilfully failed and neglected to furnish heat in accordance with a lease entered into with the various occupants of the building, and the court imposed a fine of $100."

Great Demand in Canada for Building Supplies

Construction Work on Large Scale Planned in All Parts of Country—Materials Must Be Bought Here

By D. H. MAPES,

General Superintendent of Construction, Canadian Pacific Railroad Company.

OWING to the extremely prominent part taken by Canada in the World War, the normal activities of pre-war times were halted in favor of giving preference to military needs. Structural progress in the Dominion has been practically dormant for more than four years and only such buildings were erected as were required by the war program. There can be no doubt as to the single mindedness of Canada to do its part to win the war, as every effort was concerted toward this goal and domestic economic problems were made secondary. Now, with peace actually within the grasp of the world, the building interests of Canada are again turning their attention to the formulation of plans for supplying the demands that have accumulated during the lengthy period of relative inactivity.

Large sums of money are immediately available in Canada for investment and it is only reasonable to suppose that a large percentage will find its outlet in the construction of buildings for which there is a crying need. For a while it seemed as if the large financial interests of the Dominion were about to follow a policy of extreme conservatism in the investment of these funds and would hold them tightly until the economic revival was completed. But it now appears that there is great willingness on the part of the monied interests to release their surplus for the erection of structures so badly needed for housing, industrial and commercial progress.

From all accounts the expenditure for development and construction work will be greater during the coming year than was ever even imagined in the past. The work will have to be done on an imposing scale in order to meet not only the new demands of a thoroughly awakened nation from an economic standpoint, but also in order to supply the demand that has accumulated by reason of four years of comparative idleness on the part of builders.

Building interests in the United States are certain to experience beneficent effects from the boom that is imminent all through Canada during the coming months. The Canadian markets will be in no position to supply the intense demand for materials and supplies entering into the construction of the contemplated projects and the United States will be called upon to fill material orders in large numbers. The amount of structural essentials that Canada will purchase from its nearest neighbor cannot as yet be gauged, but it will be tremendous and involve millions of dollars. Aside from certain raw products entering into construction, notably lumber and mineral ores, Canada produces a relatively small part of its building materials. The majority of the finished products and a large percentage of the higher grade of specialties are imported, and for the bulk of these Canada is dependent upon the United States.

This great mass of construction work that will shortly be thrown on the market will exert a marked influence upon the material price situation, and the volume and intensity of the demand for supplies will have a strong tendency to maintain the existing high price levels for a long time to come. While the demand for structural materials continues there is no great possibility of a recession from the high construction costs of today. It is true that the present prices cannot be permanent and that a gradual weakening will occur, but this will not be until the most urgent needs of the hour are satisfied, until the nations of the world have caught up with the demand for buildings and the industry again resumes its normal character of pre-war times.

On the other hand, wages will probably be the last factor in the building situation to move downward from its existing high plane. Wages may possibly even increase in some instances before a recession can occur. Demobilization of the great armies of the recent combatants will not materially affect the labor situation as applied to building. There will be sufficient work for all. The building industry in Canada and the United States, through its affiliated trades and interests, will be fully able to absorb and give almost immediate employment to all of the returned soldiers who formerly worked in these lines. At that there will be in all probability a shortage of skilled and unskilled labor for building purposes that will act as an incentive to maintaining the high wage schedules of today and might also be responsible for a slight premium.

Plan for Conversion of One-Family Houses

By WILLIAM E. BLOODGOOD.

THE plan of Commissioner Mann for converting old three and four-story dwelling houses into three and four-family tenement houses, is very interesting, and of course is a great improvement on the former three-family law which did not prove of any value. The proposed plan, however, does not give quite the relief desired, because of its limitation regarding the depth of the buildings.

To place the limit at fifty or fifty-five feet would absolutely bar many desirable buildings from alteration, as many of them are deeper than those limits.

In allowing three families in a building, there are no more persons housed on the lot, whether the building is fifty, sixty or even seventy feet deep. No greater congestion or fire risk.

Why not remove existing extensions and allow the buildings up to a depth of seventy per cent. of the lot depth to be converted? Why should a building fifty feet deep be allowed to be converted, and an adjoining building fifty-one feet deep be barred. Of course I understand that any law must place a limit, but the limit ought to be more favorable to the old buildings than is proposed.

If it would be allowable in a building sixty feet deep, to set the rear wall back to the fifty or fifty-five foot limit, then a little help might be obtained, but I am afraid the Bureau of Buildings would be obliged to decide that the building to be altered was beyond the lawful limit.

A plan which I have not seen mentioned or advocated, and which seems to offer a real relief, is to allow the conversion of old four-story and basement dwellings into three, and only three, family houses by the following method:

In such a building, the cellar would of course remain for heating apparatus, storage, etc.

The front part of the basement would be separate entrances for tenants and tradespeople.

The rear part of the basement and all of the first floor would be the first apartment.

The second story and the rear part of the third story would be the second apartment.

The front part of the third story and all of the fourth story would be the third apartment.

A fireproof entrance hall and stairs to roof should be required, but the balance of the building should remain as it is, non-fireproof, including the small private stairs in the duplex apartments.

All the kitchens would, of course, be in the rear, where the dumb waiters would be placed.

This plan would conserve building materials, change much dead property into active, cost less than new buildings, would quickly increase the number of apartments, without increasing fire hazard or congestion.

A Common-Sense Arrangement

Business men will be gratified by the announcement of the Federal Government, that it is the intention to so market the enormous supplies accumulated for war purposes which still remain unused as to interfere as little as possible with normal business and that officers have been appointed to confer with committees representing the various industries as to how this may be accomplished in the most satisfactory manner.

This is one of the results of the action taken at the Atlantic City Reconstruction Convention of War Industries Committees, when these committees were continued for peace work along the lines now announced by the Government.

This proposal is of great importance to building industries because the Government has on hand approximately 500,000,000 feet of lumber, and large stocks of other building materials. If these supplies were dumped on the market without any steadying influence the entire building industry would be demoralized and it might take a long time for the market to become stabilized so that building operations could be undertaken without fear.

Indicative of the general business situation throughout the country and of what may be expected as the immediate result of the announcement of the Government's program was the attitude of buyers at the great sale of woolen goods held this week in this city. The number of buyers from all over the nation was unusually representative and the amount of goods disposed of was large. Sales the first day were at recessions in prices of about 25 per cent. from the regular opening prices announced by the sellers. The second day's sales were at prices only 12½ to 18 per cent. less than opening prices and the opinion was widely expressed that, instead of the demoralization that had been expected, the market for piece goods and for all woolen manufactures had been brought to a condition where manufacturing on a peace basis could be confidently resumed.

The Government's holdings of wool are to be auctioned off in lots and at such times as to afford ready absorption of the immense stocks on hand.

With the Government and business co-ordinated in the work of readjustment as dictated by common sense the future takes on a happier appearance.

Wages and the Cost of Living

Figures compiled by the New York State Department of Labor of the average weekly earnings of employes show that in September a new high level was made, the average being $22.31, an increase of $1.08 over the proceeding month, and the largest gain in any month since 1914, when the department first began gathering such statistics.

Comparing the average weekly earnings for the year ending September 30 last with retail food prices compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor statistics for the same period it is shown that while food prices increased 16 per cent. wages rose 30 per cent. In the two years ending September 30 food prices had risen 51 per cent. and earnings 50 per cent., while in the four years from September, 1914, to 1918, food prices advanced 67 per cent. and wages 80 per cent.

The last figures are significant as showing that while wage earners have had variable luck in pushing their claims for increases in pay based on the increasing cost of living they are now well ahead of the game, taking food prices as indicative of the entire cost of living, including rents, clothing and other items.

This being so it is evident that organized labor has no valid ground for further advances in wage scales. The best it can reasonably expect is to retain the relative advantage gained during the four years, and accept reductions in wages that are equal to the lessening cost of living. When normal conditions are reached wage earners will be on a much better basis than four years ago, although their incomes may not be so great as at the present time.

All men have not been so fortunate as organized labor in getting increased pay during the war period. A great many business men have suffered severe financial losses during the war, and a large number of salaried employes have had to get along without many of the comforts, not to speak of the pleasures, they were formerly accustomed to because business did not justify higher salaries to meet their increased expenses. These facts, as well as the relative advantage secured by organized labor must fairly be taken into consideration in the readjustment of business. That labor is not in serious danger of unemployment is indicated by reports that while about 10,000 men have been dismissed from Connecticut and Massachusetts manufactories of war materials, the United States Employment Service has received an order for 4,500 skilled workmen and 4,000 laborers from the Pennsylvania Railroad. It is probable that other railroads are in like need of workmen. The New York subway system is ready to hire a large number.

The situation is the reverse of that when men were drawn from their regular employment to the munition factories and shipyards. If the changed conditions are met by employers and employees in the spirit that is characteristic of the time—the idea of interdependence and helpfulness one to the other—there need be no fear of any serious disturbance of business.

order to assess it and tax it, is by compelling the owners of that personal property to come forward and swear to what they have. It is true that they do it today to some extent but they immediately state they have debts against it or that they hold exempt property.

"Behind the direct payment of taxes there is another handicap upon real estate that I wish to touch upon. It is not only the amount of money we pay out each year in taxes, but the evil effect of paying out that additional one per cent., let us say, or $100,000 is illustrated in this way. Take a piece of property worth $100,000. If we add one per cent. to the tax rate we add one point to the tax levy and unless the net income from the property can be increased by taxing a tenant for it we have reduced the value of that property from a selling standpoint $20,000 or 5 per cent. capitalized value for $100,000. That is a most difficult proposition and one that bears most heavily upon real estate in this town. It has resulted not only to the detriment of real estate owners in this town, but it has also resulted detrimentally to the City of New York, and it has deterred people from lending money for improvements, for lenders will never lend on a falling market. It is not financially sound for them to do so and naturally they do not. They say there must be a reason for the falling market. They argue that the demand for space has fallen off or that the demand for rental properties or residence properties has fallen off. As a result of that we are driving from the city capital that ought to be in use here and indirectly those who ought to be residents of the city utilizing that capital. In other words, by reason of the falling market, business which should come to New York City is not coming here but is going elsewhere. That is a fundamental thing as we all know."

Mr. Dowling referred to the action of the Real Estate Board in protesting against the expenditure of large sums of money by the city for the new court house site and other purposes. He said that while the estimated expense of the new court house had been put at $10,000,000 that it was probable the final cost would be $40,000,000.

Albert G. Milbank, representing the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, said:

"We agree with Mr. Dowling that the needed relief to real estate should come by a statutory limitation on the tax rate. We are thoroughly in sympathy with his objective, but we feel that perhaps it would be a more reasonable, logical and philosophical plan to accomplish substantially the same thing if there was a limitation placed on the ratio of the tax burden on real estate due to the total tax burden, and that that ratio need not be absolutely fixed at a minimum or maximum range, but a minimum and maximum range could be established by statute.

"For example, so far as cities of the first class are concerned, the minimum and maximum range should be 60 to 70 per cent. of the tax levy. That, if worked out at some figure between those ratios, would come substantially to Mr. Dowling's figure of 2 per cent.

"The ratios for rural communities could be accordingly higher, for the reason that in rural communities real estate is practically the only form of taxable property.

"And then again as to the question, how to reach personality, there is a difference of opinion. We have felt that the experience of the past has demonstrated that all attempts to tax personality under general tax laws has been abortive, either because it has failed to reach the greater part of the personality by reason of failing to reach the so-called personal tax shirkers and has only reached that portion of personality owners who might be termed the widow and orphan class of trust funds and thereby defeated its own purpose, or else it has failed because of a more or less frank failure to enforce the law.

"The Comptroller admits that for 800 years there has been efforts to reach personality without success but that at last he has found a way to reach it. That way, however, has a very objectionable feature, one that has always been resented by Legislatures and people of this State, that is the listing of personal property. There is comparatively little objection to the listing of incomes if it does not disclose further facts than necessary to impose the tax. As a matter of fact it does not disclose details of a man's personal affairs to list his income, but the listing system in personal property does and is open to that serious objection that it discloses a man's personal affairs.

"The ability to pay any tax is the accepted criterion in a just system of taxation, and I know of no more accurate measure of anybody's ability to pay a tax than his income. Therefore our Committee favors reaching personality—the same objective these gentlemen have in mind but attempted by another road—through a moderate rate of income tax.

"So far as my study of the subject is concerned, I am not prepared to agree with the Comptroller that income derived by a resident of the State from sources without the State cannot be reached by the State. My conclusion is quite the contrary."

Professor Charles F. Chandler of Columbia University, Henry A. Meyer, Deputy Dock Commissioner, Hugh Gordon Miller, Stewart Browne, Lawrence A. Tanzor of the Citizens' Union, and State Comptroller Travis were among the other speakers. Comptroller Travis explained his proposition for an annual mortgage tax, the details of which have been printed in The Record and Guide.

The building zone system has now been in operation in this city a little more than two years. Its preparation took four years. That it was a practical piece of work is proved by the fact that every city in the country that has adopted or is preparing to adopt a zoning plan uses the two voluminous reports of the New York City Building Heights Commission and the New York City Districting Commission as the basis of their work.

The three subjects of restriction (first adopted in this city), viz., height, area and use, are now quite generally accepted as the standard. St. Louis has prepared and adopted a zoning system with maps covering the above three subjects, and in general following the methods of New York City.

Philadelphia has nearly completed a zoning plan similar to that of New York but it has not yet been perfected and adopted. Cleveland has appointed a commission to zone the city and has employed Robert H. Whitten, who helped prepare the New York zoning, to oversee the work there.

RANDOM NOTES IN THE REALTY FIELD

Total of $54,975 for Bronx Lots—Brokers
Active in War Work—New Trust Company Planned

BUILDERS, speculators and investors figured as buyers in the auction sale of 85 Bronx lots, conducted on Tuesday by J. Clarence Davies, as a result of which $54,975 was realized by the Dash estate, owner of the property. The lots were in the Riverside and Spuyten Duyvil section, and brought an average of $646 a lot. The prices ranged from $250 to $1,875 for individual lots. Bryan L. Kennelly did the actual selling.

The first lot offered was the corner of Dash place and Waldo avenue, 25 by 106x irregular, with a building loan if desired. It was purchased by B. Horowitz for $1,025. Adjoining lots in Dash place brought from $700 to $775 each. These also carried building loans.

The one-story and attic frame residence in Waldo avenue, having varying depths of from 188 to 201 feet, together with an interior lot, 75 by 75, was purchased by James V. Hayes for $6,750. The northeast corner of Waldo avenue and 238th street, 25 by 100, was bought by Jacob Sommer, for $1,875. He also took the adjoining lot, in 238th street, for $750. Other adjacent lots in this street went for from $725 to $800.

The largest purchaser was Mrs. Alice M. Jones, who bought twenty-six lots variously located, including four in Spuyten Duyvil road near 238th street, for $475 each. Several shallow lots further north in this street were sold for $250 each.

After the sale Mr. Davies said: "Any one who is familiar with real estate values in New York city, any one who is conversant with past history and development of the metropolis, knows that the prices obtained at the Dash estate sale yesterday were ridiculously low. Many of the purchasers were speculative builders. They certainly should make money as the result of the hour spent Wednesday in the salesroom."

"I thought and stated in print, that bargains would prevail, but I did not think that centrally located property possibly could bring such low prices."

To Organize Trust Company.

A meeting of the stockholders of the New York Title and Mortgage Company has been called for December 26 to consider the action of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee relative to the organization of a $1,000,000 Trust Company.

One of the company's officers stated that for some time the directors and officers of the New York Title and Mortgage Company have been considering broadening the scope of its operations to embrace a general banking and trust business in order to meet the requirements of its ever-increasing clientele. They decided that their clients were entitled to such additional service, and only the conditions brought on by the war deterred them from sooner taking action. They now feel that the times warrant their proceeding with the plan, and are organizing a Trust Company which will also offer banking facilities, to be known as the "American Trust Company," with a cash capital of $1,000,000, and a paid-in surplus of $200,000. By so doing they are providing for their customers and connections in the title and mortgage business, the additional service to which they are entitled, and for which the demand has long seemed to exist.

Real Estate Review for the Current Week

In Spite of Lessened Volume of Business, Market Continues to Progress Along Encouraging Lines

SMALL properties continued to hold the attention of investment capital this week, conditions reflecting, although in somewhat lesser measure, the improved status of the market which has been steadily maintaining its upward trend. Although business did not equal the splendid record of last week, nevertheless it continued along substantially the same lines, the particularly encouraging feature remaining the cash demand for small houses of residential character.

Properties in Water, Front streets, and the downtown section also figured prominently, the buyers being merchants who have been occupying buildings under lease. The total business of the week in spite of its comparatively limited volume may be regarded as decidedly encouraging because it showed that the improved conditions were being maintained and that the market has been losing its "spotty" character.

There were several important developments in the general real estate situation during the week which may be regarded with much optimism by real estate owners. The announcement by Comptroller Craig on Wednesday at the hearings upon the tax situation which were conducted by the Mayor's Committee on Taxation that the tax rate on realty for 1919 would not be higher than that of 1918 was received with much enthusiasm, because it answered reports which have been existing to the effect that there would be a big increase in the tax rate, thereby resulting in the placement of additional burdens upon real estate ownership. The ever rising tax rate within recent years has been watched with growing apprehension by the owners of New York City real estate and those who are familiar with conditions have repeatedly asserted that of all the burdens which have been imposed upon this form of investment, none has been more detrimental to its interests than the steadily mounting tax rate which has so materially increased the overhead carrying charges of realty. Moreover, the hearing also developed the fact that there was an excellent possibility this year of a union between all the real estate interests of New York and the city administration for the purpose of obtaining unified support of legislation at Albany for tax relief to New York City. Real estate men who in former years have seen bill after bill rejected are beginning to feel that this year there will at last be a united front which will have for its purpose the presentation of remedial bills having the support of the entire city, commanding as a result both the respect and recognition of the State Legislature.

Another interesting development of the week which may lead to improved conditions with regard to old dwellings centered upon the conference presided over by Tenement House Commissioner Mann, at which various real estate and building interests met to support the commissioner's proposed amendment to the 3-family house law which will enable property owners to profitably remodel old dwellings into three and four family tenements.

The first large auction offering of unimproved holdings since the signing of the armistice resulted in the disposition of 85 Bronx lots for a total of $54,975 at prices which were considered low. All the lots were sold to buyers who were chiefly speculators and builders, many of whom were attracted by the announcement that the owners would give back building loans on a number of the plots up to 80 per cent. of the amount paid and would provide plans for dwellings to be erected on the property. The sale was well attended but bidding lacked spirit and the disposal of the lots was a rather slow process characterized by lagging bids. Nevertheless, the fact that the lots were sold tends to refute to some extent the assertion which is being made in so many quarters that there is absolutely no existing demand for vacant property.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 50, as against 43 last week and 34 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 16, as compared with 18 last week and 14 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th street was 23, as compared with 32 last week and 20 a year ago.

From the Bronx, 10 sales at private contract were reported, as against 14 last week and 23 a year ago.

Artists Buy the Prasada.

Walter Russell and Penrhyn Stanlans have purchased from the Republic of Panama the Prasada, a twelve-story apartment house at 50 Central Park West, south corner of 65th street, on a plot fronting 100 feet on Central Park West and 125 feet on Sixty-fifth street. The building is to be reconstructed, embodying the new type of apartment house, which is practically a combination club, hotel and apartment, which Hotel des Artistes, in West 67th street, evolved some time since to meet the demand for small suites. The Republic of Panama acquired the Prasada four years ago in foreclosure proceedings against the Apartment Holding Company and others on a bid equaling $711,000. The city assessed it at $850,000.

Purchase by Tobacco Firm.

H. Duys & Company, for many years at 170 Water street, have purchased from Leonard H. Cohen the five-story and basement building on lot 25 by 103, at 142 Water street, between Maiden lane and Pine street. The purchaser paid all cash. The building is considered one of the best in the tobacco district. The property purchased by H. Duys & Co. is under lease to the American Sumatra Tobacco Company. When possession is secured, this firm will remodel the building along the lines of those occupied by the East Indian tobacco importers in Amsterdam, Holland, the architecture of which is similar to the original buildings of New Amsterdam built by the old Dutch East Indian Company. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale.

Arras Inn in Re-Sale.

Byrne & Bowman in conjunction with Frederic Allen, of Frederic Zittel & Sons, have resold for Gross & Herbener the Arras Inn property at the southeast corner of Broadway and 207th street, consisting of a two-story business building on a plot 100 by 100. It is leased for a long term of years to Arras Bros. on a net rental basis, and was held at $125,000. The new owner is J. Mayer, who will hold it as an investment. In part payment Gross & Herbener took the four-story and basement dwelling at 120 West 71st street, on a lot 21 by 100. The 207th street property is one of twelve parcels taken in exchange by Gross & Herbener last July for the business property on the east side of Broadway, between 157th and 158th streets.

Composer in Realty Deals.

Gustav A. Kerker, composer of the "Belle of New York," "Flora Dora," the "Billionaire" and other musical comedies, has purchased through Charles S. Kohler the six-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Creston avenue and 188th street, in the West Bronx. The structure occupies a plot 51x95x65x95, and contains twenty-five apartments and six stores. It was held at $115,000 and has an annual rent roll of over $14,000. It is fully tenanted. The Knap & Wasson Company was associated as broker. The building is of attractive design and two years ago, when it was completed by William Picken, the structure was awarded a prize by the Architectural Society. The new owner, Mr. Kerker, also figured in another realty deal, having sold through Charles S. Kohler, the Knap & Wasson Company and O'Reilly & Dahn, as brokers, the five-story, cold-water tenement at 321 East 74th street, near First avenue, which rents for over $2,200 annually and was held at $16,000. The buyer is James H. Cruikshank.

Operator Buys on Heights.

Frederick Brown has bought the five-story apartment house, on plot 75 by 100, at 50 Northern avenue, northwest corner of 179th street, from the Terraine Realty Company, Edward Hart president. The house has accommodations for thirty families and a rent roll of over $15,000. Mr. Brown gave in part payment seventeen lots on Eightieth street and Seventy-seventh street, near Twelfth avenue, Dyker Heights, Brooklyn. The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company was the broker. Mr. Brown previously owned 60 Northern avenue, southwest corner of 180th street, a similar house, adjoining the one just purchased.

$225,000 Bronx Deal.

Max J. Kramer sold the three five-story apartment houses at 1545 to 1557 Hoe avenue, occupying a frontage of 225 feet and being 100 feet in depth. The property was sold for a reported price of $225,000 to an investor, a client of Jacob Brand. The houses rent for $33,000 annually and were built by Mr. Kramer a few years ago. They are arranged for thirty families to a house and are fully tenanted.

New Veterinary College.

The New York University veterinary college has bought the southwest corner of First avenue and Twenty-seventh street, 74.1x95, from the Estelle F. Taylor estate. The present four-story building will be razed and replaced with a four-story structure for the use of the college. On the main floor will be offices, study departments and operating rooms. The classroom and the lecture hall will occupy the second floor. The Liataud library will be on the third floor. On the top story are to be anatomical laboratories and the museum. In the basement will be the department for the study of horseshoeing as related to veterinary science. Cady & Gregory are the architects for the new building.

Plan Social Service School.

The Children's Aid Society, William C. Osborn president, has purchased from Rosalie Iocco the property at 2225 First avenue, about 50 feet north of 114th street, a three-story structure, on a lot 25x100. A school building, to be known as the Verdi School, will be erected by popular subscription. It is announced that more than $27,500 has already been obtained toward the improvement. Diagonally opposite the property purchased for the school site is the principal recreation centre for children of Harlem, Jefferson Park.

Re-Sales on Heights.

Nehring Brothers sold for Abraham Kuth to Fredericka Brown, 538 West 179th street, a five-story new law house, 38x100, adjoining the southwest corner of St. Nicholas avenue, held at $50,000. It has a reported rent roll of $6,000. This completes the sale of three houses, the others being 530 and 534, which were erected some time ago by Mr. Kuth. Mr. Brown re-sold the property, through Nehring Brothers and Sawson Hobbs, to a buyer who gave in part payment 395 Manhattan avenue, a three story dwelling, 18x83, between 110th and 117th streets, held at $12,000, a title to which is held by Wilhelmine Walther.

Big Brooklyn Deal.

The F. W. Woolworth Company has purchased the building at 532 to 540 Fulton street, which it occupies under a lease with two years to run. The property is assessed for taxation at $850,000 and the price paid by the Woolworth Company is understood to be $849,000. The property was owned by the Realty Associates, which bought it eight years ago and erected the building which was later leased by the 5 and 10 cent store company. The property will be remembered by real estate men as the one whose tax valuation was upheld by a deputy tax assessor who found a buyer for the property at the city's valuation when the Realty Associates protested against it as being far above market value. The Associates refused to sell at the assessed valuation.

Sale in Degnon Terminal.

The White Company, manufacturers of automobiles, purchased for improvement an entire block square in Long Island City from the Degnon Realty and Terminal Company. The property is located in the heart of the terminal property and measures 200 feet on Thomson and Nott avenues and 600 feet in School and Mount streets. The property involved contains 129,000 square feet of ground area. The purchasing company will erect on the site a service station. It will be served by the Degnon terminal railroad, which has direct connection with all the trunk lines in the country. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers. This is the fourth square block sold by the Degnon company during the past year.

Broker in Broadway Deal.

Harold L. Lewis was the broker in the sale last week of 198 Broadway by Isaac H. Clothier to Bing & Bing. The property was held at $500,000.

Sale of Brooklyn Houses.

The Realty Associates have sold to the Parkside Avenue Holding Company the nine three-story brick houses at 63 to 81 Grattan street, the twelve smaller houses at 90 to 112 Harrison place and the four-story houses at 120, 122, 128, 130, 134, 140, 142 and 144 Grattan street. The broker was I. Weinbach.

Manhattan.*South of 59th Street.

BARCLAY ST.—The Cruikshank Co. sold 121 Barclay st, a 5-sty cold storage and store building, 22.3x100.5, between Washington and West sts, for Helen C. Irving to Jeannette Jaeburg.

BEEKMAN ST.—Charles F. Noyes Co. resold for cash for the Baltic Realty Corporation to E. C. Mears Kemp 20 Beekman st, a 5-sty basement and sub-cellar building, with elevator, covering lot 24x85, and located between William and Nassau sts. The property was valued at $75,000, and is now being extensively altered. In announcing the deal the brokers state that Mr. Kemp has purchased the property as an investment and the buildings will probably be occupied in connection with the business of Lanman & Kemp, which, however, will remain at 135-139 Water st, where it has been established for many years.

FRONT ST.—Charles A. O'Donohue, as trustee, is reported to have sold 88 Front st, a 4-sty store and loft building, on a lot 22.1x86.7.

GRAND ST.—F. J. Guilfoyle & Co., Inc., sold for the Samuel Ostrander estate 8 Grand st, a 3-sty building, 22.8x83, between Varick and Sullivan sts, to the Boxboard and Lining Co., which owns and occupies adjoining 10 and 14, thus controlling a frontage of 52.2 ft.

PINE ST.—S. B. O'Sullivan sold for James Brennan 97 Pine st, a 5-sty building, on lot 20.3x11.9.

WATER ST.—The Cruikshank Co. sold in conjunction with Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd for the Almy Realty Corporation, representing the Gallatin family, the 5-sty business building at 46 and 48 Water st, on a plot 54.7x68.2x irreg. The property, which had been in the possession of the selling family for many years, is located just north of Coenties slip. The new owner is an investor, who takes the property in the name of the 210 West Fifty-sixth Street Co.

18TH ST.—The 3-sty dwelling at 318 West 18th st, on lot 21.11x92, was resold at private sale for a price said to be $10,000, after it had been offered in foreclosure proceedings at the stand of Henry Brady. The plaintiff bought it in a total bid of $7,675. The auction is understood to have been held for the perfecting of the title.

24TH ST.—H. Nelson Flanagan sold 310 East 24th st, a 3-sty tenement, 18.9x98.9, for the estate of H. Phillips. It had been in the possession of the selling family for 53 years.

27TH ST.—Norman S. Riesenfeld resold 143 East 27th st, a 3-sty brick and stone business building, on a lot 20x98.9, assessed for $20,000, which he bought on August 28.

34TH ST.—Pease & Elliman sold for the estate of A. B. Randolph to Frederick J. Sterner 107 East 34th st, a 5-sty American basement dwelling, 20.6x98.9, in the Murray Hill section. The property adjoins the residence of Robert Bacon, one-time Ambassador to France, at the northeast corner of Park av.

49TH ST.—The 4-sty residence, on lot 20x 100.8, at 21 West 49th st, Columbia College leasehold, is reported to have been resold by Julia S. Walberg, who acquired it last week from Langdon B. Valentine through Douglas L. Elliman & Co. The new owner plans to alter it into small apartments.

50TH ST.—Douglas L. Elliman & Co. sold for Mrs. J. V. S. Eagan the 4-sty residence at 49 West 50th st, on a lot 15x100.5, between 5th and 6th avs, a Columbia College Leasehold. The buyer, Marks E. Harby, of Huntington, L. I., will occupy the house.

LEXINGTON AV.—Harry Sugarman sold for the Wilmore Realty Co. the 3-sty dwelling, with basement store, at 190 Lexington av, on a lot 22x80, near 32d st, assessed at $24,000.

UNITED SERVICE

The "Why" of Outlets

If an apartment house, loft building or other property is rented all or nearly all the time, nevertheless the owner should provide adequate outlets because of

- (1) the added convenience to tenants and consequent enhancement of property value
- (2) keeping equipment on a par with that of other buildings that have adequate outlets
- (3) the greater ease of renting when a vacancy occurs
- (4) the opportunity to ask a larger rental income.

RECENT LEASES.

Important Fifth Avenue Lease.

The importance of the Fifth avenue and 42d street section as a financial center is further evidenced by a lease consummated by Douglas L. Elliman & Company for the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, which has found it necessary to extend its present quarters in 511 Fifth avenue, S. E. corner 43d street, by leasing the second floor of the building adjoining at 509 Fifth avenue, the rapid growth of the Guaranty Trust Company's business having necessitated this expansion. The additional space which has been taken is approximately 4,000 square feet, and the lease is for a long term at an aggregate rental of nearly $200,000.

Building Material Demand Will Be Heavy

Anticipated Building Movement Will Involve Tremendous Expenditures for Labor and Supplies

WITH the great rapidity in which the period of readjustment is formulating, it would seem that we are about to enter an epoch of unprecedented demand for lumber and building materials. A computation of the probable amount of new building construction is being made and figures at hand indicate that there may be twice as much building construction in project in this country today as in the best previous year ever reported. If this estimate is accurate our producing capacity of lumber and building material during the coming year will be taxed to the utmost.

Our normal growth of construction, which has been curtailed to a serious extent due to restrictions, regulations and embargoes, is incomparable with the drastic conditions in France, Belgium and England. The problem centers chiefly in the question of building material demand and the capacity of American manufacturers to meet the unprecedented domestic call for construction material, and to take care of the requirements of other parts of the world.

The stringent condition of European construction is emphasized by a statement by Wm. C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, who said in part: "Great Britain is short in construction some 500,000 houses. Belgium and France together are in immediate need of some 500,000 more, so that one million new houses will be presently built, taking large quantities of lumber, cement, and hardware."

With regard to foreign construction a considerable part may be of a comparatively simple character. A certain amount of reconstruction will be immediately imperative, especially in the areas directly devastated by war. This reconstruction will probably be of an elementary character. It is a mistake to estimate the value of the buildings and bridges destroyed and then to jump to the conclusion that reconstruction means that everything is to be restored just as it existed before the war. The most important and most pressing needs will be met. But the buildings now constructed will not be of the substantial character of the destroyed. In place of the brick house, we may look for something like an American three-decker made of scantlings and stucco. Where formerly stood a steel and concrete bridge, there will be imperative need of a temporary and cheap means of crossing the river.

If this view is correct, there will be a strong demand for building materials of the sort that enters into the cheaper grade of construction. This work will probably not offer much opportunity for American contracting firms. Materials will be wanted, but the work will be done by the European peoples themselves. Furthermore, the buying of materials will be close. Syndicates are already formed to purchase such materials as is needed in large quantity and arrange for its economic distribution on the other side. It is not unlikely that through the advantage of large scale buying these syndicates will be able to secure materials here and elsewhere at a less cost than the American builder will have to pay for the same goods.

For some years before the beginning of the war, the United States received an annual accession of 700,000 to 1,000,000 immigrants. Practically all of these came to recruit the unskilled labor class and were used extensively on all construction projects. This flow of immigration has been, in the past, an important factor in the labor situation, and now that we are returning to a peace basis it is pertinent to inquire what part immigration may be expected to play in the future.

It is evident that the flow and ebb of immigration depends upon the relative opportunities offered by America or the homeland. If business is active here, and plenty of employment is to be had at wages better than can be obtained at home; the flow of immigration will set in strong. But when business in this country is in a state of depression, and employment difficult to obtain, the arrivals are fewer and the departures more numerous.

Prior to 1875 we received many immigrants from Germany, but the industrial expansion and prosperity of that country from 1875 down to the outbreak of the war, provided employment for German labor at home at wages good enough to check the immigration. It is impossible to say at the present time what conditions in Germany will be from the labor standpoint. Germans coming to this country must also reckon with the hostile sentiments they will be likely to meet, and this may prevent an extended resumption of immigration from this source.

The conditions of the working classes in Italy, except farmers, has been greatly improved during the last ten years, on account of socialistic measures carried through the legislature and various city governments by respectable socialist bodies. If the Italian government can weather the process of readjustment to peace, these improved conditions will make Italy more attractive to Italian laborers, and we shall get fewer of them in the future.

Lloyd George's program, coupled with the reconstruction program laid out by the reconstruction committees in England will vastly improve the conditions of the working classes in England. This does not mean that the wages and standards of living of English workmen will be comparable to those enjoyed by the American working men, but considering the standard of living and the segregation of English working men into a class by themselves, the wages received in England will enable the English working man to meet his necessities, relatively speaking, very much more easily than he was able to before the war. A systematic campaign is being carried on by the government in England to warn would-be emigrants of the inducements held out by America and to inform them of real opportunities at home with a view to keeping them there. Great progress in opening up land for settlement may be expected in England. England will endeavor to come nearer supporting herself than she has ever come before.

It seems probable that the only source from which any considerable immigration would be likely to come in the next few years is the near-east, Greece, Macedonia, Serbia, Bulgaria, Roumania, South Russia and Asia Minor. Since most of the immigrants from these countries are illiterates, the literacy test will tend to shut them out also. American employers should prepare to supply their labor needs without relying on the plentiful supply of so cheap foreign labor which could be so easily obtained in former days.

Road Builders to Meet in New York

AT the invitation of Mayor Hylan, the Merchants' Association and other organizations, the American Road Builders' Association will hold its sixteenth annual convention in New York City. This is the first time in the long history of the organization that an annual convention has been held in the City of New York, and every effort is being made to make the meeting an event in keeping with the municipality in which it is to be held.

After careful consideration of the facilities and the location of the meeting places available, the executive committee, in which the active direction of the association's activities is vested, has chosen the Hotel McAlpin, the convention to begin on Tuesday, February 25, and ending on Friday, February 28. The program which is being prepared, will include technical sessions every forenoon and afternoon, a dinner on one evening, an exhibition by material and machinery dealers and manufacturers, and a number of entertainments. The exhibition will be held in the roof garden and will comprise displays of models, photographs, sample of materials, and the like.

The American Road Builders' Association, as its name implies, is a national organization of the men who are actively engaged in various capacities in the construction and maintenance of highways—both country roads and city streets. It includes in its membership almost all of the men prominent in this field, among whom are many of national and international reputation.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

REPORTS of many new projects being planned by New York architects and a number of contracts awarded during the past week have given considerable color to the building situation in the Metropolitan district. From the sections adjacent to New York reports of newly contemplated building operations are favorable and indicate busy times in 1919. In general the industry is confident that a large volume of construction will be started early next year but is somewhat divided as to the building prospects during the coming winter months. The outlook, however, is bright, and there is no doubt but that the reconstruction period will be a notable epoch in the history of the building trades.

The labor situation is a factor of almost dominating influence upon the future of building at the present moment. There is considerable unrest in labor circles identified with the building industry. In some instances it would seem as though labor is making an effort to force an issue that certainly will not be of permanent benefit to their craft. Some trades already have taken action to enforce their demands upon the employers and others have similar moves in contemplation. All of this has created an atmosphere of doubt as to what the next few months will bring forth in the field of building labor.

Building material markets are quiet and, although inquiries have improved considerably in volume, they are not expected to develop into tangible orders until early next spring. Current buying is somewhat heavier than it has been during the past few months but the actual orders are not in sufficient volume to indicate that a resumption of building construction on a large scale has already commenced.

Prices are firm in practically all lines, and there is a strong tendency to stabilize the present levels. From the tone of the market there is little likelihood of a drop in building material price quotations during the winter and the prices for spring and summer delivery will be largely predicated on the supply and the demand. No weakening from the current high levels is indicated, however, owing to the impossibility of reducing production costs upon which the selling prices are based. While labor retains its existing high scale of wages, operating costs will be heavy and the prices to the consumer will be relatively high.

Common Brick.—The wholesale market for Hudson River common brick is without feature of particular interest. The arrival of brick from up-river has been in somewhat heavier volume than in the past few weeks and a number of barges are being covered against the demand of the winter months and while the river is closed to navigation. The sales of the week have been relatively light as compared to the number of barges arrived, and at the present time there is quite a large amount of brick on hand in the wholesale market. Prices are firm at $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots, alongside dock and there are prospects that this quotation may be advanced at almost any time. There has been no change in the Raritan situation and no brick from this district is likely to be sold in the New York market until next spring.

SUMMARY.—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Friday, December 20, 1918. Condition of market: Demand fair; prices steady. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 14; sales, 5. Distribution: Manhattan, 2; Brooklyn, 1; New Jersey points, 2.

Structural Steel.—New demand for structural steel is light and will be until the building industry settles some of its problems and the way opens for building activity without hindrance from financial, labor and transportation difficulties. There have been a number of important structural operations recently planned, but there is little chance of their being started while construction costs remain at the existing prohibitive levels. There is yet a considerable amount of Government construction to be undertaken, mainly for the improvement of what will be in future permanent military bases required by the demands of a greatly increased standing army. According to the records of the Bridge Building and Structural Society it is shown that during the month of November, 1918, twenty-seven per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country was contracted for. This is a material falling off from the figure of one month ago and indicates that the steel situation is working around to a point where the fabrication of structural shapes for brings a new responsibility—the responsibility of reconstruction and demobilization. The United States Government has a new and stupendous task ahead and needs more than ever the brains, courage, energy, influence and money of the Army of Business.

Funds are needed to bring home our armies, to reconstruct devastated Europe and to insure the real fruits of victory and peace.

Business men, your peace fight is along the lines of forming War Savings Societies and Victory Clubs, among yourselves, your employees and your clients. Your scope and power is on a par in peace with the scope and power of our armies on the field of battle. Reconstruction and readjustment is your duty and privilege.

building purposes may proceed without further difficulty, and in volume to supply all ordinary demands.

Lumber.—Seasonable dullness is apparent in both wholesale and retail departments of the lumber market, but inquiries for delivery during the spring and summer of next year are indications of a large volume of future business. There are excellent prospects of a heavy suburban building season and as a large percentage of this character of work is of wood construction the outlook for the lumber interests is most promising. Lumber prices at wholesale are firm and in view of the reports that are coming in from manufacturing sources as to current and future lumber production the retail dealers who are in possession of well filled stocks are not likely to make concessions in their prices even during the relatively inactive winter months. Supplies of lumber are not at the present time up to the normal, and the scarcity of labor at production points will operate to prevent a normal lumber output for some time in the future. This condition will no doubt have a tendency to maintain the current high price levels and if the demand from building sources increases suddenly increases in price may be anticipated.

Face Brick.—Manufacturers are hopeful for the future as the result of the increasing number of inquiries for face brick desired for large structural projects in the Metropolitan district. Although there is little probability that any great part of this work will be started before next spring, the fact that the jobs will be figured and possibly contracts let is having its effect upon the dealers and manufacturers. Prices are firm and there is no anticipated reduction from the existing levels.

Portland Cement.—A most interesting recent feature in the minds of the cement industry was the annual meeting of the Portland Cement Association held at the Hotel Biltmore. The tone of the whole meeting was one of extreme optimism for the future of the industry. At the present time buying interest is light owing to the fact the Government requirements have been greatly reduced since the signing of the armistice and civil construction has not as yet been commenced to take its place. Prices are firm and without change.

Cast Iron Pipe.—There are prospects that the prices of cast iron pipe will be revised January 1 if the price of pig iron is reduced as anticipated. Buying is light and consumers are no doubt holding off with their orders for any concession in price they may be able to obtain after the first of the year. There are plans in progress for quite a large amount of municipal and county work and the outlook for a steady volume of business during the coming year is excellent. At the present writing quotations are unchanged.

Window Glass.—The market situation is almost without feature with glass producers still undecided regarding the resumption of manufacturing operations for the coming season. Some manufacturers anticipate starting their blasts about the middle of January provided the matter of wage scale is adjusted without further delay. There has been but slight improvement in buying activity and no material increase in the volume of business is looked for until the spring. Prices are unchanged and firm.

Wire Products.—Owing to the high cost of producing wire products and the relatively small profits that the manufacturers have been able to make as the result of the Governmental price schedule it is quite probable that no material reduction in the selling prices of these products will be made for some time to come. Prices will not be lowered until manufacturing costs have been materially decreased. There has been a fair demand for both wire and wire nails from private sources.

Builders' Hardware.—The trade outlook is considered bright, and business during the spring and summer of 1919 is expected to be heavy. There is a great volume of contemplated building that will undoubtedly be started just as soon as weather conditions and the supply of materials permit and this will result in an active buying market. Prices are firm.

Linseed Oil.—This is usually the dull season of the year in the linseed oil market and 1918 is no exception. Buying interest is exceptionally light and the prospects for improvement are not bright. Prices are unchanged.

PLUMBING RULES TO BE REVISED

Board of Standards and Appeals Will Conduct Hearing on Proposed Changes

IN accordance with the practice of the U. S. Government and of the greatest health resort on the Atlantic coast, as well as of other cities, the Board of Standards and Appeals has proposed a revision of the plumbing rules so as to permit the use of a simplified, less expensive and more effective system of plumbing and drainage.

The text of the proposed changes in the rules has been advertised in the Bulletin of the Board of Standards and Appeals, with notice that a public hearing will be held thereon on Friday, December 27, at 10 a. m., in Room 919, Municipal Building.

The text of the proposed changes is as follows:

(Note that matter to be omitted is placed in brackets [ ] and that new matter is in italics.)

Proposed Amendment to Plumbing Rules.

RESOLVED, That rules 91, 95, 98, 99, 111, 113, 114 and 116 of the Rules and Regulations for Plumbing and Drainage, Water Supply, Gas Piping and Ventilation of Buildings, adopted by the Superintendent of Buildings of the City of New York, effective April 23, 1912, be and they hereby are amended to read as follows:

Vent Pipes.

Rule 91. All traps, except approved anti-siphon traps connected to main waste or soil stacks by branch piping not over seven (7) feet in length, must be protected from siphonage and back-pressure [and the drainage system ventilated] by special lines of vent pipes [.], provided that where approved deep-seal water closet fixtures are installed with branch piping not over five (5) feet in length from fixture to main soil stack, such vent pipe may be omitted in buildings not over eight (8) stories in height, and where the main soil stack is made one inch larger in diameter than required by these rules, such vent pipe may also be omitted in buildings over eight (8) stories in height.

Rule 95. Except where "yoke type" ventilation is installed, [V] vent connections for water-closets and slop sinks must be made from the branch soil or waste-pipe just below the trap of the fixture, and this branch vent pipe must be so connected as to prevent obstruction and no waste-pipe connected between it and the fixture[s]. Earthenware traps must have no vent horns.

"Yoke type" ventilation shall be taken to mean a cross connection, by means of a horizontal branch soil or waste-pipe, between the main soil or waste stack and the vent stack, and in which the connection between the branch pipe and the vent stack is made at least six (6) inches above the line of fixtures discharging into such branch pipe.

Rule 98. When the plumbing fixtures installed in any building are arranged in groups or batteries, "yoke type" ventilation may be installed, provided that for batteries of water closets each fixture shall be set not more than two (2) feet distant from the horizontal branch soil pipe into which it discharges, and for batteries of fixtures other than water closets each fixture shall be so located that its trap will be not more than two (2) feet distant from the horizontal branch waste line into which it discharges. When the ordinary type of venting is installed and the number of branch or back vents from the traps of fixtures connecting to any main branch vent exceeds the number and size given in the following table, a 3-inch main branch vent must be provided for the additional vent connections.

4-2 inch branches on a 2 inch main branch.
7-1½ inch branches on a 2 inch main branch.
2-2 ½ inch branches on a 2 inch main branch.
4-1½ inch branches on a 2 inch main branch.
1-2 ½ inch branches on a 2 inch main branch.

Traps.

Rule 99. No form of trap will be permitted to be used unless it has been approved by the Superintendent of Buildings [.] or the Board of Standards and Appeals.

Rule 111. Every [P] plunge bath[s] shall be provided with a trap at least four inches in diameter, the waste from trap to bath to be reduced two diameters and this waste to be controlled by a gate valve. Overflow pipes, if provided, must be connected on inlet side of trap. Except where an approved anti-siphon trap is installed in the manner specified in Rule 91, such [T] trap[s] must be ventilated by a separate vent line extended above the roof[.], of [Vent lines shall be] the same size as trap and water connection.

Rule 113. Every [D] dental cuspidor[s] must be separately trapped by a trap of at least one and one-half (1½) inches in diameter, which shall be [properly] vented, except where an approved anti-siphon trap is installed in the manner specified in Rule 91, and placed as close to the fixture[s] as possible. The connection between trap and cuspidor may be three-quarters (¾) of an inch in diameter.

Rule 114. No plumbing fixtures, except bar sinks, soda fountains or drinking fountains, shall be installed with an indirect waste connection to the plumbing and drainage system. The waste of every bar [-] sink, soda [-] fountain and drinking [-] fountain if not directly connected, must discharge over a properly water-supplied, trapped [and vented] sink[.], with trap vented, unless an approved anti-siphon trap is installed in the manner specified in Rule 91. The main waste lines shall be two (2) inches in diameter, and the branches to fixtures at least one and one-half (1½) inches in diameter. Drinking fountains must be trapped and the waste line extended through the roof. No vent connections need be provided.

Rule 116. Safe and refrigerator waste-pipe shall not be trapped. They must discharge over a properly water-supplied, trapped [and vented] sink, with trap vented, unless an approved anti-siphon trap is installed in the manner specified in Rule 91, such sink to be publicly placed, and not more than 4 feet above the floor. In no case shall any refrigerator or safe waste-pipe discharge over a sink located in a room used for living purposes.

At the meeting of the Building Code and Building Standards Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York, held Monday, December 16, the proposed rule relative to plumbing and drainage was approved and a report of the same will be made at the hearing of the Board of Standards and Appeals on December 27.

The following letter has been sent to Hon. John P. Leo, chairman of the Board of Standards and Appeals:

Dear Sir:

At a regular meeting of the Building Code and Building Standards Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York, held today, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Standards and Appeals be requested to adopt an additional rule in relation to fire escapes, as follows:

Where a fire-escape does not extend to the roof, the windows or other openings on the top story leading to such fire-escape need not be fire-proof.

On regular motion, duly seconded and carried, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, It appears in connection with Section 775a of the Greater New York Chapter that the Fire Commissioner is not delivering to the Superintendents of Buildings copies of every order which involves the alteration of any building or structure, and

WHEREAS, It also appears that the Superintendents of Buildings are not notifying the Fire Commissioner when plans are filed to comply with any order of the Fire Commissioner and also fails to follow the general rules of the Board of Standards and Appeals as to the approval of the plans so to apply,

RESOLVED, That the Superintendents of Buildings and the Fire Commissioner be respectfully urged to follow the statutory requirements as above outlined.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

E. E. Seelye, 101 Park avenue, has been retained as the structural engineer for the new school to be erected at Cohoes, N. Y., from plans by Tooker & Marsh, architects.

Professional Division of the United States Employment Service, with headquarters at 16 East 42d street, is making an effort to place thoroughly competent and equipped officers and men of the Army and Navy in civil positions for which they are best fitted. University graduates in mechanical, electrical and civil engineering and in chemistry, and other technical men with several years of practical experience, are now registered with the Professional Division. The record of each man is carefully investigated before registration is permitted. Employers seeking such men are asked to inform the office of the precise nature of the positions available. Only men well qualified for the positions are sent to employers.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS. Monthly meeting second Tuesday of each month. Calvin W. Rice, secretary, 29 West 39th st.

NEW YORK LUMBER TRADE ASSOCIATION will hold a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday evening, January 27. The proposition to hold a dinner this season originated before the signing of the armistice, and at the annual meeting on November 13 the secretary reported, as a result of the canvass taken a week previous, that the sentiment was strong for resuming the annual banquet, which for so long has been a feature of the lumber trade in New York. The committee having the matter in charge is composed of Russell J. Perrine, who is chairman; Everett L. Barnard, Henry Cape and J. C. Turner. Every effort will be made to make the affair a memorable one in the history of the association.

to collect telephone tolls at the time the call is made and which was exhibited and demonstrated at the Third Annual Hotel Men's Exhibition at Madison Square Garden this week by the Coin Device and Signal Co., 409 Eighth avenue, New York.

This device is claimed to be the only method by which an owner or building manager can avoid telephone disputes with tenants and shortages in collection. By installing this equipment payment for the call is made by the user and this payment is registered with the operator at the switchboard located in some other part of the building.

The system is electrically operated and is under the control of the apartment houses switchboard operator, but in no way connects with the telephone, working entirely independent. Each apartment is equipped with a coin collecting device that is connected with the recording device under control of the apartment house operator.

Brokers Selling War Stamps.

The Realty War Savings Committee, in order to create new interest in its war work and to stimulate the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps, has introduced a new plan to simplify the problems of Christmas giving. Those who have gifts to make can relieve themselves of much trouble and at the same time help a good cause by preparing a list of names and addresses of recipients with the amounts allotted and forwarding it, with remittance covering the total amount, to the Realty War Savings Committee, 217 Broadway. On Christmas eve the committee will send Thrift or War Stamps to the persons designated with a message telling them whose gift it is and explaining the necessity of continuing the War Savings habit. Real estate men who give presents to janitors, elevator men, firemen, switchboard operators, etc., are advised to take advantage of this new method.

Greater Tax Returns From Personal Property

President Jacob A. Cantor Explains Working of Present Law and Suggests Several Plans for Making It More Effective

JACOB A. CANTOR, president of the Board of Taxes and Assessments, who pointed out last week in the Record and Guide the reasons why the 1919 tax rate would not exceed the rate for 1918, declared this situation was brought about through the increased return from the personal property tax. Further discussing the new policy of his department with relation to increased personal taxes and the general taxation situation, Mr. Cantor said to a Record and Guide representative:

"Aside from the tax on real estate this department concerns itself with three principal sources of revenue, namely, the bank tax, the tax of personalty of corporation not included in the corporation Tax Law of the State, and the assessment of personal property. The assessed valuation of personal property last year amounted to $251,000,000. I have no doubt but that when the 1919 assessment has been completed it will show an increase of $100,000,000 more and that this, plus the increased assessment on real estate which can be held at $100,000,000 will, as I said last week, be sufficient to offset increases in the budget and prevent the tax rate from advancing above the 1918 figure.

"We have examined altogether more than 25,000 taxpayers, or more than double the number that have ever been examined heretofore, and we have been successful in a large number of these cases through appeals to their civic pride. As a result of the protection afforded to personal property under our laws, a large percentage of consents were obtained even though there was no liability on the part of the person assessed. It is my belief that if the bills which we had introduced last year in the Legislature had become laws the personal property assessments would have been three or four times greater at the present time.

"One of the chief difficulties has been the secured debt law which takes from the city personal property locally assessable. The State tax is $2 per thousand and we find that in the enforcement of the personal tax law as it now stands, many millions of dollars are taken from the city and we have only a small per cent. returned under this form of State taxation.

"Another difficulty has been the fact that only a nominal indebtedness was deductible but the actual indebtedness was not. To illustrate: A note on a bank accompanied by collateral security was deductible on its face value although the collateral was more than enough to pay all the note. As a rule these loans were obtained upon non-taxable securities so that these securities could not figure as an asset.

"There is a popular notion that persons can evade the payment of personal taxes by removing intangible property out of the state and I have heard some of the well-informed men on the subject make this declaration. The fact is that securities follow the residence of the taxpayer and we can assess here a resident no matter where his personal property is located.

"Another difficulty in the way is the one existing relative to the bond and mortgage where one can deduct the amount of the bond notwithstanding the fact that the real estate is amply sufficient to pay the indebtedness, so that we find personal property in a great number of cases wiped out by these bonds and mortgages. In fact, it has been stated to me and to others that an individual will refuse to pay off a mortgage, using it as the means of avoiding payment of personal taxes. It is true, of course, that while the present method of assessing personal property is unscientific and unequitable it is the best means we have at our command of levying it.

"If an income tax could be adopted (although from what I have learned from talks with members of the Legislature that seems an impossibility at this time) it would provide the only equitable means of levying taxes, but we would be up against the same objection from up State interests to an income tax that there was last year to the adoption of the listing system. In these states where an income tax has taken the place of personal tax it has worked out very advantageously and the result has been substantial increases in tax returns. Nevertheless, it is difficult for any man to suggest what rates on incomes should be made in order to realize sufficient funds to assist in meeting expenses especially in a municipality of such tremendous size as New York City.

"But I can say this in favor of the income tax: that figures from states where this law is now in operation indicate that it requires for its collection no more than 3 per cent. of the total levy. Analysis of the existing situation leads me to believe that new sources of revenue may be obtained either from the State income tax or through the strengthening of the present personal tax law which may be revised by the enactment of the law calling for a small tax of not less than one per cent. and providing also for the elimination of many of the exemptions which practically nullify the law at it now stands,

"Real estate owners will recall that during the last session of the Legislature we had prepared and introduced these bills, which in our judgment would have added greatly to revenues collected from the personal tax law, but the Legislature failed notwithstanding our effort to enact them into law."

The following is a summary of bills introduced:

1. To amend the Tax Law in relation to taxation of capital stock of corporations.

Such amendment is to eliminate from Section 12 of the Tax Law the provision exempting surplus profits or reserve funds of a corporation "exceeding ten per

State Income Tax Favored by Some Realty Men

Report of Committee on Tax Investigation, Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, Says Billions of Personalty Escapes Taxation

BY ALBERT G. MILBANK,

Chairman, Committee on Tax Investigation, Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests

THE time has long since passed when substantial changes should have been made in the tax system of New York. This verdict must result from any careful study of the known facts. The changes needed are not primarily in the interest of real estate owners as such and certainly not in the interest of professional dealers and managers—landlords and tenants, borrowers and lenders, investors and laborers, employers and employes—it is unfortunate that all such are not conscious of the fact that each is affected directly and vitally.

Certain principles have guided our deliberations.

Taxation is to be used for raising public revenues—not for punishing this interest or that interest, or to favor this class of property or that class of property.

The distribution of tax burdens is inequitable. The need for equity is admitted by all fair-minded persons.

All previous investigations agree as to the situation. Ten or twelve such studies have been made beginning with the Wells' Commission in 1871. We have sought to have competent authorities bring their researches and recommendations up to date. This work has not yet been completed but some of the vital facts are of interest.

Ninety-five per cent. of the total tax levy is now placed upon real property in New York City.

The actual market value of real property is probably so much less than the present total of assessments thereof that the constitutional debt limit of the city has been exceeded.

Additional revenue is required by the city to cover loss of the excise taxes and the cost of city administration as now organized.

Millions of dollars in personal property located in New York are admittedly not bearing a proper share of the tax burden. Yet they receive all the benefits of government.

More billions are earned in New York by non-residents who pay nothing toward the expenses of the government under which they prosper.

Equity in taxation assumes in terms that those who receive the benefits of government will pay therefor in proportion to their prosperity. Taxable ability is known to be the only fair and adequate measure for the distribution of tax burdens.

Realty holdings are not a measure of the taxable ability of any citizen. Therefore, the tax burden must be measured not only by realty holdings but by personalty holdings and otherwise. Personalty has never been reached to any fair extent under the general property tax. The result of levies at classified lower rates has not been successful in practice in any state.

Furthermore, the system of tax exemptions for personalty which has been foisted upon New York State has made exempt the great bulk or practically all of intangible property such as stocks, bonds and mortgages. Even the personal property of mercantile and manufacturing corporations is exempt from local taxation upon a payment of a net income tax of only three per cent. After eight hundred years of unsuccessful effort to tax personalty, we find that levies upon personalty will effect but a short step toward equity in taxation.

Personal incomes appear to be the only source of revenue which will be adequate, equitable and less costly to taxpayers. This was the conclusion of the recent joint legislative committee. It is the verdict of the best posted economists. The fact that the United States levies an income tax does not make that system the less desirable for state and local revenues, it being an axiom that all taxes are paid from the income fund rather than from capital investment if confiscation is to be avoided.

Great Building Revival Expected.

BY NOBLE FOSTER HOGGSON,

President, Hoggson Brothers, Builders.

DESPITE the unusual and varied factors affecting construction work at this time, indications point to the greatest building revival during 1919 which this country has ever experienced.

First of all, in the larger cities, apartment houses and dwellings will lead the way, but closely following will be office buildings, lofts and industrial structures. Then there will be a tremendous amount of bank building.

In the industrial as well as in the domestic and commercial fields, building should see a large and healthy increase in volume. New factories must be built; plant extensions are an economic necessity; war plants, instead of being scrapped or abandoned, will in many instances be altered for peace work.

Housing for employees, which received such an impetus during the past two years, will be carried out on a vaster scale than we had ever thought possible. Employers have recognized the actual money-value return of providing good housing accommodations for their employees. It is fatuous to believe that the employers have not profited by the lessons of the war. They have learned that contented workmen are the best possible asset, that high labor turn over is wrong and expensive, and that proper housing is one of the greatest, if not the greatest factor in reducing labor turn-over and keeping employees happy on the job.

The immense amount of reconstruction work to be done in France and Belgium is going to affect building conditions in this country more than is generally realized. This is true particularly in regard to prices for materials. The excessive demand for certain materials for use abroad is most likely to keep prices in this country up to the present high level.

Building must cease being a gambling proposition, the owner taking a long chance on getting his structure erected for a sum of money which he sets aside in the beginning. In the future, there must be a closer and fairer relationship between the owner and the builder. The builder must gain the confidence of the owner, and, in turn, the owner owes certain duties to the builder. Under the usual building procedure, the builder is a gambler, too; taking a job on a low competitive bid, and hoping by some hook or crook to make money on it.

Federal Restrictions on Buildings Removed

Government Will Also Promote Construction Work by Inaugurating a Country-wide Campaign for Public Improvements

WASHINGTON, December 25.—All restrictions of every kind on building operations are removed by the following order, signed by Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board:

"Effective Jan. 1, the rules, regulations and directions of every nature whatsoever issued by the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board are hereby cancelled, and all pledges heretofore made on the suggestion or request of the said Priorities Division are hereby revoked."

The final step in preparation for the resumption of building throughout the country has been taken by the promulgation of an order of the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board cancelling all regulations restrictive of the free production, sale and use in construction work of building materials.

In addition to the removal of embargoes essential during the war period the Federal Government is inaugurating a campaign to have States, counties and municipalities begin all possible construction work at once, in order to furnish work for returned soldiers and sailors, as the United States Employment Service and labor representatives in the War Industries Board expect a surplus of labor and a shortage of jobs during the late winter.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War and Chairman of the Council of National Defense, has wired all State Defense Councils to use their influence to advance all public improvements in order to absorb labor.

Washington officials will do everything possible to have Legislatures of the various States provide funds for immediate public improvements, and to get private construction work under way.

A division for the conservation of building operation has been created by the Labor Department, and will be in operation soon after Jan. 1.

Civic and trade associations have been flooding Washington with suggestions, and it is believed the campaign to be launched will prove one of the greatest readjustment factors initiated by the Administration.

Officials are unanimous that the Nation's prosperity is best reflected by building operations, and since the armistice was signed, economists have been anxiously studying the financial situation in an effort to determine the extent to which the country can resume the building program halted by the war.

It is understood that every trade association of the country will join in a gigantic advertising campaign to start the era of prosperity now in prospect.

Money for Harbor Improvements.

APPROPRIATIONS of $4,300,000 for the East River and New York Harbor are recommended by the Committee on Rivers and Harbors in the bill making appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920.

The Chesapeake and Delaware waterway gets a total of $3,000,000. A large part of the work in developing this waterway will be across New Jersey.

Other appropriations recommended in New York are Newton Creek, $205,000; Ogdensburg Harbor, $54,000; Oswego Harbor, $38,000; Buffalo Harbor, $178,400. An appropriation of $250,000 is recommended for the Raritan River and $100,000 for the Shrewsbury River.

The total carried by the bill as reported by the House Committee is $26,936,344.

"The Rivers and Harbors appropriation bill as reported to the House," said Commissioner Murray Hulbert, "provides $4,000,000 to continue the Diamond Reef and Hell Gate dredging and assures the removal of Shell Reef at least north of East Fifteenth street. At the same time $300,000 is added to the available appropriation for the maintenance and extension of Ambrose Channel, assuring a forty foot fairway 2,000 feet wide which now, off Tompkinsville and Robbins Reef, is less than 400 feet wide. An appropriation of $205,000 also is requested for the improvement of Newtown Creek, which carries a commerce greater than that of the Mississippi River.

"The measure as reported to the House also authorizes a survey of the proposed Red Hook Shoal Island and Coney Island Ship Canal project to determine their commercial advisability and cost.

"In all these projects full co-operation by State and municipal authorities is essential, and it is with a view to obtaining this that the measure will be introduced in the Legislature."

State Tax Conference.

THE Eighth Conference on Taxation and the 1918 meeting of all assessors in New York State, is announced for January 22, 23 and 24 in Albany under the joint auspices of the State Tax Commission and of the State Tax Association.

The first session will be on the evening of Wednesday, January 22. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by Governor Alfred E. Smith and Mayor James R. Watt of Albany. The annual address will then be delivered by Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, vice-president of the State Tax Association and former president of the National Tax Association. A discussion of recent tax legislation will conclude the evening session.

Thursday forenoon will bring a discussion of the costs and needs of the State municipalities, also a discussion of how the State budget is made.

Thursday afternoon will be given to constructive proposals for meeting Government costs and needs. Addresses will be delivered by representatives of the State Conference of Mayors, the Tax Investigating Committee of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, the Citizens' Union and the Real Estate Board of New York. The discussion to follow will be led by State tax commissioners and others.

Friday, January 24, will be devoted to local problems in the forenoon, under the chairmanship of State commissioner Ralph W. Thomas. That afternoon will be held the Corporation Session, and the topics will deal with New York taxes on capital stock, incomes and special franchises. Members of the State Tax Commission include Messrs. Walter H. Knapp, Ralph W. Thomas and John J. Merrill.

The officers of the State Tax Association are: President Ogden L. Mills; vice-presidents, E. R. A. Seligman, Walter H. Knapp, Lawson Purdy, H. J. Cookinham, Jr.; secretary-treasurer, Charles J. Tobin, Albany.

Expect Great Real Estate Activity in Bronx

President Eugene H. Rosenquest Reviews the Present Conditions and Outlines the Reasons for Remarkable Growth in Future

BY EUGENE H. ROSENQUEST,
President, the Bronx Board of Trade.

THE Bronx is only awaiting the spur of prospective early transit improvements to be the scene of the greatest building boom that the city of New York has ever known.

According to the opinions expressed by prominent realty operators there never was a time in the history of the city's fastest-growing borough so propitious to building—never so great a demand for living accommodations here as exists today—and now that the restrictions on building are rapidly being removed, which will be followed, undoubtedly, by a more nearly normal supply and money market, nothing else is needed to spur building activity beyond the betterment of transit conditions, especially in the West Bronx and Southern Boulevard-Hunts Point sections, where this building activity will be most marked.

So far as the West Bronx is concerned, better transit will be afforded that section commencing the morning of January 2, when the West Side "L" trains, 6th and 9th avenue, will, during the morning and evening "rush hours," be operated from Kingsbridge Road on a three-minute headway, and from Woodlawn Road on a nine-minute headway.

This will do away with the shuttle train entirely during the commission hours, and make for an immediate betterment of the rapid transit service along the whole Jerome Avenue subway extension, which taps the West Bronx section.

An additional improvement will come later in the year, with the betterment of train inspection facilities, when the Lexington avenue subway trains will be operated further north on Jerome avenue than 167th street, which is their present terminal.

Only when the subway trains and West Side "L" trains jointly run to Woodlawn Road, in accord with the planned use of the Jerome avenue extension, will the West Bronx get the service ideal.

However, the immediately prospective betterment of service is acceptable to all concerned, and already are builders preparing to start activities in the West Bronx during the spring of 1919.

Commencing midnight of January 7th the trains of the Lexington avenue subway route will be operated across 138th street and north on the Southern boulevard to Hunts Point, thus giving to that fast-developing section a transit increment for which it has waited long and patiently.

At the present time the Hunts Point section has but one rapid transit artery to the lower city, the Westchester avenue extension of the old subway. As this line originates at East 180th street—where it receives transferencees from the New York, Westchester and Boston railway, as well as transferencees from the White Plains avenue subway extension, to say naught of the added patronage brought by the Mount Vernon and New Rochelle trolley lines—the trains are often full before leaving that northern end of the line, so that, after passing through the West Farms, 174th street, and Freeman street stations, there is little, if any, room left into which Hunts Point residents can squeeze, making their trips to the downtown business areas a most uncomfortable one.

When the Hunts Point station opens there is no doubt but that the transferencees from the New York, Westchester and Boston railway, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, will find it to their advantage to change at the new subway terminus at Hunts Point. Moreover, the throngs that now use the Simpson street, Intervale avenue, Prospect avenue and Jackson avenue stations of the Westchester avenue extension will at last be halved, for the Longwood avenue, 149th street and 143d street stations, along the Southern boulevard, will accommodate nearly all those living east of Westchester avenue, and provide them with a more comfortable ride, besides cutting down congestion.

The new line will also prove a benefit to the manufacturing area along the Southern boulevard.

While it is true that the expected transit facilities for the Hunts Point section have already been largely discounted by realty operators in that area, I expect to see great building activity there this coming spring.

Along White Plains avenue, also, I expect to see considerable building activity during the coming year, especially if the Bronx Board of Trade is successful in having the subway service bettered. While it may not be possible to have all the trains run through from East 180th street to 238th street or 242d street, it does seem possible that the shuttle service there can be eliminated by running every third or fourth train through, and it is along this line that the Board is now working with the Public Service Commission and the Interborough.

A residential area for the most part, the East Bronx, will also feel the effects of the resumption of building activity.

While through an unfortunate series of circumstances this section has not as yet received the transit relief to which it is entitled, some of the steel for the subway extension through the Pelham Bay Park has arrived, and more will be coming along in the late spring, making it a possibility that trains will be operating out there in the late fall of 1919 or the spring of 1920.

These factors will doubtless give heart to those who have heretofore been hesitating to build in the East Bronx.

Besides the Westchester avenue extension there remains but one other part of the dual subway system to be completed in the Bronx. That is the extension of the Third avenue "L" along Webster avenue, from Fordham square to Gun Hill road, and across Gun Hill road, connecting up with the White Plains avenue extension of the old subway.

The necessary steel to complete this line will soon be forthcoming, with the prospect of trains operating in the fall of 1919. This should cause quite a bit of building activity in the Webster avenue area.

From the foregoing, however, it should not be assumed that there was no building activity in the Bronx in 1918. According to the records of the Bronx Building Bureau there were plans filed for 203 new buildings between January 1 and December 1, the estimates of cost totalling $3,956,900; while in the same period there were filed 1,600 plans for alterations to existing buildings, at estimated costs totalling $1,204,112.

These figures compare favorably with those for the year 1917, when there were 629 plans for new buildings, at costs aggregating $8,410,475, and 2,309 alterations plans, at costs aggregating $1,506,612.

The estimated costs on plans for new buildings filed in 1916 were $16,123,782; and in 1915, the Bronx's best year, the total estimated costs were $25,897,950.

Considering the fact that the Government's restrictions on building, in addition to a high materials and labor market, and a tight money market, were reflected in a building slump throughout the country, and throughout the City of New York in particular, the Bronx is proud of the fact that the falling off here in 1918 was no greater than the falling off in any of the four other boroughs of the Greater City.

It is noteworthy, though, that the plans filed in the Bronx in 1918 were primarily for industrial plants, garages, and general business structures, whereas the building to be done in 1919 will be principally dwellings, to accommodate the many thousands who want to live here, and who at the present time cannot be taken care of in existing dwellings. Apartment house construction will be pre-eminent in 1919 building activities.

General business conditions in the Bronx during 1918 were unusually good, despite the war factor, and that

Action To Relieve Ash Removal Situation

Street Cleaning Commissioner MacStay Hopes for Material Improvement Within Ten Days—Reviews Difficulties

ARNOLD B. MAC STAY, Commissioner of Street Cleaning, hopes to provide refuse disposal in connection with the New York refuse disposal situation, within the next ten days, according to a statement which he made yesterday to a representative of the Record and Guide.

A serious condition of affairs has been confronting owners and managers of buildings using coal for heating and for other purposes on account of the inability to have ashes properly removed. This applies to apartment and private houses taken care of by the city, and particularly to business buildings, which have to depend on private cartmen. For several months, the city has not been able to provide proper facilities to permit ashes to be dumped, and it has, therefore, become necessary for the cartmen to make long hauls to outlying parts of the city, or else use private dumps when they are available, and pay excessive high prices. These conditions make it practically impossible for the cartmen to do business. Whatever they can do is at an increase in price to those using their service of from 300 to 400 per cent., as compared with two or three years ago. With the colder weather coming on, conditions have been growing steadily worse.

The status of the trade waste and rubbish removal situation is practically the same and this, along with the steady accumulation, is beginning to assume an unusually serious aspect, especially in view of the fact that a heavy snow-storm, now daily expected, will tend to even further aggravate conditions. The general situation has, in fact, become serious enough to engage the earnest consideration of a special committee of the Building Managers' Association.

Commissioner MacStay, in reviewing the series of unavoidable difficulties which he has encountered in connection with the removal of ashes and garbage, pointed out the steps which he had initiated to provide the necessary relief.

He said:

"On January 1, 1918, when I took office, the ash disposal situation had begun to look serious. The contract was originally let in 1913, and covered the period from January 2, 1914, to January 1, 1917, with the privilege to the city to renew on the same terms and conditions for an additional period of two years, of which privilege the city availed itself. The prices were low, being fixed before the beginning of the war in Europe. On January 1, 1918, the contractors, Dailey & Ivins, were already in difficulties, owing to the increased cost of labor and materials, due to war conditions. Added to this, everyone no doubt recalls that the winter of 1917-1918 was unusually severe. The slips were filled with ice, and scows were frozen in at their mooring places along the North and East Rivers, and at the unloading points at Riker's Island and Hunt's Point, Bronx, and Port Ivory, Staten Island.

"On March 2, 1918, Dailey & Ivins abandoned their contract. At that time there were moored at the various dumps and at the unloading points about two hundred loaded scows. In addition, ashes were piled along the marginal streets, where the city had been obliged to dump them as a result of the lack of light scows.

"It has been impossible to secure a bid at a reasonable price for the completion of the abandoned contract, notwithstanding that the Commissioner has advertised for bids five separate times, and the city has been compelled since March 2, 1918, to carry on, with its own force and such plant and equipment as could be obtained, the work of finally disposing of ashes, street sweepings and rubbish. The plant of the contractors at the unloading points was taken over and was found to be in a dilapidated condition, necessitating the expenditure of a considerable sum of money to put it in operating condition. It is far from being in a satisfactory condition at the present time, and is not adequate to dispose of the winter output of ashes and rubbish from the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, necessitating sending a considerable portion of the material to sea. It was not, however, deemed advisable to spend a large sum of money on this plant, only to lose it on the expiration of the contract January 1, 1919.

"One of the duties to be performed by Dailey & Ivins under their contract was the dredging of the slips at the city owned dumps and at the unloading points. It was discovered soon after the Department took over this work that the contractors had been negligent in this respect, and considerable delays have been caused by scows going aground in the slips. The Department immediately made a canvass of all the dredging concerns in and about the Harbor, in the effort to have this very necessary work performed, but at that time, and up to a very recent date, it was impossible to secure a dredge, as they were all in the Government service. The Department has lately been able to secure the services of a dredge, and is now proceeding with the work of deepening the water at the various dumps and unloading places. In this connection another difficulty has arisen to delay the dredging work, and that is the scarcity of sea-going bottom dumpers to take the dredged material to sea. The city owns seven bottom dumpers, purchased at public auction from Dailey & Ivins, but these can hardly be spared from the work of ash and garbage disposal. However, a couple of bottom dumpers have been secured and I have hopes that the work will now proceed without interruption until it is completed and until the water in the slips and at the unloading points is restored to its normal depth. I am very hopeful that within ten days conditions along the waterfront will be normal.

"On October 2, 1918, the Metropolitan By-Products Company, which held the contract for garbage disposal, closed its plant on State Island, and abandoned its contract, thus further complicating final disposition matters for the Department. Efforts have been made to relet this contract, but without success. It has been necessary to use the city's dumpers for the reception of the garbage and to tow it far out to sea where it is dumped. This method is archaic and wasteful, and cannot be carried on in severe weather. During the past week, owing to weather conditions, fog, etc., no tugs or scows were able to venture to sea for a period of five days. Arrangements have been made to take care of the garbage for a short time at the old reduction plant on Barren Island, and efforts will be renewed to let the abandoned contract for the remainder of the term."

Real Estate Activity in the Bronx

the populace of the Bronx enjoyed a prosperous year cannot be gainsaid, in the face of the wonderful subscriptions to the Third and Fourth Liberty Loans, and the generous responses to the Red Cross, War Fund, and other war activity fund appeals, not to speak of the fine results of the Red Cross Membership Enrollment campaign just ended.

As to the population increase in the Bronx during 1918, I have good reason to believe that the average annual increment of 50,000 has been realized, despite the inroads of the influenza epidemic, and the deaths in the cause of world democracy, giving us a population at the present day of approximately 800,000. With this fine result, the opening during 1918 of the Jerome avenue subway line and the opening of the West Side "L" extension over the Harlem River and across 162d street to the Jerome avenue line had much to do.

As to the industrial aspects of 1918, investigations made by the Bronx Board of Trade would seem to indicate that, while the number of male factory employes fell off, due to the war, the number of female employes was increased in proportion, keeping the total laboring population at approximately 74,000, the figures for 1917.

The payrolls in the 2,250 industrial establishments, however, showed a decided increase for 1918, totalling approximately $81,000,000, as against $45,000,000 in 1917.

Asks That Federal Cost Finding Be Continued

Many Measures Adopted During War Are Helpful to Business and Result in Reduction in Cost of Living

BY WILLIAM B. COLVER.

Chairman, Federal Trade Commission.

DURING the nineteen months—April, 1917, to November, 1918—during which the United States was a belligerent in the world war, American industry and finance passed through an ordeal that brought both strength and weakness into sharp relief. Before this nation could strike its full stride things were reduced to rather elemental and primitive terms. Much of mystery and of pretense was swept away.

Out of it all must come to those in varied pursuits and walks of life, a charity and understanding, one with the other, based on fuller knowledge.

During these nineteen months the Federal Trade Commission had a peculiar opportunity to sense what was going on, especially in the industrial world. It has been the cost finding agency of the Government; the expert accountant to the War Industries Board and its Price Fixing Committee, to the Army, the Navy, the Food Administration, the Fuel Administration, the Railroad Administration, the Shipping Board, the Post Office and other agencies.

It is estimated that, in its work for various Government agencies, the Federal Trade Commission obtained cost and production figures of upwards of 10,000 companies in scores of important industries and many minor ones, which had an approximate aggregate investment of twenty billion dollars, and the commodities directly affected by the such cost-findings represented annual sale values of at least 30 billions of dollars—not far from twice the amount of the First, Second and Fourth Liberty Loans taken together.

These cost studies by the Commission demonstrated frequent and great deficiencies in the accounting methods employed by mining and manufacturing concerns and especially in cost accounting methods.

In some of the oldest and greatest industries there was not even an attempt at that determination of unit costs and profits by products which is essential, generally, to the safe conduct of industry.

It is evident that where such cost accounting is not established it should be introduced and where it is defective it should be reformed. Inventories should be carefully kept; labor and material used should be accounted for as used; indirect and overhead charges should be fairly allocated and proper allowance made for depletion and depreciation of resources and plants.

On the other hand, capital charges for construction should not be mingled with operating or production expense nor should there be introduced items of actual or imputed outgo such as income and profit taxes, depletion of appreciation of plant investments, or interest on capital owned.

However, where complete records are kept, it is relatively easy to correct bad principles, reject improper items or introduce omitted ones.

Inventories and records of expense and sales by products are necessary to compute profit and loss by products.

In the immediate future the question of costs will be especially critical for the nation's business in arriving safely at post-war readjustments. The matter is important to the individual producer, to his banker and to the industry and the public at large.

The cost and profit findings of the Commission developed many facts of interest but was done under such pressure that there has been little time as yet to analyze or interpret the results. Two facts, however, which are generally known, may be mentioned.

First, the average cost during the war period was much higher than before the war. Such increases were frequently as much as 100 per cent.

Second, the variation in costs between different companies, often considerable in normal time, was enormously exaggerated under war conditions.

The great increase in average cost was due in part to increase in cost of the instruments of production and material and supplies; to increased cost of labor partly through increase in wages but more through violent and frequent shifting of labor and a consequent loss of the efficiency that springs from organization, habit of work and special skill; to wastes caused by effort for increased production and, of course, to the general depreciation of money in terms of goods or services. The cost of living continued to mount rapidly and with its wages and labor cost.

Fundamental to the cost increases, however, was the writing up of values of natural resources. This tended to bring about the production of raw materials from relatively barren or inaccessible sources with a consequent diversion of labor, capital and transportation to uneconomic operations. It is doubtful whether high prices did really stimulate production to the degree that has generally been believed.

Where there were successive stages of production in an industry (sometimes integrated and sometimes independently operated) the costs were increased by the taking of high profits between the successive stages of production. High costs or high profits, or both, in one stage had a cumulative effect on costs in all succeeding stages—a sort of pyramiding of costs. Price-fixing, arriving too late to get at the source of the trouble in the short space of the war, was useful in checking its unlimited extension.

The abnormal variation in costs came largely from the bringing in of uneconomic supplies of raw materials and the writing up in value of advantages by integrated concerns and those controlling natural resources. Congested transportation and dislocations of labor with the consequent irregularity of industrial operations also made for wide cost variations.

In considering such variations, however, it should be borne in mind that the lower cost company may not be more profitable than the higher cost producer even when both sell at the same price. Often the lower cost is the result not of greater economies or natural advantages but of investment in more stages of production or in more extensive mechanical equipment and the larger unit profit resulting from the lower cost is absorbed in providing the proper return on the greater unit investment.

Not the least benefit of cost-finding, incident to price-fixing, was the bringing together, with Government officers, of the representatives of the industries for full and frank discussion of costs, methods and products.

This, with the assembling of such a body of current data as was never before had in this country, demonstrated the value of such meetings and of the preparation and exchange of such proper and useful information.

It would seem that the Commission might well continue, at least as to certain industries, this assembling and distribution, currently, of basic and reliable information and that, well within the law, industry, meeting with Government officers might continue to exchange helpful experiences and information without the danger of being suspected of price-fixing or other restraints of trade.

If certain laws, enacted to deal severely with admitted abuses, are fully observed in their spirit, in this manner, it would seem that the public interest would be fully served. In such case, a peace-time adaptation of the war-time meetings between individuals and Government for frank discussion, would be as helpful as it would be innocent of wrong intent or harmful effect. Such open conferences might be expected to serve all the good and necessary ends which are among those sometimes sought by clandestine meetings. Pursued in the generous American business spirit of fair play such conferences might be extremely useful by ascertaining the facts and clearing away doubts and suspicions.

Real Estate Men Hold Conference on Tax Bill

Representatives of Principal Realty Organizations Lay Foundation for Effective Work at Coming Legislative Session

SUBSTANTIAL progress was recorded this week in the movement seeking the co-ordination of legislative effort toward tax relief for real estate owners. An important meeting held on Monday night at the call of Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, was attended by representatives of the most influential real estate organizations of the City. This meeting coming so closely after the large public hearings at City Hall on Wednesday and Thursday of last week marked the second step in the plan of the Mayor's Committee to crystalize the best prevailing opinion relative to the tax situation, and to embody such opinion into a bill or bills upon which all interests may unite at the coming sessions of the State Legislature.

The most significant development at Monday night's meeting was the cordial and conciliatory spirit which dominated the discussion, reflecting a manifest willingness on the part of everyone to reach an agreement upon measures which will relieve the admittedly serious situation. As the discussion progressed it became apparent that there may be accomplished the subordination of differences into one great centralized objective, seeking to present to the Legislature a bill which will not alone represent the product of the best minds and experience in New York real estate affairs, but which will have the united support of the city administration and all the real estate and tax-paying organizations.

Present at the conference were Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, who presided; Stephen H. Tyng and Robert E. Dowling for the Real Estate Board of New York; Professor H. A. E. Chandler and L. D. Woodworth for the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests; Stewart Browne and Adolph Bloch for the United Real Estate Owners' Association; Assistant Corporation Counsel William H. King; Bryan L. Kennelly and Henry Bloch of the Mayor's Committee; J. P. Lohman, Secretary of the Committee, and Joseph Heffernan, Statistician of the Committee.

The meeting, which was the first of a series of informal conferences which will be held until the introduction of the necessary bills, concerned itself chiefly with a free discussion of the plans of each of the three large organizations, the Real Estate Board, the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests and the United Real Estate Owners' Association.

There was a unanimity of opinion regarding certain fundamental elements in the situation. It was agreed that the limit had been reached in the New York City tax rate, which as Mr. Dowling pointed out had already passed its constitutional limit. It was also agreed that new sources of revenue were imperative in order to equalize the tax burden and that such sources must be reasonably enough assured to maintain the soundness of the City's credit.

Then discussion centered upon the advisability of the State Income Tax and a Business Tax, advocated by the Advisory Council; the tax limitation plan fixing the rate on real estate to 2 and the rate of personality at  $\frac{1}{4}$  of 1%, eliminating deductions for debt, sponsored by the Real Estate Board; and the plan of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, providing for the deferment of a fixed tax rate on real estate until one year after the adoption of the Personal Tax Law, which would enable the City to ascertain how much could be collected from personal taxes before the tax limitation on real estate would become operative.

Advocates of each of these three plans presented them for consideration, with the result that, after interesting discussion, the salient features of each plan, its advantages and disadvantages became clearly established. Out of the great mass of discussion emerged the principles which may form the basis of a new tax bill embodying the best elements in each of the three plans and eliminating the objectionable features.

Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, in discussing the meeting said: "The splendid spirit of conciliation and willingness to co-operate which actuated everyone at the conference was unusually gratifying. I feel confident that in spite of the prevailing differences of opinion we shall encounter no insurmountable difficulties in getting everyone together.

"We could not expect at this meeting to discover the panacea for all tax iniquities; we could not expect to adjust all the differences of opinion held by men who have devoted years of study to the subject, and whose position is based upon mature judgment and practical experience. We did not hope within so limited a time to reconstruct the entire Tax System.

"What we do hope to accomplish, and the future is now imbued with tremendous possibilities for success, is to unify and co-ordinate the best existing opinion and to agree upon fundamental principles which can be used as the foundation for a bill, to be enacted into law next year, which will meet all requirements for producing adequate, new revenue and which will reduce the tax rate on real estate without injuring the City's credit. We must always bear in mind that the high credit now being enjoyed by the City must be maintained under any and all circumstances.

"I am confident that in this aim we can be assured of the hearty support of every public official and every citizen of New York City, whether he is a property owner or not. With their support and the solid front at Albany, which it makes possible, real estate must and will obtain the necessary relief."

Another informal conference will be held next Monday night, December 30th, to which the Mayor, Comptroller and President Cantor of the Tax Board have been invited, and an opportunity will be afforded to these city officials who are charged with the enforcement and administration of the tax laws to get in closer touch with the representatives of the Real Estate Interests.

From the experience of cost-finding, we believe we may argue for:

Standardized accounting systems, suited to the various industries.

Cost and profit accounting for individual products.

Reasonable standardization of products and elimination of excessive costs due to unnecessary multiplication of styles and types.

Compilation and issue of current, basic trade information.

Conferences between industries and Government for the exchange of proper and useful views and information.

As for the outlook there need be foresight but no fear. A period of readjustment must be met with the new and broader view. The same co-operation of industry, of labor, of capital and of Government that armed the nation for war will make it still greater in peace.

As a nation we organized lines of supply and communication from Chile and Australia and Alaska and from every state and every farm and factory, and through these lines across oceans and continents to the battle front of France. As a nation we arrived at a power to dispatch a ship loaded with men and food and supplies, on the average, of every ten minutes night and day, Sundays and holidays.

As a nation we launched ships at the rate of 490,000 gross tons a month—or about 700 tons every hour, on the average. As a nation we armed and sent across the sea, our young men, true crusaders of democracy, at the rate of 10,000 a day. As a nation we threw upon liberty's altar billions and billions of dollars in loans—about $500 at every tick of the clock, day and night, Sundays and holidays.

Such a nation, as a nation, may turn with confidence to the solution of whatever problems of industry or finance which the future may hold in store.

Basically Sound.

There is not much doubt that during the coming year money will be available for building operations. Only a financial panic can prevent the return to investment channels of the huge amounts of cash that was hoarded during the war. There is no indication that the Federal Reserve Banking System is not adequate to any call upon it even if one should develop and in the six weeks since the armistice so unexpectedly switched the whole business fabric from a war to a peace footing there has appeared no sign of fundamental weakness in financial or commercial circles.

Readjustment is slowly being carried out without bringing about conditions that cannot be met by those whose interests are greatest and whose leadership is unassailable. There is no word of fear for the future, nor a sign that trouble is impending. Caution is suggested, but inactivity is not called for, and the purpose of the warning to use care in the readjustment of business to present-day conditions is so that a permanent and productive business structure may be built upon the new bases rather than that there is need for more than ordinary diligence in safeguarding commerce as it exists today.

Those who are fearful that money is lacking for legitimate business should look at the figures made public by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, as the summary of the resources of the national banks on November 1, 1918, eleven days before peace was declared. The important phase of his report is that while the total resources amount to $19,821,404,000, exceeding by $1,268,207,000 the best previous record, these resources have increased during the last five years more than in the preceding twenty-five years and that they now exceed the aggregate resources of the national banks of England, Canada, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Japan and Germany combined.

In this prosperous condition the national banks of New York City lead, with a gain in resources of $507,000,000, while the New York State National banks have gained $68,000,000.

That money is already seeking investment is shown by the way in which bond and note issues are eagerly and quickly snapped up on Wall Street. The New York City real estate field will certainly come again into its own as the premier investment. The very facts which have given the New York City national banks their enormous increase in resources prove that New York City is still, and will continue to be, the undisputed business capital of the country, and because it is its real estate is the best and most conservative investment that is to be found anywhere.

In the swift turn of events attention may be momentarily directed to other matters but in due course of time the attractiveness of owning a bit of the most valuable property anywhere is bound to reassert itself. Then will come enviable times for those who have the courage to take advantage of the opportunity of the present to get in on the ground floor.

Government and Business.

There is a marked difference between federal, state or municipal ownership and governmental encouragement or assistance of private enterprise. There existed for many years extreme diffidence on the part of most merchants, manufacturers and even farmers to any suggestion of Governmental interest in their business—it was looked upon as interference with private prerogatives, and it is not to be denied that in the early days of investigation of business by Governmental agents and in the provisions which resulted from their activities there was more of restraint of individual initiative than of helpfulness to industry, which, to be entirely successful, needs every kind of equipment that can be secured from all sources.

There was equally little encouragement of co-operation in business. Jealousy was more pronounced than co-ordination, except in certain lines where the "trust" idea has taken root to the detriment of the small business man. But it is now recognized that there are many ways in which the national, state and municipal administrations can be of service to business men.

The war has brought about a great change in the attitude of business men generally towards Governmental activities. It has been demonstrated that all Governmental supervision is not destructive of individual effort. One is broad and general and fundamental, while the other is specific and incisive.

One of the manifestations of the growing friendliness between the merchant and the Government officials was the cordial reception by the delegates to the recent Reconstruction Congress at Atlantic City of Secretary Redfield's invitation to the business men of the country to make use of the organization of the Department of Commerce, both of its scientific bureaus and its foreign attaches, to assist them in making their own enterprises more successful.

President Wilson was the first one to voice the attitude of the Government towards the building industry. In his speech to Congress on December 2nd, he said:

"What the country chiefly needs is that all its means of transportation should be developed—its railways, its waterways, its highways, and its countryside roads."

And further along he declared:

"It seems to me important, therefore, that the development of public works of every sort should be promptly resumed."

Secretary Houston of the Department of Agriculture proposes the immediate resumption of highway building, because they are needed and so that men needing employment may be given work. During the next year $75,000,000 will be available for the purpose, and the Department and the State Highway Commissions have the machinery to go ahead with the work.

Now the Department of Labor is engaged in formulating a great program of propaganda to increase the amount of building in every section of the country.

All of these Government agencies depend for success on co-ordinating private business, not in the removal of individual initiative, not in restricting competition nor scaling profits. What is aimed at is the augmentation of the amount of business to be done so that those who depend on it for livelihood may be encouraged to go ahead because of suitable returns for their enterprise.

It would be unreasonable shortsightedness for business men to neglect co-operation with the Government and with one another in any proposition which has the avowed purpose of stimulating industry.

It is reasonable to believe that with the Government pushing instead of burdening the construction industries, a nation-wide building movement may be inaugurated which will take years to complete and which will stabilize cost of materials and wages for a long period so that local operations can be entered upon with assurance.

GREATER TAX RETURNS FROM PERSONAL PROPERTY.

centum of its capital;" also to eliminate the provisions of the section excluding from assessment "all shares of stock in other corporations actually owned by such company, which are taxable upon their capital stock under the laws of this State." The effect of the amendment would thus be to permit the inclusion in the assessment of all the surplus profits or reserve funds of a corporation, and also to provide that a corporation owning shares of stock in another corporation would be assessable thereon even though such other corporation were taxable on its capital.

2. To amend the Tax Law by repealing the exemption of stock in an incorporated company owned or held by an individual.

Such amendment is to repeal subdivision 6 of Section 4 of the Tax Law, which grants exemption as follows: "The owner or holder of stock in an incorporated company liable to taxation on its capital, shall not be taxed as an individual."

3. To amend the Tax Law in relation to place of taxation of property of residents.

Such amendment is to insert in Section 8 of the Tax Law after the provision therein that every person shall be taxed in the tax district where he resides when the assessment for taxation is made for all personal property owned by him or under his control as agent, trustee, guardian, executor or administrator, the following provision: "But the owner or holder of tangible personal property shall be assessed for such property in the tax district where such property is located and such owner or holder shall, for the purpose of taxation thereof, be deemed to be a resident of such tax district and assessable therein for such property."

By such amendment there would be jurisdiction to assess a resident of the State for tangible personal property in every tax district where owned or held by him, as if he were a resident of such tax district.

4. To amend the Tax Law in relation to place of taxation of property of corporations.

Such amendment is to insert in Section 11 of the Tax Law, after the provision therein to the effect that all personal estate of every incorporated company liable to taxation on its capital shall be assessed in the tax district where its principal office or place of transacting the financial concerns of the company shall be, or if it has no such principal office or place, then in the tax district where the operations of such company are carried on, the following provision: "But the tangible personal property of every such incorporated company shall be assessed against such company in the tax district in which such property is located."

By such amendment there would be jurisdiction to assess a domestic corporation for tangible property in every tax district where located, whether or not the principal office or place for transacting the financial concerns of the company is in such tax district.

5. To amend the Greater New York Charter in relation to furnishing statements to the Department of Taxes and Assessments by individuals and corporations of personal property for purposes of taxation and fixing the taxable status date of assessing personal property, as of July 1, in each year.

Such amendment is to insert in the Charter a new section, to be numbered Section 889-b, requiring the filing with the department by individuals and corporations of statements of personal property owned or held on July 1 in each year, and to amend Section 892 of the charter as to the title of the assessment books, and to provide that the taxable status date of personal property be fixed for each year on July 1 of the preceding year.

Such new Section 889-b requires that the statement be filed where personal property is $5,000 or more; that it be under oath and be filed during month of July, and that it set forth the personal property and any debts or other deductions. It provides for such statements as to personal property of residents, agents, etc., corporations and non-resident individuals and corporations taxable on personal property in the City of New York. It permits the department to prepare blanks for such purpose, and provides for penalty, for failure to file statements, of $100, with $10, for each day such failure continues and for no review by certiorari where there is such failure. It further provides that the commissioners may require persons furnishing such statements to appear for examination with respect thereto, and states that for failure to appear there shall be no review by certiorari of any assessment for such year.

The amendment of Section 892 eliminates the provision that the books are to be called "The Annual Record of the Assessed Valuation of Real and Personal Estate," and in place thereof inserts that such books are to be called the annual record in which the assessed valuations of real and personal estate are entered; and it changes the taxable status date of personal property from October 1 in each year for the succeeding year to July 1 in each year for the succeeding year.

6. To amend the Greater New York Charter by repealing Section 889-a, which provides that certain buildings in course of construction shall not be assessed.

By such amendment buildings in course of construction would be assessable as they were prior to the enactment of the section in 1913.

It is the intention of this department to have introduced similar bills in the Legislature of 1919.

RANDOM NOTES IN THE REALTY FIELD

Register Webster of Kings Will Install New Department to Search Titles Taxpayers Elect Officers

RICHARDSON WEBSTER, Register of Kings County, announces an important change in his office, to take effect with the new year, which promises to be of great interest to real estate men and lawyers doing business in Brooklyn and to the public of that borough generally. It involves the installation of a complete searching department which will hereafter make all the official searches without outside assistance.

When Register Webster took office he found that it had been the custom to turn over all applications for searches to a title company which had a contract for this work. This frequently compelled the applicant to wait many days for a search that should have been made in a very short time. He has now organized a complete and separate searching department, devoted entirely to the public needs, and has assigned to it his most experienced title searchers. The title company has been notified of the cancellation of the contract at the close of the year. The innovation will make it possible in most cases for applicants to obtain their searches on the day on which they make application and all the delay of the old system will be avoided.

The new searching department will make searches of all the records in the Register's Office, including chattel mortgages. A small fee will be charged for this service. In addition, the searching department is prepared to give free of charge to any person making application the name and address of the last owner of record of any parcel of land within the confines of Kings County. Register Webster invites the public to use this department for any information concerning the records of his office.

Henry Bloch Re-elected.

Henry Bloch of A. & H. Bloch, was re-elected president of the Real Estate Owners' Association of the Twelfth and Nineteenth Wards at its meeting last week. Charles W. Eidt was elected first vice-president; Samuel Wollheim, second vice-president; G. H. Heddeshimer, treasurer; George H. Beck, Jr., financial secretary, and Charles Sayer, recording secretary. The executive committee will consist of George H. Beck, Sr., Adolph Bloch, John Polz, Edward Engel, Henry Hersh, Rudolph Troest, Henry F. Schadt, Benjamin H. Strauss and Charles Jost and the finance committee of William C. F. Frankle, John Lucker and Ernest Wolkwitz.

Bronx Owners Meet.

William D. Carroll was elected president of the Claremont Heights Property Owners' Association, at its recent meeting. Other officers elected were: Louis S. Lotsch, vice-pres.; Charles R. Brown, treas.; Charles J. Campbell, secy. Directors: Thomas F. Cavanagh, chairman; John J. Healy, Benjamin Hoffman, Thompson and Waldron.

Mr. Cavanagh reported on the Taxpayers Alliance meeting and the endorsement of the petition of the Claremont Heights Property Owners' Association now before the local Board of Aldermen, changing the name of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse to Wilson Parkway.

Important Realty Consolidation.

The announcement is made of the consolidation of Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc., and William H. Archibald, as of January 1, 1919.

The business of Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc., was started by the late S. B. Goodale, in 1866, in the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. In 1912 Henry R. Dwight, formerly in the real estate business at 253 Broadway, became a member of the firm, the name of which was changed to Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc.

William H. Archibald was formerly a member of the firm of Joseph Corbit & Co., which was started in 1856, at Ninth avenue and 25th street by Joseph Corbit, who subsequently located at Ninth avenue and 23rd street. For several years past, Mr. Archibald has been conducting his own office at 316 West 23rd street, having succeeded to the larger part of the business of Joseph Corbit & Co. The new concern will be known as Dwight, Archibald & Perry, Inc., with a main office at 137 West 23rd street and a branch office at 2705 Broadway. The officers will be Henry R. Dwight, president; William H. Archibald, vice-president; John B. Perry, vice-president, and Henry Voorhis, secretary and treasurer.

C. S. Kohler Incorporates Business.

Charles S. Kohler's business has grown so rapidly that he has decided to incorporate it as of January 1, 1919; the firm will be known as Charles S. Kohler, Inc. The officers are Charles S. Kohler, president and treasurer; Harold L. Kohler, vice-president, and Harold M. Silverman, secretary.

Mr. Kohler began his career in the real estate and insurance world in 1887, when he opened an office at 96th street and Amsterdam avenue, then known as Tenth avenue. About four years later he entered the employ of Walter Lawrence and Company (of which firm Mr. Robert E. Dowling was a member) as manager of the rental department. After two years he reestablished his own business at 906 Columbus avenue, which location proved so successful that he was obliged to double his office space, and greatly increase his working force. After having been in this location for some nineteen years, in the latter part of 1912 he moved his office to the north-east corner of 104th street and Columbus avenue, the present location of the main office. On November 27, 1915, he opened a branch office at 1428 St. Nicholas avenue, near 181st street.

Nassau Street Subway.

The Downtown League directs attention to the necessity for prompt measures preparatory to the building of the proposed Nassau Street Subway. Before definite plans are adopted by the Public Service Commission, the league declares it is vital that the interests of business houses, property owners or individuals doing business on this narrow, busy thoroughfare should be taken into consideration.

A committee of one hundred is to be named by this league to look after Nassau street. The Public Service Commission, under date of December 16, 1918, states:

"The plans for this route are within three or four months of completion, but the Board of Estimate has not yet indicated when the contract for construction will be let."

It is to be presumed that the Nassau street work will go ahead within a reasonable period of time, if the Board of Estimate sees fit to authorize the necessary funds. This line, will convert the Municipal Building from a terminal station to a through station on a loop line operating in connection with the Centre Street Subway, the Manhattan Bridge, and also the Whitehall-Montague Street Tunnel line.

New Trust Company Formed.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the New York Title & Mortgage Company, this week, it was voted unanimously to authorize the officers to proceed with the organization of the American Trust Company. Details regarding the new company, and the names of the incorporators, were announced in last week's Record and Guide.

Real Estate Review for the Current Week

Activity Well Maintained, Despite Holiday Period, Thereby Upsetting Traditional Seasonal Quietude

CLOSING days of the year brought no slackening of real estate activity, the business of the week being characterized by continued expansion of business along well-defined lines. The Christmas holiday week has been, traditionally, one of the quietest of the year in the real estate market, but somehow this week the interest of the traders was not diminished and the business, both from the standpoint of volume of business and range of demand, may compare favorably with that of the previous weeks which have reflected such substantial improvement in practically all phases of the market.

The sale of a tall office building on William and Pine streets to the Bank of America was one of the important transactions of the week, indicating as it does the steady expansion of business in the financial district and the manifest policy of many of the leading institutions of the city to anticipate the demands of increased business. Recent sales of the Mortimer Building to the New York Stock Exchange and the property at 50 Wall street to the National City Co. further typify the strong buying demand for downtown properties. Further north the sale of a business building in Frankfort street to local merchants for occupancy was also in line with the well-defined buying movement which has been directed for some months past toward the acquisition of business buildings in the section known as the "Swamp."

Apartment houses were also prominently identified with the business of the week, important sales involving the transfer of valuable holdings on upper Broadway, West 81st street, Edgecomb avenue and several valuable Bronx investment parcels.

The most encouraging element in the business of the last month has been the elimination of the "spotty" market. Three weeks have elapsed with little diminution of business, trading having continued to develop along improved lines, with the demand centering upon properties of practically every description in many parts of the city. The continued presence of the small buyer in the market also tends to accentuate improved market conditions, and both brokers and owners are beginning to regard the outlook with steadily growing optimism. It is a long time since the market has so consistently maintained its stride, and while business does not begin to approximate old time proportions, nevertheless the weekly improvement as compared with any corresponding period during the last two years is so marked that it must be regarded with unmistakable favor.

The feeling is growing that the only deterrent to the big and long anticipated real estate revival is the mortgage situation, which, while showing some improvement, remains substantially unchanged. The resumption of building activity, which depends largely upon the question of financing, also bears a direct relation to the real estate outlook, and the two movements will probably come together.

Nevertheless, the mortgage situation is not entirely pervaded with gloom because practically all of the large loaning institutions have begun to adopt the amortization policy which calls for the payment of small amounts each year toward the reduction of the principal on the loan. Very few of the large loaning institutions have called loans where interest and taxes have been paid and where the property has been kept in good condition, and the great bulk of buyers have encountered little or no difficulty in the renewing or extension of their loan if they have agreed to incorporate the amortization clause in the new loan. In view of the large sums released in the four great Liberty Loans and in view of the fact that many financial institutions anticipate the placement of investments in another loan, it is not surprising that they have adopted the conservative policy with regard to the new financing of mortgages. The fact that they have, however, desisted from the calling of loans on real estate, and the fact that they have almost universally agreed to exercise forbearance and leniency with regard to renewals where owners have agreed to pay off small amounts on the principal, reflects the continued confidence which they have in this form of investment and leads most market observers to the belief that after the flotation of the next Liberty Loan and the further stabilization of business conditions generally, there will be tremendous sums available for release into real estate and mortgages. Until such time comes property owners must mark time and take courage in the steadily increasing volume of small deals which indicate the confidence of the investor, even with limited capital, in the future imbued with such potential possibilities.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 38, as against 43 last week and 20 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 12, as compared with 16 last week and 7 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th street was 26, as compared with 27 last week and 13 a year ago.

From the Bronx, 17 sales at private contract were reported, as against 10 last week and 6 a year ago.

Statistical tables, indicating the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 754 of this issue.

Bank in $1,000,000 Purchase.

The Bank of America has purchased from the Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Company, through the Charles F. Noyes Company and the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, the ten-story office building at 45-49 William street and 41-43 Pine street, covering plot of about 6,600 square feet with frontages of 68 feet on William street and 38 feet on Pine street. The property for many years was valued by the sellers at $1,000,000. The property immediately adjoins the present Bank of America building at the northwest corner of Wall and William streets. William H. Perkins, president of the Bank of America, in commenting on the purchase just made, stated: "We have no plans for the immediate improvement of the property, but this purchase will enable the bank at some future date to enlarge its premises or erect, if desired, a large structure at the corner of Wall and William streets, with an outlet into Pine street." The Bank of America by this recent purchase now controls a plot of over 12,500 square feet of ground, with frontages of about 70 feet on Wall street, 150 feet on William street and 38 feet on Pine street. The sale is the third large transaction recently closed in the financial district. A few days ago Robert E. Dowling purchased the Mortimer Building and resold it to the New York Stock Exchange and the National City Company purchased from the Mechanics & Metals Bank, 50 Wall street, and will occupy it as their home. The sale of 45-49 William street and 41-43 Pine street was the direct result of the Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Company moving to 80-82 William street, corner of Maiden lane. During the past ten years practically all insurance companies have been forced out of the Wall, Pine and Cedar streets section and have located on William street and contiguous streets from Maiden lane to Fulton street. The space that they have given up has been rapidly absorbed by banking and financial interests.

Mid-Town Lofts Sold.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company sold to Charles Hensle, builder, the 11-story and loft building at 15 West 17th street, on a lot 28 by 92, near Fifth avenue. Forbes & Co. were the brokers in the deal, which was for cash. The property was held at $125,000. Title is to be taken in the name of the 15 West Seventeenth Street Company, incorporated at Albany on Saturday. The adjoining 11-story structure at 17-19 West 17th street was recently acquired by I. Randolph Jacobs and Everett Jacobs, the property being knocked down to them at a foreclosure sale conducted by Henry Brady, on a bid of $167,500.

Frankfort Street Deal.

The Charles F. Noyes Company resold for Joseph F. Cullman for all cash to Berth Levi & Co., 35-37 Frankfort street, a plot of 6,000 square feet, located close to William street. The purchasers for many years were located at 80½ and 82 Pearl street, which building was sold last summer for occupancy. After the sale the firm secured temporary offices through the Noyes Company in 42 Broadway, and the property just purchased will be improved by the purchasers and a modern building erected for their business. The property just purchased is assessed at $65,000. The operation including the new building will probably involve upwards of $150,000.

$1,000,000 Apartment Purchase.

The Letchwood and the Hampstead, the two ten-story apartment houses on the west side of Broadway from 160th to 161st street, were sold by the Herbert Dongan Construction Company, which erected them six years ago. They are among the largest and finest apartment structures in the Washington Heights section. The houses cover a plot 100 by 125 each. In part payment was given a plot of about 100 lots in the vicinity of Brogow street, and Queens boulevard, Long Island City. The apartment houses were held at more than $1,000,000. The brokers in the deal were Joseph P. Day and the Roman-Callman Company.

Morgan Buys Carpentier House.

J. P. Morgan has purchased the home of the late Gen. Horace W. Carpentier, the dwelling at 108 East 37th street. The purchase was made in the name of the Flintlock Realty Company, which was formed years ago by the late J. P. Morgan for the purpose of acquiring property on Murray Hill to preserve the residential character of the section. Gen. Carpentier occupying the dwelling for many years. It is four stories high, 25 feet wide and 100 feet deep, on the south side of the street, about 155 feet east of Park avenue. The Morgan home is at the west end of the block to the west.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the transaction. The Flintlock Realty Company will take title to the property in due time and rent it to people in sympathy with the aims of Murray Hill folk, the preservation of the section.

Adds to Hotel Holdings.

Henry G. Smith, president of the Woodstock Hotel Company, purchased from the Kineo Realty Company three properties to the west of his hotel on 43d street. The properties are 141, 143 and 145 West 43d street, three old dwellings covering a plot of 60 by 100 feet, about 185 feet east of Broadway. The parcel has been bought by Mr. Smith for the purpose of enlarging the Woodstock at some future time. His hotel is a twelve-story building and has a frontage of 144 feet. With the additional 60 feet it will be among the largest in the Time Square section. M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company negotiated the deal.

Johnson Estate Sells.

Frederick Johnson and the Central Trust Company, as executors of the late George F. Johnson, sold to Paul M. Herzog and Frederick Brown eight five-story apartment houses, in Longwood avenue, Hewitt place and Dawson street. Frederick Brown secured three corners, the northwest corner of Longwood avenue and Hewitt place, 69x102x irregular; the northeast corner of the same thoroughfare, 57.6 on Hewitt place, 50.7 on Longwood avenue by 107.4 feet deep, and the northwest corner of Longwood avenue and Dawson street, 41x107.4, known as 887, 911 and 921 Longwood avenue. Mr. Herzog bought the interior buildings at 879, 883, 913 and 917 Longwood avenue and 814 Hewitt place, each 39x100. The property involved is assessed for $360,000. Jacob Leitner & Co. were the brokers.

Buyer for the "Barrington."

The Barrington, the nine-story elevator apartment house at 203 to 209 West 81st street, was bought by the B. Winter Realty Company. The house covers a plot 112.6 by 102.2, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway. William F. Kenny, the seller, acquired it in 1916 in exchange for several properties along the Shore road, Brooklyn. The Barrington was erected by the Barkin Construction Company. B. Moskowitz negotiated the present transaction.

Operator Returns to Field.

Daniel B. Freedman, operator, has signalized his return into the real estate market by purchasing one of the finest corners on West End avenue, the property known as 301, forming the northwest corner of 74th street. The property was sold by L. J. Phillips & Company for Ernest R. Smellie, of England, who has owned the corner for a great many years and valued it at $125,000. The property, which measures 23 by 100, is favored by the flanking row of restricted dwellings and the gardens of Charles M. Schwab, assuring permanent light and unobstructed views. On the avenue side one house removed are four dwellings purchased a few years ago by Dr. Charles V. Paterno as protection for the big apartment he erected on the opposite northeast corner of West End avenue and 74th street.

Life Insurance Company Sells.

The Guardian Life Insurance Company sold, through A. Blumenthal, to the Grand Concourse Realty Company, Michael Kaufman, president, the two five-story apartment houses at 78 to 86 and 90 to 96 Edgecomb avenue. The south house measures 90 by 85, and the other 72.11 by 88. The property was acquired at foreclosure last January and was held at $230,000.

Profits for Dash Estate Lots.

J. S. O. Pederson, president of the Valhalla Building Corporation, has bought lots 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18 of the Louisa Dash Estate, located on the east side of Waldo avenue, north of 238th street, from William Brill, who bought them at the Dash sale. Mr. Brill paid at the sale from $800 to $900 apiece for the lots, or a total of $4,325, and resold them for over $5,000. The purchasers plan to erect two high-class apartment houses on the plot. J. Clarence Davies negotiated the sale.

Washington Square Alteration.

Another Washington Square dwelling alteration is to be started shortly as the result of a sale just consummated. George A. Plimpton, of the publishing firm of Ginn & Co., is said to be the purchaser of the four-story and basement dwelling at 17 West 12th street, on lot 25 by 123x irregular, which has been sold by the estate of Charles F. Stone. It is located 200 feet west of Fifth avenue and is to be altered into small suites in a similar manner to the two adjoining houses at 13 and 15 West 12th street, which are owned and were modernized by Mr. Plimpton.

Buyers on Cooper Square.

Browning, King & Co. bought from Frances A. Sands the three-story building at 28 Cooper square, adjoining their seven-story store on the north. The parcel measures 27.9x95x irregular, and gives the buyers control of a frontage of 151.9 feet in Cooper square, opposite Fifth street.

Big Bronx Deal.

Daniel H. Jackson bought from the Intervale Holding Company, Patrick J. Reville, president, the Seville apartment house, a six-story elevator structure, 125 by 95, at 941 to 947 Intervale avenue, southwest corner of 163d street, held at $125,000. The annual rentals are reported to aggregate $25,000. The house was erected a few years ago by Mr. Reville, who is now Superintendent of Buildings, Borough of Bronx, and has forty-three apartments, ranging from three to five rooms and bath. Burton Thompson & Co. were the brokers. This is the third purchase by Mr. Jackson in this section within the last two weeks.

Bronx Re-Sale.

Frederick Brown resold to W. F. Oesting the two five-story apartment houses at the northeast corner of the Grand concourse and 198th street, on a plot fronting 146.6 feet on the concourse and 89.1 feet on 198th street. Each house is arranged for twenty families and the property shows an annual return of $22,000. The houses were held at $170,000. In part payment Mr. Brown took the garage and vacant plot at the southwest corner of Boston road and Jefferson place, a site measuring 103.6 by 148x irregular. F. J. Wood was the broker in the deal.

Plan Richmond Development.

An important Staten Island transaction has just been closed by Cornelius G. Kolff and Lawrence A. Seaver. The property sold consists of 24 acres, and is located on Crescent avenue, near the Richmond road between Dongan Hills and Emerson Hill. The purchaser, Joseph Pilette, of Brooklyn, contemplates a subdivision of the property and erection of small houses for laboring men. Walter H. Crittenden of Manhattan was the seller. This is the first acreage parcel sold since the end of the war and present indications point to an active acreage market on Staten Island for next year.

War Cities of the United States are Models

Bulletin Issued by the American Civic Association Points Out Excellence of New Housing Standards

THE United States Government lately accomplished many things that it never did before. It has done some things extremely well. In a special bulletin recently issued by the American Civic Association the vital standards set by the new war suburbs and war cities are commented upon with much enthusiasm.

The report points out that "by appropriating $150,000,000 for housing the Federal Government has accepted the responsibility for setting the standard for the living conditions of the working people of the United States. Whatever it does, whether good, indifferent or bad, will be accepted as good enough by real estate operators and by the mass of the people. The towns it constructs will be of enduring importance not only for their inhabitants but for the citizens of the United States generally."

An example of the best of the towns the bulletin reproduces the plans of the new suburb of Portsmouth, N. H., called Atlantic Heights; of the new suburb of Wilmington, Del., of Yorkship Village, a community for shipbuilders located between Camden and Gloucester, N. J., and of Hilton, a town built for the Newport News Dry Dock Company.

Among the vital standards set by the Government and quoted by the American Civic Association, of which J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, is president, is one at Portsmouth, N. H., where there are to be only ten houses to the net acre. In this the bulletin says the Government of the United States establishes a vital standard.

Instead of the miserably little three-foot space between houses, so prevalent throughout the United States, spaces that quickly become gloomy 'catch basins for rubbish and stagnant air, the Federal Government has provided for a minimum distance of sixteen feet between houses or the ends of neighboring groups of houses.

The report says: "Housing means the entire environment of the occupant and the occupant's family. Men and women are to such a great extent the product of their environment, and especially of the environment of their childhood; so many men and women live in such a confined area and move in such ruts that housing is a determining factor in their lives.

"Proper housing includes not only fresh air within the house, but fresh air without the house. You cannot hope for the former unless you have the latter. You cannot have the latter in cities unless you consciously provide for it. The open spaces of the city are to the city as a whole what the windows of the house are to the house as a whole."

The association draws its illustrations not only from the American towns being built, but from the towns already built by England for munition workers at Wellhall, England, and Gretna, Scotland.

"In a year and a quarter we in the United States have made an extraordinary advance in this matter," the report continues. "We have no background of municipal or State or Federal action. Yet in fifteen months the barriers of ancient custom, the obstacles of entrenched prejudice, the difficulties of undertaking the unaccustomed have been overcome. The public, the Administration and finally the Congress have been educated, and $150,000,000 have been appropriated."

The bulletin, which is written by Andrew Wright Crawford, of Philadelphia, the recently appointed field secretary of the association, thus comments on the Wilmington suburb:

"The whole area is planned as a community, with a school, a playground, a community building; with setback restrictions, insuring front yards or gardens; with, indeed, careful attention to all the amenities. The architectural appearance of entire blocks has been appreciated. There are no alleys.

"A very excellent provision in Yorkship village, and one that we ask each member of the American Civic Association to get adopted in his town or city—not merely to try to get it adopted, but to succeed—is that back and side yards shall have only wire or iron fences. Board fences produce (1) a fire risk, affording easy lines of communication for fire; (2) a disease risk, affording opportunities for accumulation of undetected filth, or at least unremoved filth; (3) a heat condenser, because they prevent the circulation of air; (4) an uglification risk, an uglification certainty, because they deny opportunity for flower and plant growth and invite squalor. On the other hand iron fences are (1) obviously not a fire risk; (2) they repel disease, because they expose filth to publicity, the deadly antidote of filth; (3) they offer no obstacles to air currents; (4) they invite flower and back yard gardens; (5) they spur competition in cleanliness, neatness and attractiveness."

As to the pamphlet on housing issued by the Department of Labor the association says:

"In this pamphlet the United States Government outlaws the bunk house and sets its face against tenements; we wish it had outlawed them too. It is to be noted that board fences will not be accepted, but hedges or open metal fences will be; that allotment gardens are to be provided; the rear yard depth is to be not less than the height of the building, and in no case less than twenty feet; the minimum distance between the backs of houses is to be fifty feet; front yards or setbacks are desirable where practicable; privies and outdoor water closets will not be accepted; every room shall have at least one window opening directly to the outer air; every bathroom shall have a window of not less than six square feet in area opening directly to the outer air."

The report concludes with the statement:

"It will thus be seen that the United States is furnishing the good, the bad and the indifferent as precedents. But altogether the cause of a better America is being advanced more than we could have hoped for in a generation without the war. The adoption of adequate town plans, the passing of the gridiron with its rigidity, the insistence upon side yards and back yards of adequate size, the creation of one agency composed of engineer, architect and town planner, all these are advances. It is the duty of every public spirited citizen of America to see to it that his city does not get a result one whit less good than Portsmouth is securing. Let us make the standard of Portsmouth the minimum standard and let us admit no maximum."

Labor Scarcity Will Be Relieved

DURING the past week or so the policy of readjustment has been more pronounced than ever, especially as it regards the Government control over industry. The turn of the year will in all probability mark the termination of all restriction and regulation imposed upon industry. Tin and wheat, however, seem at the present time to be the only exceptions, and it is generally thought that the terms of the agreement with the tin interests will be materially modified. After all of the many problems involved in the readjustment are justly weighed and considered it is easily seen that a reaction is inevitable. In other words compensation of some character must be forthcoming in order to offset the great inflation of the past four years.

To what extent a reaction will affect the building industry through the production of structural materials during the coming year is problematical and much uncertainty involves the manufacturer. The cost of basic raw materials, wages of labor, transportation, etc., are all matters of prime importance in determining the selling prices of building materials and before a reduction from the existing high levels of material prices is possible there must be some readjustment of the factors that enter into the production of building commodities. There is now no doubt as to the attitude of the building interests in regard to the outlook for the industry. All branches of the industry are ready and anxious to resume their operations on the scale of the pre-war period, but whether this will be possible depends altogether upon the building material situation early in 1918.

The supply of labor that will undoubtedly be available by the early spring months presents to State, county and municipal authorities not only a magnificent opportunity but with a duty that cannot be overlooked. To relieve suffering and to safeguard the social welfare of the community is undoubtedly the duty of the civil authorities, and there is no better way in which this duty can be performed than by taking occasion to initiate the construction of street and road work, sewers, and all other needed public improvements and the erection of schools and public buildings of whatever character is required for the welfare of the community. Owing to the necessary curtailment of non-essential construction activity to the end that labor and materials might be conserved and devoted to winning the war, normal street and municipal building construction during the past year or more has fallen heavily in arrears.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

PREPARATION for the Christmas holidays somewhat slowed down activity in building circles during the past week, but the period was not without interesting, if not outstanding, features. Planning ahead for the reconstruction period that is developing is going ahead in a manner wholly satisfactory and each day brings forth new evidences of a remarkable volume of building work to be started after the opening of the 1919 spring season. The present time is usually the dull part of the year for the building interests and even in normal times projects conceived late in the autumn would not be started until the following spring.

There is quite a fair amount of small construction at present underway consisting chiefly of moderate priced dwelling projects, stores, garages, and a considerable amount of alteration and repair work. Prospects for a continuation of construction of this character throughout the winter months are bright, and it is largely the projects of great size and cost that will be delayed in starting until next year. The material situation is gradually shaping up to the point where the local markets will be in a position to fill all demands without delay and it will be only in instances where materials in excessively large amounts, for big operations, are required that some time will be needed for their delivery.

At the present time the labor situation continues as one of the principal deterrents to a resumption of building activity on a large scale and until some of the problems entering into the labor situation are adjusted or solved there will most likely be a disposition to hold off contemplated work.

Building material markets are for the most part quiet, but the condition is a seasonable one, and not due to a lack of opportunity. The demand for materials of all kinds has improved considerably during the past few weeks since all restrictions to construction have been removed, and it is certain that with the opening of next spring great activity will be manifest.

During the week material prices have undergone but little change. The common brick market is firm and prices are steady, with a tendency to strengthening. Other materials are fairly stabilized as to price and from all accounts there is no great change in quotations anticipated throughout the winter months, but no predictions are possible as to the tendency of prices for spring buying. The situation then will depend to a great extent upon the volume of the demand and the availability of the supply.

Common Brick.—The past two weeks have been exceedingly dull in the market for Hudson River common brick. The demand at wholesale has fallen off to some extent from the rate of the past month or so and inquiries for early deliveries are light, although prospects are steadily brightening for spring activity. Prices are firm at $15 a thousand, to dealers and there is a marked tendency toward further advances. There is no doubt but that before the winter is over brick prices will be somewhat higher than they are today as the carrying charges for those boats now covered at the docks will have to be figured into the selling price of brick. It is felt that before the spring sets in that wholesale prices of common brick will advance from $1 to $2 a thousand, and if the demand increases materially the increase is likely to be even greater. Up-river the situation is quiet and without outstanding feature. Manufacturers are now getting sufficient fuel for their requirements and generally are burning the brick moulded during the summer months. Plants along the Raritan River are working to some extent, but the output of these yards is being shipped to New Jersey points and no Raritan brick is available for delivery to New York by water.

SUMMARY.—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Friday, December 27, 1918. Condition of market: Demand light; prices firm. Quotations: Hudson River, $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 5; sales, 3. Distribution: Manhattan, 1; New Jersey points, 2.

Lumber.—An important recent incident in the lumber situation was the initial order from Italy for 7,250,000 feet of Douglas fir and while the order in itself is insignificant as to size in relation to the production, it may nevertheless be looked upon as the forerunner of a tremendous demand for lumber products from foreign nations and especially those who were participants in brings new responsibilities—the responsibilities of reconstruction presenting new and stupendous tasks ahead. The new year will be rich in possibilities.

In the Metropolitan District there will be millions spent upon construction, equipment and maintenance. Important manufacturing and contracting concerns realize this. These millions will be planned for and spent by the closely affiliated Real Estate and Building interests.

The RECORD AND GUIDE is the recognized authority of these interests. Its readers will specify or buy the materials required for reconstruction in the Metropolitan field.

Its advertising columns offer an opportunity through which to reach a tremendous buying power. Put your problem of getting your share of new business during the year directly up to us. We can solve it. If the solution does not warrant the use of the RECORD AND GUIDE we will frankly tell you so.

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

the war. In the Metropolitan district both wholesale and retail departments of lumber trade have improved in activity and orders are coming through in better volume than they have for some time past. There has been considerable activity in the construction of small dwellings throughout the local territory, and as lumber is a principal factor in buildings of this character the effect upon the market has been good. Dealers are well supplied, however, as the peace orders do not bulk nearly so large as those due to the war and there is now sufficient lumber in the hands of the dealers to supply any ordinary demand. Prices are well sustained, but there is a feeling that slight reductions from the current levels will come with the opening of spring.

Structural Steel.—The situation is exceptionally quiet and as concerns the domestic building requirements there will be little activity until there is some assurance as to future prices for fabricated steel. Builders and prospective builders are not willing to proceed with their contemplated structures at the prevailing high prices for fabricated steel. Should there be a substantial reduction in steel prices there is no doubt but that the effect on the building situation would be most gratifying, and it would not be local by any means but extended in scope throughout the entire country. There is still a considerable amount of Government building underway, and this is taking fabricated steel in large tonnage, but the demand for private construction is light and will not improve until there has been a marked change in the price situation.

Cast Iron Pipe.—Up to the present writing no action has been taken by the manufacturers in regard to a revision of price schedules and as a consequence business is practically at a standstill. There is a large amount of business in sight and engineers are at work on plans for a great volume of municipal and county work, but it is not anticipated that these projects will be brought out for estimates until the matter of prices has been settled. Private buying is light and no improvement from this source is looked for during the next three or four months. Government prices continue to dominate all quotations and are as follows: 6 in., 8 in., and heavier, $67.70; 4 in., $70.70; and 3 in., $77.70 with $1 additional for gas pipe.

Linseed Oil.—There has been no material change in the situation during the past week. The demand is not heavy owing to the general depression in structural activity, and the supply is adequate for immediate needs. The gratifying Northwestern flaxseed crop will do much to relieve the stringency of the linseed oil situation when the demand for the product improves. The statement has been made that the Canadian crop is also in excellent condition, and seed from Argentine is available in better volume than it has been for some months past. In all the market situation as it applies to linseed oil is optimistic, and better times are surely in store for the industry.

Face Brick.—Producers and dealers are looking forward with much confidence to the spring of 1918, as a strong revival of structural activity is promised that will carry with it a tremendous demand for face brick. Many important projects are now being planned in which face and decorative brick will be extensively used and a large majority of these operations are scheduled for a start early next year. Producers are now able to obtain all of their fuel requirements and the labor situation has lost much of its acuteness owing to the cessation of activity in the munition plants, which were the chief competitors with the face brick makers for needed labor. Prices are firm and no important change in quotations is anticipated for the next month or two.

Portland Cement.—The situation as applied to the cement market remains substantially unchanged, with a fair demand from private building sources, but a slackening in the volume of governmental requirements. Manufacturers and dealers are for the most part marking time and perfecting their plans for the great volume of business that is to come when reconstruction activity obtains a good start. At the present time Portland cement prices are unchanged and seem fairly stabilized. No material change is anticipated under existing conditions, but it is not known how a sudden building revival would affect the market.

No Awards for 1918.

For the first time since establishing the custom of giving tangible recognition to outstanding construction and architectural design, the Fifth Avenue Association, which inaugurated the practice in order to stimulate good work among builders and owners, announces that there will be no medals or certificates awarded this year.

No distinctions are to be made because the Association's committee on architectural harmony had no subjects to consider, thus pointedly reflecting the effect war restrictions have had upon general building.

H. Van Buren Magonigle, Thomas Hastings, and Egerton Swartwout, technical members of the committee, after considering all buildings presented by the Fifth Avenue Association for judgment, reported that it was the unanimous opinion "that no work, either new or alteration, done during the year is in a class which should make it worthy of the distinction of having medals of honor awarded to it."

The lay members, Walter Stabler, Ensign Douglas L. Elliman, and Michael Dreicer, concurred in the findings of the professional members of the committee.

Registration of Architects.

There will be two opportunities during 1919 for architects to be admitted to practice in New York State by examination. Examinations held in various cities will be open to candidates who shall have previously qualified on January 29—February 1, and on June 1-3. Candidates should write at once for information to the Examination Division, Education Building, Albany, New York. Those who wish to take the examinations will be required by the Regents to qualify under the law which specifies that the applicant shall have "satisfactorily completed the course in high school approved by the Regents of the University or the equivalent thereof and subsequent thereto of having satisfactorily completed such courses in mathematics, history and one modern language, as are included in the first two years in an institution approved by the Regents, conferring the degree of bachelor of arts. Such candidates shall in addition submit satisfactory evidence of at least five years' practical experience in the office or offices of a reputable architect or architects, commencing after the completion of the high school course.

Candidates may obtain copies of the Registration Law and an outline of the examination by addressing Dr. A. S. Downing, Assistant Commissioner for Higher Education, Education Building, Albany, N. Y.

Architects who have graduated from certain schools of architecture and those who have practiced ten years in other states may secure certificates of registration without examination. It is illegal for any one to use the title "architect" in this state without registration unless he actually practiced architecture in New York previous to April 28, 1915.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

Benjamin W. Levitan, architect, formerly at 10 East 38th street, recently moved his offices to 7 West 45th street.

Hess Steel Corporation, of Baltimore, has established a branch office at 50 Church street, New York. Daniel V. Foster, who is now representing the corporation in that district, will be in charge.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. announces the appointment of L. C. Sprague as assistant secretary of the company with headquarters at 52 Vanderbilt avenue.

National Brick Manufacturers' Association will hold its regular annual meeting at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., during the week beginning February 2. If the custom of the past years is followed, sessions will begin on Wednesday, February 5, and extend to Friday, February 7.

The New York Society of Architects has just issued its yearbook for 1917 and 1918. It was compiled by a committee headed by Harry Malcolm Devoe, with Adam E. Fischer as vice chairman and Louis E. Jallade secretary. The book contains varied information of value to real estate men, including special articles on important subjects under discussion during the last year.

American Enameled Brick & Tile Co., New York, has been operating its plant at South River, N. J., during the war period for the production of fire brick, being one of the many enameled brick plants to turn to the manufacture of this product to meet the war demands. The company is now turning again to the production of enameled brick and is in position to handle orders under reasonable period of delivery.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education is distributing two series of pamphlets designed to promote the restoration of soldiers and sailors, both sound and disabled, to gainful occupations in civil life. There are separate pamphlets addressed to the men, to their families and to American employers of labor. Some of the pamphlets tell of a plan of Federal vocational education. Those wishing information should address the board mentioned above, at Washington, D. C.

Gibbons Company, 318 Columbia street, Brooklyn, will shortly celebrate its golden jubilee. This firm has specialized in construction work in Brooklyn for the past half century and has grown with Brooklyn into an institution. Shortly after the Civil War the Gibbons Company took part in the reconstruction and building of that period, and since then the company has kept steady pace with the industrial growth of the city, and afterwards borough, and has built some of its buildings, many of which are now landmarks. At the time of the Spanish-American War the Government called the company into its service, and much of the war work of that time was done by the Gibbons concern. In the present great war, the Quartermaster's Department, having the records of the company in the Spanish-American War before it, immediately sought out the Gibbons Company, and the greatest part of the construction of barracks for both the Army and Navy in and about the Port of New York was done by this company.
